DIRECT NOMINATIONS BEATEN IN SENATE

Hinman-Green Bill, Favored by Hughes, Is Voted Down, 25 to 23.

DEBATE LASTS ALL DAY

Leaders Work Like Beavers Against Measure—Grady-Frisbie Bill Is Also Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 18.—The Hinman-Green bill, embodying Gov. Hughes's plan for direct nominations, was defeated by the Senate to-night, 25 to 23, after a debate lasting practically all day. This action, following its defeat in the Assembly last week, is considered final, so far as this session of the Legislature is concerned.

As soon as the Hinman-Green bill had been voted down the Senate took up the Grady-Frisbie bill, drafted by D Cady Herrick and introduced at the request of the Democratic League. Minority Leader Grady did not attend to-day's session and the orphaned bill was slaughtered by a vote of 11 to 36, even some Democrats denying it their support when the test came.

This leaves on the Senate calendar the Meade-Phillips bill, already passed by the Assembly, which defines the concessions the Republican bosses have reluctantly decided to grant as a sop to advocates of primary reform, and the so-called Cobb compromise bill, which follows suggestions contained in a recent memorial to the Legislature from Seth Low, Otto T. Bannard, Joseph H. Choate, Nicholas Murray Butler, and President Schurman of Cornell. Senator Cobb had his bill amended to-day to take effect immediately instead of next year, and to provide for the direct nomination of candidates for Congress as well as for the Legislature.

The leaders in the Assembly have already indicated that they are not prepared to accept the Cobb bill, so there is every likelihood that the present session of the Legislature will terminate without the passage of any measure making for primary reform.

It was a tired and thoroughly disgusted lot of Senators that rallied for the final onslaught on the Governor's direct nominations bill. Yesterday's action on the Federal Income Tax resolution had kept them in the Senate Chamber until nearly midnight. It was about noon when the debate on the Hinman-Green bill began, and it was nearly 7 o'clock when the last vote had been recorded on the final roll call.

When the debate got under way the leaders allied with the Republican machine circulated from desk to desk in the Senate chamber itself, and in the lobbies and corridors they kept buttonholing members suspected of a leaning toward the Governor's side. Between the pressure thus brought to bear and the pledges made to their constituents to support the Hinman-Green bill many members showed in the most unmistakable manner the strain under which they were laboring. At home were their constituents ready to wreak vengeance should they go back on their pledges. Hovering nearer was the threatening cloud of retaliation by affronted leaders, who held in the hollow of their hands the fate of bills as well as the distribution of patronage.

As a result quite a number of wavering ones permitted their names to be passed on the roll call with the idea of finally throwing their support with the machine against the Governor's bill should their votes be needed to defeat it. These were Alexander Brough of New York, Reuben L. Gledhill and John Kissel of Kings, James M. Emerson of Warren, and John F. Schlosser of Dutchess, Republicans, and Howard R. Bayne of Richmond, Democrat.

After the first roll call had been completed the vote stood 20 for and 23 against the Hinman-Green bill, with six Senators present who had not answered when their names were called. Thus there was a possibility that the bill might pass by a bare majority if all those not recorded voted for it.

On the call of absentees Senator Bayne, Democrat, after a speech of explanation, asked to be recorded in the negative. This bereft the advocates of the Governor's plan of their last ray of hope. Senators Schlosser and Kissel also asked to be recorded in the negative. Then, their votes not needed by the machine, Senators Brough, Gledhill, and Emerson lost no time in jumping on the Hughes band wagon. The vote in detail follows:

The absentees were Thomas F. Grady and Timothy D. Sullivan.

After his bill had been defeated Senator Hinman moved a reconsideration of the vote, and asked that this motion lie on the table. The leaders were prepared to put this to a vote and defeat it, but finally Mr. Hinman was prevailed on to withdraw it. He can renew it at any time within the next two days, but it is not likely that any further efforts will be made at the present session to revive the bill.

After the session the opinion was freely expressed that had the Governor remained as actively in the fight for his pet measure as his friends had the right to expect the bill would have been passed. Very generally the Governor's announcement that he had accepted a place on the United States Supreme Court is blamed by his supporters in the Legislature for their repeated discomfiture during the final stages of the session now approaching its end.

The debate to-day took place before practically empty galleries. Senators Hinman, Davenport, Newcomb, and Gardner spoke in favor of the Hinman-Green bill. Senators Meade and Brackett, on the Republican side, went to the front for the opposition. In the absence of Senator Grady, Senator Caffrey assumed the minority leadership. He made a long speech against the Governor's bill and in favor of the Grady-Frisbie measure.

LALLY NEXT TO CROKER.

Waldo Settles Question of Precedence in Fire Department.

The departure yesterday of Fire Chief Croker for the convention of the National Board of Fire Underwriters in Chicago without, apparently, providing for a successor in command of the department in his absence occasioned a misunderstanding which for a time set the department gossipping. The Chief left the city in the early afternoon. Soon afterward Deputy Chief Ahearn, a brother of ex-Borough President Ahearn, came down from his Bronx headquarters and took Croker's place.

In the Commissionership of Nicholas J. Hayes, Deputy Chief Ahearn always acted as Chief of the department in Croker's absence, and apparently he was following precedent yesterday. Section 728 of the charter provides that the Chief shall recommend for duty to the Commissioner some man of his choice, and that the appointment must be certified by the higher official before becoming operative. Chief Croker did not hand Deputy Chief Ahearn's name to Mr. Waldo before leaving yesterday, and at 7:30 o'clock last night the Commissioner realized suddenly that no one of his appointment was in charge of the department. He issued an order immediately, directing Deputy Chief Lally of Brooklyn to be Acting Chief in Croker's absence. Mr. Ahearn thereupon returned to his quarters in the Bronx.

It was then that the gossip started. No one in the department seemed to know why Lally had replaced Ahearn, and in the absence of Croker to explain that he had nominated no one for the place, the mystification was not cleared up. Commissioner Waldo was astonished when he learned that his order had occasioned any surprise.

He explained how he had come to issue it and then declared that he had been with Chief Croker up to within a few minutes of his departure.

"Chief Croker and I are the best of friends personally, and we are working in perfect harmony for the good of the department," he said.

Deputy Chief Ahearn is not as young a man as Lally, who also is the ranking officer next to Chief Croker.

The one reason for surprise in the whole affair, so a man high in the Fire Department said last night, was the wording of Commissioner Waldo's order. It provides practically that hereafter in the absence of Croker, Lally shall be in charge of the department without further orders. Chief Lally said last night that the order was very broad in this respect, but he should expect to receive a special order on every occasion when it became necessary for him to assume Croker's place.

"I do not know how long the Chief will be away," he said, "but until his return I shall respond to all two-alarm fires, and, of course, all larger ones in every borough."

PANIC ON A SOUND STEAMER.

The Manhanset Breaks a Propeller Shaft Off Greenport, L. I.

GREENPORT, L. I., May 18.—The steamer Manhanset, which runs between this place and New London, making several stops en route, was disabled in the Plum Cut this morning. She was towed back here and hauled out. No one was hurt.

There was a considerable sea running outside when the steamboat left here this morning at 9 o'clock. Nearing Plum Cut, the sea increased, and the boat was rolling heavily, when, because of a defect in the outer reach of the shaft, the propeller dropped off. The engine kept on running, and the pounding threw the score or more of passengers into a panic. The boat began to swing around into the trough of the waves and to roll. Engineer Case, at great risk to himself, reached the engine and shut off the steam. A call for aid was made and in a few minutes several craft were laying by.

The oyster steamer Larry Latham, Capt. Hand, and the steamboat Magician, Capt. Frank Mullin, came alongside and brought the Manhanset around and started to tow her back here. They brought her in without mishap, and the cargo was taken off and the steamboat hauled out for repairs at the yard of the Greenport Basin and Construction Company. Then it was found the shaft must have been cracked for a long time.

The steamboat Wyandotte was made ready and took the place of the Manhanset. The steamboat Montauk was fired up and this evening started for New York on the run usually made by the Wyandotte.

This is the second accident to the Manhanset in a year. Last Winter a cylinder-head blew out, causing a big scare but no one was hurt.

WILD PANIC AS BOAT SINKS.

But Passengers Are All Rescued—Vessel Capsized on the Missouri.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 18.—Men, women and children, numbering 150, struggled and fought madly to-day to escape from the excursion steamer Uncle Sam, which struck a sandbar and capsized in the Missouri River, near Kansas City. Only the coolness of the crew prevented loss of life.

The accident occurred in midstream. The steamer was attempting to turn, and, while backing down the river with the rapid current, encountered the sandbar, which crushed in the entire right side of the boat. The boat filled rapidly, and the passengers became wildly panic stricken. The officers and crew were nearly swept off their feet.

The boat was headed for the bank, but before arriving it sank on one side, submerging half the deck. A few persons jumped overboard, but as the water was shallow they were rescued. Officers of the Government steamer Missouri, seeing the plight of the Uncle Sam, rushed to the rescue. In less than ten minutes after the boat sank every passenger was safely on shore.

The steamer was 160 feet long and 32 feet beam. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

BOILER EXPLOSION INQUIRY.

Coroner, However, Can Find No One to Explain Canton Accident.

CANTON, Ohio, May 18.—An investigation into the cause of the boiler explosion at the plant of the American Sheet Tin Plate Company yesterday afternoon, in which fourteen men were killed and thirty injured, is in progress to-day. Coroner Marsh of Stark County has found no one who was employed at the mill who is able to give an explanation for the accident.

An examination showed that only three of the battery of seven boilers exploded, the others being merely displaced by the concussion.

INDICT CRAGEN, THE MAYOR'S ORDER

Queens District Attorney Directed to Present His Case to the Grand Jury.

ACCUSED OF STAMP FRAUD

While Secretary to Gresser the Justice Raised Vouchers, So the Commissioner of Accounts Reports.

In terms which he cannot possibly misunderstand Mayor Gaynor yesterday peremptorily ordered Frederick G. De Witt, District Attorney of Queens County, to see to it that an indictment is found against John M. Cragen, former secretary to Borough President Gresser and now a Municipal Court Justice.

The Mayor tells the District Attorney that he himself is on trial in the matter, and that failure to indict may result in his displacement by a Deputy Attorney General. W. R. Hearst figures in the letter under a one-line mention on account of the fact that Cragen was elected on his Independence League ticket last November.

Cragen is accused in a report from Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick of having collected the sum of $50 for stamps twenty-one times from the city, while the amount spent each time was actually only $5. His defense when placed under oath was that the office boy and not he did it. An attempt to bribe one of Commissioner Fosdick's men led to the discovery of the raised vouchers by which the fraud was accomplished.

While the new sensation of the postage stamp steal was working its way through Queens last night many citizens were wondering why three expected and overdue indictments on matters already investigated had failed to materialize. District Attorney De Witt, when questioned, explained that the indictments were of a technical and complicated character, and the delay was due to the extreme care with which they were being drawn up. They were promised for this morning.

Mayor Gaynor in presenting the Cragen case, together with his compliments to Mr. Hearst, wrote thus to Dist Attorney De Witt:

Sir: I beg to inclose to you a report of Raymond B. Fosdick, Commissioner of Accounts, which concerns John M. Cragen, formerly secretary to the Borough President of Queens, and now a Municipal Justice there, having been elected on the Independence League, or Hearst, ticket last Fall.

In reports of his personal expenses, verified by him, he charged the city with $50 worth of stamps twenty-one times, when the actual amount in each case was only $5, and the Controller of the city paid the excessive sums.

In order to bring this about the vouchers for the stamps were in each case forged by adding an additional cipher to the number of stamps bought and also to the price paid therefor; in other words, in each case of the purchase of 250 stamps a cipher was added so as to make it appear 2,500, and in the same way a cipher was added to the $5, so as to make it $50.

May I ask that this matter be laid before the Grand Jury at once? I have heretofore informed you that the Attorney General has called on me and desires to intervene in the County of Queens in these criminal matters against public officials unless you are entirely confident that you can cause their indictment and conviction.

It is to little purpose that these officials' derelictions are found out and exposed by the present city Government unless the parties are prosecuted vigorously and convicted. If any evidence be lacking it will no doubt be found by due diligence.

Sincerely yours,
W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Frederick G. De Witt, District Attorney of Queens County.

Commissioner Fosdick, in the report on which Mayor Gaynor based his letter, told of the effort of an unknown person to bribe one of his clerks and of the results which followed. He said:

On Thursday afternoon, May 12, 1910, a junior clerk attached to the staff of this office was approached by a stranger on the street, who offered him a sum of money if he would secure certain receipts for postage stamps attached to several city vouchers in my possession. Upon examination the vouchers, whose numbers had been given to the clerk, were found to be the monthly expense accounts of John E. Cragen, formerly private secretary to Borough President Gresser, and now Justice of the Third District Municipal Court, Borough of Queens.

The receipts attached to the vouchers were for the purchase of stamps from the Postmaster of Long Island City. They bear the name of the Postmaster in printed form and the initial of the clerk making the sale. The vouchers covering these expenditures were certified to by David W. Murphy, bookkeeper, and Lawrence Gresser, Borough President.

The Post Office in Long Island City adjoins Borough Hall. George Rippinger, the Postmaster, first became aware of the fact that something was wrong when he was subpoenaed before Commissioner Fosdick. As he knew of the vouchers only when they were in the sum of $5 each, he was not aware of the stealing that was being done through their use. He was greatly astonished yesterday to learn of the nature of the charges against Cragen. He refused to discuss the case, as he expects to tell his side of it to the Grand Jurors.

A road dispute was carried to the Grand Jury yesterday by a committee anxious to take advantage of the present open season for graft hunting. The road is fifty feet wide and half a mile long, running through the Lutheran Cemetery in the Middle Village section. It is now fenced in, and those who fenced it are made the subject of attack on the ground that they are indictable for obstructing a highway.

The row dates back to the Cassidy administration, during which the cemetery authorities were allowed to fence off a portion of a road more than 200 years old which ran from East Williamsburg to Hempstead. Protests made at the time resulted in an order to restore the section of the road to the official map, but the fence has never been removed.

Those who testified on the matter yesterday were Joseph Bermel, ex-Borough President; David Avenius, Superintendent of the Lutheran Cemetery; Robert Crowell, Chief Engineer of the Queens Topographical Bureau, and John McCluskey, Superintendent of St. John's Cemetery, which is near the ground in dispute.

PINNED UNDER FREIGHT ENGINE

A Clerk Held Against the Firebox for Two Hours—May Die.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 18.—Spreading rails overturned a heavy freight engine on the Reading Railway here this evening, and Thomas King, a clerk, who was riding home, was pinned beneath, with the firebox so close that his back was baked during the two hours that elapsed before he could be rescued.

Half a hundred laborers tunneled him out, while a doctor, a priest, and four girl nurses kept him alive. He is now in a hospital, where his recovery is doubtful.

John McMurray, the fireman, got a mashed foot. Charles Hoff, the engineer, escaped by jumping.

BARRACKS BLOWN UP; 100 CUBANS KILLED

3,000-Pound Dynamite Explosion Wipes Out Rural Guard Detachment at Pinar del Rio.

OFFICERS' FAMILIES PERISH

Massive Spanish Buildings, Ground to Pieces, Fall in Hail of Stone Upon Town—One Body Hurled a Mile.

HAVANA, May 18.—Two almost simultaneous explosions of dynamite, supposed to amount to 3,000 pounds, completely demolished the Rural Guard barracks in the City of Pinar del Rio this afternoon. At least a hundred persons were killed and nearly as many were wounded.

Most of the dead were Rural Guardsmen, but the entire families of several of the officers of the Rural Guard, it is reported, were killed also, as well as several employes of the Public Works Department and residents of the city, on which fell a deluge of masonry and débris from the blown-up building.

It is not known yet whether the explosion was the result of an accident or was due to an act of conspirators, but the former hypothesis is considered the more probable. Several relief trains carrying surgeons, officers, and men of the Rural Guard and Government officials started this afternoon from Havana to the scene of the catastrophe, which is 108 miles distant.

The names of the dead have not yet been reported, with the exception of Capt. Alfredo Ravena and Capt. Caspar Betancourt, of the garrison, and their families, who are reported to be buried under the ruins of the officers' quarters adjacent to the barracks.

The barracks was a massive building of Spanish construction, and occupied an eminence in the outskirts of the city to the north. During the late intervention it was the headquarters of Col. Parker's regiment, the Eleventh Cavalry. Adjacent to the barracks was a long row of officers' quarters. Recently the barracks was occupied by the Public Works Department, and four troops of Rural Cavalry. In consequence of the alarm over race disturbances the Government ordered all deposits of dynamite in the vicinity in the possession of contractors for road construction and other public works to be removed to the barracks for safe keeping. This afternoon the work of removing the dynamite from the barracks for shipment to the Government magazines in Havana was begun by employes of the Public Works Department, assisted by Rural Guards.

They were engaged in loading cases of dynamite on wagons when a terrific explosion occurred, instantly followed by another, strewing the central court in which the work was going on, with dead and wounded. The whole massive barracks building was destroyed, the adjacent row of officers' quarters was demolished, and a hail of stone fell upon the whole northern section of the city.

Since the explosions occurred at 5 o'clock, a few seconds before the men would have quit work, it is generally believed that the first resulted from the accidental fall of a box of dynamite which was being lifted into a wagon. It is impossible, however, to determine absolutely the cause, for the reason that all in the immediate vicinity were blown to fragments. It is believed that the majority of the wounded are residents of the town, as practically all within the barracks were instantly killed or buried in the ruins.

The work of exhuming the dead and searching for those who still may be alive is going on to-night, but is greatly retarded by the destruction of the electric light wires and the fear that a quantity of unexploded dynamite remains in the ruins.

According to reports received here the mangled remains of victims were found in the streets of the city a mile from the scene of the explosion. There is great anxiety in Havana owing to the fact that a large number of the rural garrison at Pinar del Rio recently were sent from this city, where their families reside. Gen. Monteagudo, commander of the Rural Guard, left to-night for Pinar del Rio with a strong force to render all possible assistance.

THREE NATIONS STOP WAR.

United States, Brazil, and Argentina Propose Mediation to Peru and Ecuador

LIMA, May 18.—It is reported that the Cabinet at a meeting has decided to accept a proposal from the United States, Brazil, and Argentina for joint mediation in the boundary dispute between Peru and Ecuador, which has brought the two republics to the verge of war.

GAUYAQUIL, May 18.—Ecuador has not yet been officially notified of the offer of joint mediation by the United States, Brazil, and Argentina in the dispute between Peru and Ecuador, as the Ecuadorian Minister to Argentina has not yet arrived at Buenos Ayres.

A private dispatch received here states that Peru has decided to accept the offer of mediation.

BUENOS AYRES, May 18.—Charles H. Sherrill, the American Minister, had a long conference this evening with the Minister of Foreign Affairs on the subject of mediation in the dispute between Peru and Ecuador.

Mr. Sherrill gave a reception this afternoon in honor of Major Gen. Leonard Wood and the American colony.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The report from Lima that the United States, Argentina, and Brazil have offered to mediate between Peru and Ecuador is confirmed.

While no official acceptance has been received, it is not doubted that both Ecuador and Peru will concur in the plan.

SUN SPOTS APPEAR; NOT DUE TO COMET?

One Probably 150,000 Miles in Diameter, St. Louis Astronomer Reports.

NEED OCCASION NO ALARM

But Recurrence at This Time Is Extraordinary—Observed Also in California and Oregon.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 18.—Extensive sun spots were discovered this afternoon by the Rev. I. R. L. Hicks, the Rev. Martin S. Brennan, Professor of Astronomy at Kenrick Seminary, and other astronomers here.

"Three awful groups," is the way Father Brennan described them. They were unexpected, as the usual period of recurrence for sun spots is eleven and one-third years, and it has been only three years since the occurrence of the last spots.

"In one of the groups," said Father Brennan, "I counted twenty-six spots. There is a large isolated one near the bottom of the sun. In the principal group one of the spots is the largest that I have ever seen. It is probably 150,000 miles across.

"The recurrence of spots at this time is extraordinary, but there is nothing in it to cause uneasiness. It simply indicates unusual internal activity. There is no possible connection between the comet and the sun spots. The comet is 80,000,000 miles away from the sun and could not possibly have any effect upon it.

"It would require a body as large as the earth falling into the sun to make such a spot as the large one in the principal group."

VALLEJO, Cal., May 18.—Prof. T. J. J. See of the United States Naval Observatory at Mare Island reported to-night the following observation on sun spots:

"Great sun spots were noted at 4 P. M. to-day, (7 P. M., New York time.) The largest spot was slightly northeast of the sun centre and was made up of three parts roughly joined together by bridging, such as characterizes complicated spots.

"This seems to indicate that the disturbance is destined to last several days. It appears to be increasing in magnitude and to be of the vortex or whirlpool type, which often gives rise to disturbances of the earth's magnetism. The sun spots will reach the sun's central meridian in another day or two, and if any disturbance of the earth's magnetism is to occur from this cause it is likely to come about Friday.

"The spots now seen are not believed to have any connection with the comet. If any aurorae or electrical effects occur, we should probably ascribe them to the comet rather than to the spots on the sun.

"The largest spot observed at Mare Island was estimated to be 60,000 miles long and 30,000 miles wide."

PASADENA, Cal., May 18.—Dr. George E. Hate of the Carnegie Observatory, on Mount Wilson, observed to-day a large group of sun spots, approximately in the centre of the sun's disk, a smaller group, apparently associated with the larger group, and a single small spot on the edge of the sun. Some of these spots were observed on May 14.

Dr. Hale estimated the total length of the large group at about 100,000 miles. The penumbra, or shadowy rim of the spots, was found to contain three umbrae, or black areas, one of which was larger than the other two. The smaller group consists of one spot with two umbrae and several smaller spots.

Photographs were taken of the spots on May 14, and these showed the groups of spots near the eastern edge of the sun. Since then the larger spot has greatly increased in size.

The spots are of the tornado type, that is, vortices or whirling volumes of intensely heated gases and metallic vapor. These are highly charged with electricity, which produces strong magnetic fields. These fields might disturb the magnetism of the earth; but Mr. Hale added that he did not think the spots were responsible for recent seismic disturbances.

"There is not the slightest reason," he said, "to suppose that the sun spots have any connection with recent earthquakes or with the comet."

CHICAGO, May 18.—Three sun spots, well accentuated, were observed at the Yerkes Observatory at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 18.—J. S. Rickard of the Santa Clara College meteorological observatory announced to-day that he had observed two very large spots on the sun, both intensely black.

The astronomer said that one spot was about twelve hours from the central meridian. East of it were thirteen pores or small spots. These spots were entirely new, he said, as for three months almost nothing in the nature of spots had been observed.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 18.—Observers who examined the sun through powerful telescopes to-day report two spots on the sun.

Prof. Jacoby of Columbia University, in discussing the sun spots reported yesterday from various observatories in the West, said that they might be due to the passage of the comet's head across the sun.

"The spot observed by Father Brennan," he said, "is unusually large, but not the largest on record, if my memory serves me right. I shall be much interested to hear the detailed reports from observatories which watch the sun. Columbia does not, and we have no records of previous sun spots with their relationship to comets."

NO PHOTOS IN TROUSERS.

Wellesley Faculty Forbids Girl Students So Attired to be Photographed.

Special to The New York Times.

WELLESLEY, Mass., May 18.—In accordance with a new Faculty edict, no photographs of Wellesley students who take part in college plays in male costume may be made. The Faculty will endeavor as far as possible to have all existing photographs of girls playing masculine characters cut off at the waist.

This action follows the recent publication of the photographs of two Wellesley girls in full male dress, taken after the senior play of May 10, and to these pictures the Faculty took strong objection.

New Haven Railroad Raises Wages.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 18.—An increase of about 5 per cent. for men in the freight service and of about 10 per cent. for men in the passenger service is the substance of a wage agreement which the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has made with its engineers.

KILLED WATCHING FOR COMET

Girl Fell from Roof and Broke Her Neck.

Sixteen-year-old Amy Hopkins, was one of a party of fifteen boys and girls who watched for the comet off the roof of her home, a four-story apartment house, at 15 Glenada Place, Brooklyn, last night. Suddenly her comrades saw her crash through a glass-covered airshaft between her house and the one adjoining.

Mrs. Hopkins, her mother, who was on the roof of a house across the street, heard the scream, and a few minutes later saw an ambulance drive up to her home. She hurried across the street, and was met by several of her daughter's party, who tried to keep her from entering. She pushed her way past them, however, and saw the lifeless body of her daughter. The ambulance surgeon, Dr. Griffin, of St. John's Hospital, said the girl had broken her neck and been killed instantly.

Mrs. Hopkins fainted, and was said to be in a serious condition and under treatment of a physician late last night.

TAFT TO TALK AT BRYN MAWR.

Will Make Address at School Where Daughter Is Student.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—President Taft has consented to make the annual address at the commencement exercises at Bryn Mawr College on June 2. The occasion will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the college and the completion of a $500,000 endowment. The President is expected to speak on college education for women.

Miss Helen Taft, the President's daughter, is a student at Bryn Mawr, but will not be graduated until next year.

FIGHT LOWER PULLMAN RATES

Company Files Suit to Enjoin Execution of Commerce Board's Order.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The Pullman Company has filed a bill to enjoin the execution of the order of the Inter-State Commerce Commission lowering sleeping car rates. The action was filed by General Solicitor Daniels of the company, with the Clerk of the United States Circuit Court, and it is hoped a hearing may be had next Wednesday.

The bill attacks the jurisdiction of the commission over the company, which alleges that it is not engaged in the business of furnishing transportation, but merely rents cars to the railroads.

FRENCH AVIATOR FALLS.

M. Nau Very Badly Bruised, but It Is Thought He Will Live.

JUVISY-SUR-ORGE, France, May 19.—M. Nau, an aviator, while flying in a monoplane to-day fell from a height of thirty feet.

He was frightfully bruised, but it is expected that he will survive.

IMPROVES WRIGHT AEROPLANE

Foulois Increases Speed Ten Miles an Hour by New Device.

SAN ANTONIO, May 18.—Lieut. B. D. Foulois has been experimenting with the army's Wright aeroplane at Fort Sam Houston, placing the rudder in front and constructing a new rudder for the rear.

Two flights were made yesterday, and the speed of the machine was increased about ten miles an hour by the change.

BOY SAVES CHILD IN RIVER.

Risks His Life When Men Hesitated—May Get Carnegie Medal.

While a score of men stood hesitating, fifteen-year-old William Schollmeyer of 228 Riverdale Avenue plunged into the Hudson River at Yonkers yesterday and saved the life of John Varholia, 7 years old, of 50 Clinton Street. Varholia, who was sinking, grasped his rescuer convulsively, and Schollmeyer, dragged under, had to release his hold.

Diving, he seized the boy again and struck out for shore. He was thoroughly exhausted and on the verge of sinking again when a party of fishermen in a rowboat rescued both boys.

The rescue took place near the plant of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, and Louis Spreckles, its President, was so impressed with the heroism of young Schollmeyer that he said he would urge his name for the Carnegie hero medal. Varholia was playing on the dock when he tripped on the stringpiece, and in falling his head struck a beam, causing a jagged wound over the eye.

Half an hour after the rescue Schollmeyer was playing a game of baseball. When his mother chided him for risking his life the boy replied: "If that little fellow had drowned I should have gone crazy." This is the fourth rescue young Schollmeyer has made.

CHILD SHOT BY DUELISTS.

Mortally Wounded While Playing by Pistol Fighters.

Little Italy was thrown into a panic and sent scampering into its doorways last night when two coatless Italians after an altercation at Third Avenue and 111th Street drew revolvers and kept up a running exchange of shots from Third to Second Avenue.

Near the middle of the block seven-year-old Christina and nine-year-old Angela Mastruianaco, who were playing in front of their home at No. 317, got between the duelists and Christina fell.

Tony Luciano, who lives at 321 East 111th Street, picked up the child and ran to a drug store at 110 Street and Second Avenue, while the combatants fled, one running north on Second Avenue, while the other, brushing past the injured girl's sister, disappeared in a tenement at No. 321.

Dr. Richards of the Harlem Hospital found the younger child had been shot in the upper part of the spine, and probably would die. The police reserves of the East 104th Street Station were called out, but after surrounding the block and searching the tenements they were unable to find a trace of the men.

PEARY LECTURES IN VIENNA.

Gold Medal Given to Him—Emperor to Receive Him To-morrow.

VIENNA, May 18.—Commander Robert E. Peary's lecture here to-night was attended by the Cabinent Ministers and many persons prominent in Austrian life. At the close of the lecture the gold medal of the Imperial Geographical Society was presented to the Commander, and a banquet was given in his honor.

Commander Peary will go to Budapest to-morrow, and on Friday he will be received in audience by the Emperor, who has signified his extreme pleasure at the prospect of meeting the explorer.

COMET GAZERS SEE FLASHES

And Then at 2:30 A. M. the Comet's Tail, 100 Degrees Long, 10 Degrees Wide.

EARLIER LIGHTS AURORAL

Seen in the Northeastern Sky by Miss Proctor and Other Visitors to the Times Tower.

FIRST CONTACT UNSEEN

WATCHERS AT ALL HOTELS

Throngs Gather on the Roofs in the Hope of Seeing Phenomena—East Side Excited.

Speeding by the earth at a rate which would have carried it from this city to Chicago in about thirty seconds and across the continent in just six seconds over a minute, Halley's comet brushed the earth with its long spreading tail last night, and few of the thousands of sky gazers who thronged Broadway, the hotel roofs, the Times tower, the river bridges, Riverside Drive, and the ferry boats were any the wiser. The earth is supposed to have entered the tail at a point 15,000,000 miles from the comet's head at 10:50 P. M., and to have finished the transit of a million miles about 5 o'clock this morning. The tail and the earth passed each other at a joint speed of forty-three miles a second.

Glimpse of the Tail at 2:30 This Morning.

Between 10:30 and 11:30 P. M. Miss Mary Proctor, the astronomer, and the other watchers on the top of THE TIMES tower saw what appeared to be auroral flashes in the northeastern sky. Miss Proctor remained on watch all night, and at 2:30 this morning, just after the moon had set, discovered a band of light 100 degrees in length stretching from the horizon at the point of sunrise up through the great square of Pegasus and Aquarius to Aquila.

At its widest part, just beneath the first magnitude star, Altair, the width of the band was about ten degrees, and throughout its length it had a brilliance equal to that of the Milky Way, near which it terminated. The path of this band of light was very nearly that along which the comet was last seen and Miss Proctor was convinced that it was the outer boundary of the tail through which the earth was passing. The band of light was still there at 3 o'clock this morning.

Other watchers who have seen the comet and its tail repeatedly during the last two weeks, confirmed Miss Proctor's view.

Unseen by Prof. Jacoby.

Prof. Harold Jacoby, Rutherfurd Professor of Astronomy of Columbia University, stood out on Riverside Drive from 10:30 o'clock until midnight watching for phenomena. At midnight he concluded there would be none, and remarked:

"The fact that the comet's tail has not been visible at the time of its contact with the earth, which must now be chiefly past, is a vindication for the general belief of astronomers that the tail is so thin that its presence near us is undetectable. The wonder of the comet then becomes why so thin and sinuous a body as its tail can be seen so brightly when off in distant space."

It seemed as if everybody was out to see what could be seen. The Times tower proved a vantage point from which an excellent view of the northeastern sky could be had. Early in the evening it was thronged with watchers, among them Miss Mary Proctor, who arrived shortly before 10:15 o'clock, and instantly was surrounded by a group of eager inquirers.

Miss Proctor patiently explained for fifteen minutes what might be expected and what she hoped to see, and then there came what seemed to be the first manifestation of the comet's nearness to us. It was a light auroral glow and was observed at exactly 10:30 o'clock. It appeared in the northeastern sky, directly over the Queensboro Bridge, and lasted only for an instant.

Then for an hour, however, came apparent intermittent flashes, sometimes of white and some times of a ruddy hue. The light flared up from beneath a cloud and then was gone.

Once or twice, however, the flashes took definite shape and presented an unusual spectacle of color combinations. One of these which Miss Proctor noted, she described as "resembling an arch of glowing white surmounted by a crest of crimson."

The display occurred above a low lying bank of mist and rose to about five degrees above this. It was not of any considerable breadth, however, and resembled more a splash of color against the dark background of the sky than a wide strip of light.

The light of the moon, which shone brilliantly, interfered seriously with the observations. Its rays dulled possible electrical displays, and what might have been brilliant flashes appeared dull under the moon's counter glamour.

Miss Proctor described the flashes as arcs of fire hovering over the darkness. Some of them arose, fanlike in shape, rays of white light radiating upward to the arc's edge, where a crimson flash completed the effect. The flashes were intermittent between 10:30 and 11:30 o'clock, when they ceased, and the most keen-sighted watchers were unable to catch another glimpse of them.

Aurora Due to Sun Spots.

It is possible that these flashes were due to sun spots, the discovery of which was reported from various observatories yesterday afternoon. The Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., reported an auroral display at 9:30 last night, which allowing for an hours difference in time coincides with its appearance here as seen from the Times Tower. The Yerkes astronomers attribute the display to the new sun spots, not the comet. A familiar effect of sun spots is electrical disturbances in the earth's atmosphere.

On Riverside Drive, near Seventy-sixth Street, where Prof. Jacoby was making his observations, several commented on this more brilliantly lighted portion of the sky.

"The trouble with those folks," said Prof. Jacoby, "is that they don't look at their sky often enough. It's just so every time the moon is full or nearly full, and it has been just so for several nights past."

Astronomer Disappointed.

Prof. Jacoby did not go out less unexpectant than the populace in general that is not skilled in the lore of orbits and gravities and counterpulling astral forces He expected results, and was rather disappointed that there were no visible phenomena.

At 10 o'clock a hurry call from Larchmont arrived over the telephone at Prof. Jacoby's residence, notifying him that peculiar auroral flashes were visible along the eastern horizon.

"Yes," he remarked, "that's exactly where the offshore lighthouses cast their glimmer out to sea at regular intervals. That observer, too, isn't a night hawk in sky parlance. Perhaps he'll learn by the time the next comet comes along."

The crowd that was dense along the bridges and Riverside Drive at 10 o'clock began to dwindle at 11, and was pretty well in doors by midnight. With café and hotel parties, however, it was different. To them it was comet night, and whatever the comet might do for the magnetic pole, and the telegraph wires, and the atmosphere there was no doubt about its influence on the flavor of viands. It made them good, and the music that went with them delicious, even better than on New Year's eve, which comes once a year instead of only once a life time.

Prof. Jacoby enjoyed his comet dinner with professional friends at the club house of the Century Association, 7 West Forty-third Street. At 9:30 o'clock he left the club for his home, where he had an appointment with friends and newspaper reporters.

Prof. Jacoby talked of the passing of a comet while he figured that the earth was experiencing whatever it was going to of this one.

Old Prints of the Comet.

"I have been looking up the old prints of Halley's comet," he said, "for it would be mighty interesting to know just how much the visitor has lost in girth since it was here in 1835. It's a pity photography wasn't invented then.

"All these particles that are swept back from the comet into its tail must surely be lost to it forever. I can't see how it can ever recover them, and since they are thus lost, the comet must diminish in size on each of its visits, so that we can speculate as to a time when it will finally break up in meteoric shower.

"Perhaps there'll be a chance for some one to figure out that matter next time it makes a visit, and then establish himself securely in fame by a prophecy as forceful as that which links the name of this particular visitor with Halley.

"Nobody can do it now, because he can't compare photographs with the showing made in 1835. All that were made then were hand drawings, and after the hand drawings had been reproduced for publication in the rather poor astronomical periodicals of the period they lost much of their value for purposes of measurement.

"All I can say is that from those drawings the comet does not look materially different in 1910 from what it did in 1835. And that brings up an interesting question about that tremendously long tail. If the comet is shedding its core out into that filmy veil all the way through its journey it is hard to figure how it could last so long as it has, with its many periodic returns, never materially more inspiring than at present.

"As we figure from that, and other data about it, that it is perfectly probable comets grow tails only within this particular solar system. A tailless comet off in space on the far end of its orbit is perfectly possible to imagine. When we first locate them they are only a blur. There is no tail, and then the tail begins to grow, increasing constantly as the sun is approached. Maybe, then, the sun makes the tail by making the comet head boil with its heat, or driving the particles off by the friction of its rays.

"To-night the comet parties, except those in the cafés, were disappointed. But to-morrow night they ought not to fare so badly, and after that there should surely be in the western sky each night after sunset a sight glorious enough to satisfy the most fastidious. I shall be keenly interested in observing what the populace does when the comet in its real glory is finally revealed to them."

Gazers All On Roofs.

The streets of New York, except for Riverside Drive and Grand Street, gave little evidence last night that a million or so sky-gazers here were taking a lively interest in the heavens. Had it not been for the frequent glances skyward of pedestrians and clusters of men and women here and there at corners, any one who happened to know nothing about the passage of the earth through the tail of the comet would have detected little of interest in the street throngs.

The reason for this was simple enough. There was no special place in the city where the view of the sky was much better than another, except, of course, on the roof tops. The result was that most of the consistent sky-gazers were not in the streets, but on the roofs of their apartment houses or hotels.

Of course there was comet talk on every hand, in streets and hotels, street cars, and in the homes. Many had thought that Riverside Drive would be crowded early with sky gazers. Some of the astronomers had suggested in the newspapers that the Drive would be an excellent place to witness any atmospheric phenomena which might occur. But the Drive through most of its length was far from crowded.

About 9:15 o'clock the sky gazers on the Drive were put to rout by a sprinkle of rain. It wasn't much, but dark clouds had obscured the stars over New Jersey way, and it looked as though a real rain storm were coming. In a few minutes the Drive was almost deserted. But the patter of rain soon passed, and a few of the sky gazers returned to wait for the "crucial hour," as some of them chose to call it.

In the vicinity of Grant's Tomb most of the benches were occupied, after the sprinkle of rain, until midnight. The watchers there were not disappointed, for most of them had not expected to see anything except an average Spring starlight night. Central Park also was visited during the evening by hundreds of sky gazers.

In the early hours of this morning hundreds of men and women who had attended comet parties were to be seen on their way home, still casting furtive glances at the sky as though half expecting to see something unusual before they retired.

The lower east side was probably the liveliest section of the city. All along Grand Street, especially, there was a throng of excitable foreigners, chatting about the comet in their native tongues and gazing at the sky.

Late in the evening some small boys climbed to the roof of 401 Grand Street and sent up a toy balloon with a red light attached. It shot skyward and began drifting eastward at a rapid rate.

"There is the comet!" some one in the street shouted, and in an instant hundreds had taken up the cry, and were eagerly pointing to the speck of light drifting across the sky. On the Williamsburg Bridge some 20,000 people had gathered to watch for whatever phenomena there might be. The bridge crowd soon caught sight of the balloon, and across the bridge ran the shout:

"There is the comet, look!" They were still looking and pointing when the toy balloon passed on out of sight.

Some of the school teachers on the lower east side had a busy time yesterday keeping the children in order. Many of the little ones, especially the foreign born, were sure that the end of the world was imminent. In one of the lower grade classes in Public School 110, at 18 Cannon Street, a photographer took a flash light photograph in the afternoon. The flash so frightened the youngsters that the Principal had to help the teachers quiet them.

About 8:30 o'clock there was a demonstration in front of Old St. Patrick's Cathedral in Mott Street, near Prince. A long procession of Italian children, clad in white, filed past the church chanting the Litany of the Blessed Virgin. Policeman Kirk, on duty there, wanted to know what it was all about. A man who walked at the head of the procession brushed him aside and pointed at the sky. When the procession had passed the church it turned and the children and their elders knelt in front of the old sanctuary and prayed. After awhile other policemen arrived, and they induced the Italians to return to their homes.

At midnight policemen went through Central Park and drove out the throngs. The exodus at the Fifty-ninth Street entrance caused a jam in the Park circle and about 4,000 people gathered there. For the most part they stayed waiting to see the comet. "Telescope Tom," who has for years been seen at the corner of Twenty-third Street and Fifth Avenue and at the Circle with a telescope, set his apparatus in the Circle and did a land office business.

Chinatown didn't take much stock in the end-of-the-world business. No Chinese astronomer had predicted any such dire fate for the world, and accordingly the residents there went about their business as usual.

Hundreds of comet watchers crowded the roofs of the hotels waiting for the first glimpse of the tail end of the celestial visitor. The majority of the hotels ran express elevators to the roof, beginning at 10 o'clock, and many incidents enlivened the night's vigil.

While several hundred men and women were gazing at the sky from the roof of the Waldorf-Astoria, a flashlight was set off unawares by a photographer. The brilliant flash of light and the noise made by the explosion caused the watchers to think that the crack of doom had really arrived, and there was much excitement for a few moments.

Several women screamed as the blinding flash lit up the roof, but their fears were quickly appeased when the cause of the sudden flash was made known.

The sun parlor on the roof of the Waldorf presented a strange scene at midnight. While the throng of watchers outside were being supplemented by the after-theatre crowds, attention was directed to the cozy interior of the sun parlor, for there, unmindful of what might happen, were women playing bridge. Six tables were filled, and the players continued their game until long after midnight.

The roof was illuminated by electric torquiers, and gilt chairs were used for the accommodation of the guests, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel, Jr., who recently returned from their honeymoon trip; Sir Herbert and Miss Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Watterson, Baron von Bleichroder, Joseph Cannon, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and many others.

A huge telescope was operated in the centre of the roof, and there the watchers stood in line to get a peep at anything that the starry firmament had to offer.

The throng was considerably increased when 200 members of the National Association of Manufacturers, with their wives, came up after their dinner. "Uncle Joe" Cannon, with a big black cigar between his lips, seemed to enjoy the scene.

A large telescope swept the sky from the roof of the Hotel Manhattan, and scores of guests and patrons of the hotel assembled on the roof before 11 o'clock. A number of comet dinner parties were given here, and, at midnight the hotel was practically deserted, for everybody was on the roof.

There were throngs on the roof of the Astor and Knickerbocker by 11 o'clock, and folks who supped after the theatre made a rush to get there before the stroke of 12. Four express elevators were taxed to their utmost at the Astor between 11 and 12 o'clock, and all sorts of glasses were brought into use.

The exodus to the roof of the Plaza began about 10 o'clock, and when the watchers were not scanning the sky they were inspecting the wireless telegraph station.

It was generally agreed by the watchers on the roof of the St. Regis and Gotham that the earth was passing through the comet's tail without any visible fuss. There was a large gathering atop the St. Regis, and over at the Gotham the roof was turned into a sort of night camp, with wigwams and tepees, which added to the picturesque setting of the roof.

The Netherland and Savoy had their quota of watchers on the roof, and scores of watchers enjoyed the occasion on the roofs of the Majestic and Ansonia uptown. A meteor luncheon was served on the roof of the Wolcott, and many cosy corners were fitted up beforehand, with soft pillows, easy chairs, and couches, which were placed in convenient angles for the watch parties.

There was a merry party atop the Hoffman House after 11 o'clock. The Holland House had its share of watchers, and the elevators at the Belmont raced up and down for the accommodation of the watchers.

The comet received attention at several of the theatres last night, when it was mentioned in some way or other by singers in the musical shows. De Wolf Hopper called attention to the projected roof parties in his usual curtain speech, and acknowledged that he and his associates intended to go on the roof themselves. At the Astor Theatre the house staff, their friends, and several of the actors from "Seven Days" went to the roof of the theatre after the performance and scanned the heavens with opera glasses.

NO RESULTS AT YERKES.

Aurora Lights Seen, but They Are Attributed to the New Sun Spots.

Special to The New York Times.

YERKES OBSERVATORY, WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Thursday, May 19.—"We have passed through the comet's tail and we are no wiser than we were before."

Prof. Frost, head of Yerkes Observatory, thus summarized the results of the night's observations at 1 o'clock this morning.

"The net result," he added, "is an infinitesimal quantity of hydrocarbons absorbed by the earth's atmosphere from the comet's tail. That will sift down gradually to the ground, but the amount is too small to be noticed."

"No result," was the report turned in by each of the observers in the different laboratories and observatories.

"I've quit," said Prof. S. A. Mitchell of Columbia University at 12:30 A. M. "We are more than half way through now, and if anything were going to happen it would have happened by now."

A brilliant display of auroras, followed by the passage of several meteors, led to the belief by amateur observers that positive effects of the comet's tail were about to be shown.

"There will be little to tell about this night," said Prof. S. W. Burnham, Dean of the Yerkes Observatory staff. "These auroras and meteors are an unfortunate occurrence to-night. They will make people think the comet is responsible for them."

At midnight the auroras and meteors instead of increasing had ceased altogether to appear.

Frederick Slocum, solar photographer of the observatory, appeared on the balcony of the dome and took a last look.

"The auroras have stopped," he said. "They probably had something to do with sun spots although those photographed yesterday were in no way remarkable."

The work of preparation has been going on at the big observatory on Lake Geneva for months. The capacity of the observatory for recording phenomena has been doubled. Nearly 100 instruments were in operation during the transit.

Trees about the grounds of Yerkes Observatory were felled ruthlessly to-day to give the watchers a clean sweep of the horizon. The astronomers, led by Prof. E. B. Frost, put the last touches on the work of preparation for observing the effect on the earth's atmosphere of the passage through the comet's tail.

As the earth passed through the tail of Halley's comet the astronomers obtained photographs and accurate records of meteorite phenomena and varying heavenly illumination under atmospheric conditions nearly perfect for work with camera and telescope. The pictures and data are said to be of unusual value, and may develop scientific information and theories of unexpected importance. Prof. Edward E. Barnard, an authority on comets, was much pleased with the result of his observations, which have extended over forty-eight hours almost without interruption.

A painstaking search was made through the tail of the comet for spots where illumination might be lacking. Such lack of illumination, it was said, might aid greatly in determining the nature of the glow that followed the comet's head.

"The passing of the comet," said Prof. Barnard, "will greatly enrich science. I consider the negative phenomena observed to-night of as great value to science as positive phenomena."

According to first computations, from observations made here, the earth entered the million-mile breadth of tail at a combined speed of earth and tail of slightly more than forty-six miles a second. At this rate, the assembled scientists agreed that the passage would occupy a little more than five hours.

Sixteen cameras, especially constructed for photographing the sky, and fourteen telescopes were trained from this point on the passage of the comet's tail.

The party at the observatory included the following: Prof. S. A. Mitchell of Columbia University, Prof. Edwin B. Frost, Prof. Sherburne W. Burnham, Prof. Edward E. Barnard, Prof. John A. Parkhurst, Prof. S. B. Barrett, Prof. Frederick Slocum, Oliver J. Lee, and Mary L. Calvert. These were assisted in their observations by seven student members of the Yerkes Observatory staff.

The battery of cameras covered every visible foot of sky, and hundreds of plates were exposed. A number of the cameras were fixed on an axis, revolving with extreme slowness, with lenses constantly on the comet's tail.

An opportunity for a last morning glimpse of the comet was given by the breaking up of the clouds early to-day. The tail was found by Prof. Barnard to be narrower than it has appeared before, denser, and of more pronounced luminosity, being visible higher up in the heavens some time after the lightening of the rim of the horizon concealed the lower part from view.

"The tail is less than 1,000,000 miles in width now," said Prof. Barnard. "We will enter it at the rate of forty-five miles a second. We ought to get through in about five hours."

The photographs taken by Prof. Barnard show the tail with well defined edges and an absence of filaments and streamers of gas such as have distinguished former photographs.

HAZE IN LONDON HIDES THE COMET

But English Astronomers Did Not Think There Would Be Much to See.

TIME OF CONTACT DOUBTFUL

Tail's Curvature and Varying Direction Make It Uncertain—Sir Robert Ball's View.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, May 19.—At 3 o'clock this morning a thick haze overspreads the sky, and the chances of observation of Halley's comet in the London district are extremely slim. Up to the present, at any rate, London is unconscious of any contact with the much-talked-of tail.

Sir Robert Ball telegraphed from Cambridge observatory last night to The Daily Mail as follows:

"The passage of Halley's comet across the sun takes place to-morrow (Thursday) morning between 3:30 and 4:30, (10:30 to 11:30 P. M. Wednesday, New York time.) During that time the tail of the comet will be turned in the direction of the earth, and we may pass through it, but it is very doubtful if any unusual phenomenon will be noticed."

At Greenwich Observatory it was stated yesterday that the comet would be still approaching the earth at 3:30 this (Thursday) morning, at about which hour it would be passing between the earth and the sun. It would not reach its nearest point to the earth till some hours later. The tail has a certain amount of curvature, and the direction varies, so that it cannot be stated whether the tail of the comet will pass across the earth earlier or later than the time of its nearest approach.

Laymen who thought of staying up till 4 o'clock this morning in order to observe what would happen when the earth passes through the comet's tail were warned that they would be unlikely to be rewarded even to the slight extent of seeing a faint luminosity in the sky, in England at any rate.

Greenwich Observatory will look out for traces of luminosity due to the tail of the comet and for meteors or shooting stars, but the theories as to the comet's tail which are held there do not lead the astronomers to expect that there will be any of the latter.

Walter Maunder, telephoning from Greenwich Observatory at midnight, said the outlook for observing the comet was unfavorable, for the sky was hazy and the upper atmosphere misty.

British astronomers will probably have their best chance of observing the comet next Saturday evening.

BERLIN COMET PICNICS

And All-Night Steamship Excursions—Comet Hats and Umbrellas.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 18.—Countless "comet picnics" have been organized for to-night, some to Kreuzberg Hill, an eminence on the southern outskirts of this city, and others to the forest of Grunewald, lying between Berlin and Potsdam.

Many thousands of persons will congregate in the parks, all the open-air restaurants have laid in large stores of provisions, and special steamship excursions on the lakes around Berlin, starting at midnight and lasting till 6 in the morning, have been organized.

Germany, indeed, is transformed into one large camp of comet seekers. Comet hats for women, with mother-of-pearl hatpins shaped like comets; comet walking sticks, umbrellas, textile goods, and brands of spirits are on sale.

RUSH TO ALPINE HEIGHTS.

Comet Dances at Swiss Hotels—A Midnight Balloon Ascent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 18.—American visitors have to-day been heading a rush to the highest Alpine resorts in the funicular cars in order to view the comet. Many private comet dances are to be given at the hotels, starting at midnight. Most of the hotels and restaurants will keep open all night.

The Swiss Aero Club has arranged a midnight balloon ascent from Lausanne. The balloon will carry two Geneva astronomers and their instruments.

The weather is cloudy.

NIGHT SERVICES IN RUSSIA.

Continuous Prayers for the Nervous—Dances for Others.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 18.—Though the newspapers publish reassuring articles, the passage through the tail of Halley's comet causes considerable fear.

Many persons have decided to pass to-night in churches, where continuous prayers have been ordered.

Epicureans have arranged dances and festivities with French chansonettes for to-night.

ALARM ON THE RAND.

Woman Living in a Mine—A Bricked-Up Chamber Advertised.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, May 19.—A telegram to The Daily Mail from Johannesburg says that despite reassuring statements from the local observatory there is an extraordinary amount of nervousness on the Rand regarding the passage of the earth through the tail of Halley's comet.

The lower class foreign population and the poorer Dutch and colored people are particularly anxious and seem to anticipate some disaster. The following advertisement appears in a local paper:

> Gentleman having secured several cylinders of oxygen and having bricked up a capacious room wishes to meet others who would share the expenses for Wednesday night. Numbers strictly limited.

It is stated that the wife of a prominent mine manager is living in a special chamber at the bottom of a mine until the passage through the comet is over.

FINE PHOTOGRAPHS OBTAINED.

One, Taken in India, Shows Evidence of Disturbance in Comet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, May 19.—The Times states that a series of splendid photographs of Halley's comet was obtained with a Reynolds reflecting telescope at the Helnan Observatory in Egypt, and the photographs have been sent to the Royal Astronomical Society. They quite recall the illustrations of the great comet of 1811, which appear in so many textbooks, there being a vividly bright nucleus enveloped in a tail of parabolic outline.

Mr. Evershed obtained a beautiful photograph of the comet on April 22 with a nine-inch reflector at the Kodaikanal Observatory in Madras. This strongly resembles some of the photographs of Morehouse's comet obtained in the Autumn of 1908. The nucleus is surrounded by a parabolic envelope, while from it radiate a number of streamers in the form of a fan.

These show evidence of strong disturbing action, several of them being bent, and one, in particular, lying athwart the others and having two remarkable bends in it suggestive of some violent disruption. These features do not seem to have been so easy to see as to photograph, a sketch made in Mexico on April 20 merely showing what Hinks described as a hairpin form of tail enveloping the nucleus and receding from it in two streamers with a dark space between. There was no trace of the complicated structure revealed by the photograph.

350 ASTRONOMERS KEEP VIGIL.

And 1,000 Telescopes Scan Heavens from Our Many Observatories.

Special to The New York Times.

YERKES OBSERVATORY, Williams Bay, Wis., May 18.—Some 350 astronomers kept an all-night vigil to-night throughout the United States and over 1,000 telescopes were directed at the sky from the Government and university observatories, without taking into account the thousands of unofficial observers who watched for the tail of the comet during the hours of darkness. There are 107 observatories in the United States, which are recognized by the international registry, and 318 astronomers are on their official staffs.

The United States leads the world in the number of its observatories. Its nearest competitor is England, with 93 recognized observatories. Germany has 52, and France 51. On this continent Harvard University leads with an observatory staff of 44. The United States Naval Observatory at Washington is second with a staff of 25 astronomers. Lick Observatory is third with a staff of 16, and the fourth is the Observatory of Tacubaya in Mexico, which has a staff of 14, and operates 12 principal instruments.

Among women's colleges in this country the Wellesley observatory ranks first with a staff of four astronomers and nine major instruments. Smith, Mount Holyoke, and Vassar have each three instructors in astronomy.

Four special expeditions for the observation of the transit of the comet across the sun's disk are in the South Sea Islands. The principal astronomical camp is that of Prof. Ferdinand Elliman on Diamond Head in the harbor of Honolulu. Prof. Elliman is also a member of the staff of the Carnegie Solar observatory at Mount Wilson. His apparatus consists of a six-photographic telescope, a small refractor, and spectroscopic instuments.

Prof. H. C. Lord of the Ohio State University is established on the southwest slope of the island of Hawaii. Prof. Lord is accompanied by Prof. E. F. Coddington of the Ohio institution. The expedition is specially equipped with portable dark rooms and photographic apparatus.

Francis McLean of the McLean Observatory of Tunbridge Wells, England, is established with a corps of assistants in Tasmania. The McLean expedition is privately financed, with a view to the establishment of a permanent observatory in the South Seas.

Prof. Milan Stefanik of the Observatory of Meudon, Paris, France, is in charge of an astronomical camp in Tahiti. The Stefanik expedition was sent out by the French Government, and is the only Government expedition in the field for the observation of the transit.

The Elliman expedition is financed by the Astronomical Society of America. The others are privately supported.

MYSTERIOUS MISSILE FALLS.

Drops Into a Kansas Office and Was Hot When It Fell.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 18.—A missile, thought to have been of meteoric origin, was found this morning in the office of J. W. Going, a real estate agent at Jackson and Seventh Streets, Topeka, Kan. Washburn College authorities, however, say that it did not come from Halley's comet. It was hot when it fell.

SOUTHERN NEGROES IN A COMET FRENZY

All-Night Services Held in Churches and Many Refuse to Work Longer.

MINERS STAY ON GROUND

Steerage Passengers on Liner Pray for Safety After Seeing the Visitor—Children Quit Schools.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 18.—The negroes of Asheville were in a state of frenzy to-night, believing that the end of the world was at hand and that when the earth passed through the tail of Halley's comet time and space would be no more.

The negroes held religious services all over the city to-night. Their prayers and pleadings could be heard for several blocks. Standing room only was to be had at their churches.

Crimes among the negro population, according to police court records, has slumped remarkably in the last few days. Nor could a negro be hired for "love or money," for they said there would be no more paydays.

Several hundred persons went to Overlook Mountain, 1,500 feet above the city, to-night, armed with glasses and taking along early breakfasts. They intended to see the world through the tail of the comet. The United States Weather Bureau has established a station on a high mountain here to observe phenomena.

STANFORD, Ky., May 18.—Scores of negroes professed salvation at all-night services held in their churches here last night to prepare themselves for whatever might happen when the earth passed through the comet's tail to-day.

Fields are practically denuded of farm hands to-day, for negroes have refused to work and are flocking into town.

MINERS REFUSE TO WORK.

Foreigners Want to be Above Ground When World Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., May 18.—Several thousand mine workers of the anthracite region, chiefly foreigners, refused to enter the mines to-day because they had a superstitious fear that the earth would be destroyed when enveloped in the tail of the comet to-night.

Efforts of the English-speaking miners to get them to go to work were futile, and they said that if the world came to an end they wanted to be on the surface, where they could see, instead of in the depths of the mines. A number of them spent most of the day in prayer, and many of them were in a condition of great fear and nervousness. A number of collieries were so short handed that they had to shut down for the day.

DENVER, May 18.—Many foreign miners employed on the day shifts of the Leadville and Cripple Creek mines remained under ground to-night to avoid possible contact with the tail of Halley's comet.

BRAZIL, Ind., May 18.—Many foreign coal miners drew all the money that was coming to them to-day, fearing that the passage of the earth through the comet's tail would destroy the world. To-night the men spent their money lavishly for things that could be enjoyed quickly.

PORTO RICANS CONFESS.

Many Parade Streets Carrying Candles and Chanting Prayers.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, May 18.—Fearing disastrous consequences from the comet, hundreds of Porto Ricans paraded the streets of San Juan and other towns in Porto Rico last night carrying candles and chanting prayers. Many of them also spent much time in the confessionals.

A large number of workmen failed to report to-day at the tobacco factories and plantations, and the pineapple shipments have been curtailed because the laborers have refused to work.

COMET MADE VOYAGERS PRAY.

Alarm Among Steerage Passengers Over Reports of the Visitor.

The comet was the one absorbing topic of conversation in steerage and cabin on the Fabre liner Germania during the voyage, which ended here yesterday. The Germania came from Marseilles, Naples, and Palermo with 10 cabin and 370 steerage passengers. She left the latter port, and Capt. Boulak reports that the comet was visible every clear night of the voyage.

During the first part of the voyage the steerage passengers, most of whom were Italians, were disturbed over the appearance of the comet. On the night when it was seen at its best they became greatly excited. Crucifixes were much in evidence, and more than one group could be seen on deck praying loudly for deliverance from the evil which they believed was bound to follow the coming of the celestial visitor.

In some way word got about among them that the great danger was to come when the tail of the comet hit the earth. Prayers were redoubled. All the third-class passengers seemed principally to be concerned in reaching land before the comet approached the earth. They were rejoicing yesterday as the Germania came up the bay.

FOREIGNERS IN ALARM.

Some Get So Frightened That They Fall on Their Knees in the Street.

To many of the superstitious foreigners living here and in near-by towns yesterday was a trying day. In spite of the messages of assurance from astronomers all over the country, published both in the American newspapers and those printed in foreign languages, hundreds of the foreign-born could not get over the feeling that something dreadful was going to happen when the earth encountered the tail of the comet. In several instances their pent-up excitement manifested itself.

In the lower part of the city in the districts where foreigners dwell there were a few scares to enliven the evening. At Mulberry and Broome Streets there was some excitement. Twenty or more Italians were standing there looking at the sky when they discerned what appeared to be a ball of fire shoot out from behind some fleecy clouds. The Italians yelled with fright, and several of them fell on their knees. Their shouting attracted other Italians of the neighborhood, and in a few minutes several hundred foreigners were at the corner watching the light.

Suddenly the ball seemed to burst and smaller balls of fire began falling rapidly toward the watchers. Instantly many of the Italians began praying for deliverance. Some of them called aloud to their patron saints.

There were a few in the crowd, however, who kept their nerve. They found that the little balls of fire, which their compatriots thought were pieces of the comet, were in reality small pieces of a burning toy balloon. The knowing ones shouted to their companions, explaining what the fiery specks were, and while they were still yelling the police arrived and dispersed the crowd.

Many foreigners living at Constable Hook, Bergen Hook, and Bergen Point were badly scared over the comet. Most of them refused to work yesterday, and many spent the day offering prayers in the churches for deliverance from disaster. Every Italian employed by the Ten Broeck, Morse, and Eddy Companies of contractors laid down their tools in the morning, believing that the end of the world was about to arrive, and that they must spend their time in church.

SOME DRIVEN TO SUICIDE.

Others Become Temporarily Insane from Brooding Over Comet.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The approach of the comet affected Chicago people in divers ways. Some it drove temporarily and harmlessly insane, and others developed suicidal mania.

Blanche Covington made up her mind that there was no escape from the comet and that it would kill everybody in Chicago. She had difficulty in convincing her friends, but this did not change her own opinion. Dreading the suffering that she might have to undergo she locked herself in a room and turned on the gas. Mrs. Marie Welch called a policeman, and with his aid Miss Covington was rescued.

Fear of the comet is believed to have driven Mrs. Sophia Houge, 90 years old, insane. She committed suicide to-day by inhaling illuminating gas.

Samuel Popowski declared that the tail of the comet was striking him all the time, and that it was beating him into shreds. City Physician Baldwin pronounced him insane.

Brooding over the comet brought on an attack of religious frenzy in a woman living on the northwest side of the city yesterday afternoon. She was on her way downtown in a street car, when she suddenly rose to her feet, shouting and gesticulating wildly.

"Glory, glory, glory!" she cried. "Get down on your knees, you sinners, and pray the Lord to forgive you, for this is the end of the world."

Then she sought to force men and women in the car to get down on the floor and pray. A policeman was called, and the woman was taken to the station, where she was unable to give her name.

COLORED LIGHTS AT LILLE.

Pink and Violet—No Phenomena Observed at Paris.

PARIS, Thursday, May 19.—A dispatch from Lille says that pink and violet lights were observed in the sky last evening.

The Paris Observatory reports that up to 3 o'clock this morning the observer had not noted the earth's passage through the tail of Halley's comet.

No phenomena were perceptible in Paris during the night.

THUNDER SCARES BOSTON.

Sudden Darkening of Skies Gives Nervous Ones a Shock.

BOSTON, May 18.—A sudden boom of thunder followed immediately by the darkening of the sky and a heavy downpour of rain gave nervous folk who were anticipating strange happenings from the approach of the comet a mild shock at sunset to-night, but the scare was quickly over.

After the shower the sky, which had been obscured by clouds all day, was clear at intervals, but the moonlight shut off all observations of the comet's tail.

MEXICANS PRAY, THEN DANCE.

Religious Ceremonies Abandoned When No Catastrophe Occurs.

EL PASO, May 18.—Hundreds of Mexicans from villages along the border gathered about crucifixes erected on the hills to-night awaiting the appearance of Halley's comet, which they feared would destroy the world.

For ten days superstitious Mexicans have sought to avert the impending disaster with music, incantations, and weird ceremonies, and many have spent day and night in prayer. Hundreds have sought refuge in caves and cañons in the mountains.

As the hours passed without catastrophe dancing and feasting replaced the religious ceremonies.

COMET RECONCILES THEM.

Wife Who Left Home on May 7, in Alarm, Sends for Her Husband.

Possible fear of the comet, together with the coincidental occurrence of her twenty-second birthday, is credited by friends of Mrs. Gertrude Sanders of 84 Brown Place, Jersey City, with bringing her back to her home last night, after she had been missing from there since May 7.

At that time Mrs. Sanders, after quarreling with her husband, James Sanders, a builder, for compliments which, she said, he had paid her sister at a social gathering on the evening before, went away from her home after breakfast, leaving a note for him in which she told him not to worry, as she could earn her own living. Since then Mr. Sanders, who had permitted her to grow jealous and to quarrel merely as a jest, has offered $1,000 for information leading to her recovery.

Last night Mrs. Sanders telephoned to him from New York, asking him to meet her at a boarding house in West Thirty-fifth Street, where she said she had been staying since she left home. He went there, and found her in a serious nervous state through worry, but eager to be reconciled with him on her twenty-second birthday, which some persons told her might be the last day she or anybody else would have on earth. Mr. Sanders reported finding her to the Jersey City police through his partner, John Carlson.

TAIL APPEARS LONGER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., May 18.—This was the first real clear morning here in about two weeks. From 1 o'clock until nearly 3:30 the tail of Halley's comet was visible and from 2 to 3 it was a striking object. It was brighter than any portion of the Milky Way and could be traced for a distance of 107 degrees. Its greatest width was about five to six degrees.

It was slightly convex to the north and fairly well defined at its edges. No condensation or other irregularity was seen in it.

The head was too close to the sun to be seen even in a telescope.

E. E. BARNARD,
Yerkes Observatory.

TAUNTON, Mass., May 18.—An increase of 30 degrees in the length of the tail of Halley's comet within twenty-four hours was reported to-day by the Rev. Joel Hastings Metcalf, the astronomer of this city. The tail of the comet had changed this morning so that it was parallel with the earth's ecliptic. Whereas the tail yesterday was 90 degrees in length, this morning it was 120 degrees long.

WEATHER BALLOONS ALOFT.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., May 18.—In order to determine whether the upper atmosphere is in any way affected by the passage of the earth through the tail of Halley's comet the Blue Hill Observatory in Hyde Park sent up this afternoon at 5 o'clock a sonder balloon to record weather conditions eight or ten miles above the earth.

Simultaneously ascensions will be made from about thirty other places in the world, but the only other place in the United States where a like experiment is to be made is Omaha, Neb. Among the European cities designated for experiments are Manchester, England, Berlin, Hamburg, and Strasburg.

These sonder balloons, which are only about six inches in diameter, carry instruments that record the height and the temperature up to ten miles or more. They also carry a parachute, to which the delicate instruments are attached, and when the balloon, which is filled with hydrogen gas, explodes the parachute brings them safely to earth. There is a message in the basket stating that the finder will receive a reward if he sends the instruments to Prof. Rotch at the observatory. The experts plan to remain in this city until Saturday, and one balloon a day will be sent up.

BALLOON OFF TO EXPLORE.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 18.—A balloon left St. Louis to-night to explore the comet's tail. Prof. George O. James of Washington University led the expedition, with Capt. John Berry, a veteran pilot, as the guide. Reporters accompanied them. The balloon is the St. Louis III., the property of the St. Louis Aero Club, which placed it at the disposal of the expedition.

The balloon was sighted at St. Charles, Mo., 26 miles from St. Louis, at 7:10 o'clock to-night.

"The most I expect in the way of positive results," said Prof. James before ascending, "is a faint auroral display or a hazy illumination spread over the heavens."

The equipment in the balloon consists of an aneroid barometer, a thermometer, and the finder of a telescope. Enough ballast for remaining up all night if necessary is carried, but it is planned to make a landing about midnight.

24 HOUR ST. LOUIS

A TRAIN FOR EVERYBODY

Convenience, comfort, time and cost are essential considerations in travel. For the business man the fastest train with its additional appointments is a necessity. To the tourist, traveling for pleasure, or the family, the slower train, with the same comforts and conveniences of first-class railway travel, appeals.

The Pennsylvania Railroad trains between New York and the western cities accommodate all classes.

The busy man uses the "Pennsylvania Special" to and from Chicago because its schedule does not interfere with office work. To St. Louis he uses "The 24-Hour St. Louis" because it is fast and reliable.

The less strenuous traveler, and the family party, will take "The Pennsylvania Limited," the world's standard passenger train, or the "New York and St. Louis Limited," which are just as luxuriously appointed and provide all the comforts and conveniences of home or hotel.

There are also express trains on fast schedules with sleeping cars, dining cars and coaches, between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Cleveland, which leave at convenient hours and provide high grade accommodations.

The dining car service of the Pennsylvania Railroad has been long and favorably known for its excelle[illegible]

CANNON NOT MOVED BY CRY OF UPLIFTERS

The Speaker Tells Manufacturers He's a Partisan and Ignores Anathema on Existing Order.

ATTACKS THE INSURGENTS

Then He Quotes Statistics of 1860 and Now to Show How Well the Country is Getting Along.

Speaker Cannon was the guest of honor last night at the banquet at the Waldorf which closed the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers. He made an appeal for party unity, and denounced the opposition of Cummins, Dolliver, Bristow, and other Republican Insurgents, with Champ Clark, the Democratic leader, included. By references to the history of the United States and the Children of Israel he illustrated the point that the will of the majority must prevail, and he expressed the hope that in 1912 there would be a real Republican majority in the House and Senate that the responsibility of goverment might rest unmistakably with one party.

As he entered the dining hall the members of the association arose and cheered. The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," and little American flags were waved in triumph. The Speaker took the reception with his traditional calm, and as he listened to the speech of John Kirby, Jr., the President of the National Association of Manufacturers, his cigar was tilted at the angle disclosed by the cartoonist.

Ludwig Nissen, the toastmaster, introduced Mr. Cannon as one "who in the last six months has added considerably to the gayety of nations. He was born in the year when Halley's comet was here the last time, and ever since then he has made a great deal more impression than his prototype."

Mr. Cannon was greeted as he rose with "He's a jolly good fellow." He began by explaining that he could never have left Washington in the present state of public business, if he had not been about to address an assembly of American citizens who represented one-third of the production of the civilized world.

"I have not come to amuse you," he said, "but to speak from the practical point of view. Ours is the first great Republic to carry on the experiment of self-government, to give to all men equality before the law. Never yet has there been a great people which expressed their will through the majority which has made a success of government save only the Republic of the United States."

As Mr. Cannon mentioned the United States he bowed low. He went on:

"The Democrats, the short-sighted philosophers—I was about to say the college professors, but there are great exceptions—all those who have access to the pages of the uplift magazines and the metropolitan newspapers, may exclaim Anathema Maranatha on the existing order of things, but it remains for you and the 6,000,000 of employes you represent to move on and say 'None of these things move me.'"

Raising his hand aloft and bringing it down with a thump on the table before him, the Speaker declared:

"I am a partisan. I am not one who is watching out for himself and proclaiming that he will not co-operate with his fellow-men. It is fashionable now, I know, in the House of Representatives and the Senate and in the uplift magazines to raise the cry against organization. Yet it remains true that a thread a baby's hand can tear apart when it is bound two or three fold becomes so strong that no man can tear it apart."

Mr. Cannon then spoke of the great growth of the prosperity and wealth of the country. The value of the manufactures of the United States in 1860, he declared, was $900,000,000; in 1905, $14,800,000,000, and in 1910, $20,000,000,000. The value of all property in 1860 was less than $8,000,000, in 1800, $20,000,000, and in 1909 the farms alone were worth $9,000,000,000.

"This," he remarked, "throws a little light to show the American people have prospered under the policy of protection. Now, my protesting friend, listen a while. In 1860, under the Walker tariff, the Democratic low tariff, the imports amounted to $10.25 per head. In 1909 the imports amounted to $16.55 per head. Yet under the Walker tariff, only 20 per cent. of our imports were free of duty, while under the Payne tariff 51 per cent. are free of duty."

The manufacturers applauded while the Speaker went on to denounce the doctrinaires and the college professors who, though very worthy people, look through gimlet holes to obtain a view of the universe and cannot see how great a benefit the Republican policy has conferred on the Nation.

Turning confidentially to the toastmaster, Mr. Cannon reminded him how the children of Israel had journeyed forty years in the wilderness and then in the absence of Moses in the mount used their gold to make a golden calf, and then poured scorn on those who would go to the farmers in the West, who are prospering as never before, and ask them to rise in agitation because under the present system they are paying twice as much as they might under other conditions be asked for their woolens and cottons.

"We are supposed to have," went on Mr. Cannon, "a majority of 44 in the House of Representatives and two-thirds majority in the Senate. But, looking into your eyes, I can only say that we in Washington cannot tell whether the Democrat Populists have enough of the Republicans with them to make a majority. Some of them say I am disappointed—dethroned.

"I only speak as a Republican at the age of 74; I will tell you the truth. If there were two armies facing each other and a man professing to be with one army refused to charge when the order was given by the general in command, do you know what would be done with him?"

Mr. Cannon paused impressively, and many of his audience shouted "They'd shoot him." Mr. Cannon shook his head.

"Shooting would be an honorable death under such circumstances. After the war he would be hanged. I do not mention names. It is of the first importance to the perpetuity of the Republican Party to contend that the majority should control.

"From the Gulf of Mexico to 49 degrees north latitude our people were never more prosperous than they are to-day, more crops are grown on our farms, more goods are manufactured in our factories, and our commerce takes more trains to carry it, than at any time in the history of our country. And our people are sovereigns!

"The sovereignty in any country should not only be patriotic, but it should be wise. The history of the world has only occasionally shown a Czar that was both wise and patriotic. (Laughter.)

"The life of a generation is thirty-seven years, and the life of those who attain to majority is fifty-three years. How quickly we ripen and how quickly we are reaped! The people are sovereigns.

"Every year our forty-five States spend for education of the oncoming sovereigns, $400,000,000. This for 18,000,000 school children. This is one-third of the entire amount spent by the countries of the world civilized and uncivilized for education.

"It is great to have sovereignty in every unit of a great people. But it cannot remain sovereignty unless this great population is not only patriotic but wise. How easily under protection—under the principles of the Republican Party—we have borne these great burdens!

"And then there is the importer. I am not going to abuse the importer. The importer is a very clever man. The importer talks of stockings and gloves and all other products and says he can procure them at a labor cost of one-half in other countries, and he thinks of cheap transportation across the ocean and of the magnificent profit he can make. But the importer only looks the [illegible] part of an inch beyond the [illegible] better housed and better clothed and better schooled. The only way to accomplish this is the protection barrier. If you pull down this barrier, labor will have to compete with the labor of Europe, and you who manufacture things will have to compete with the manufacturer who pays his labor half what you pay it. It seems that a wayfaring man, even if he be but an ass, might read this as he runs.

"But the Republican Party is like an intelligent woman. One of these once said to me: 'The women have a great responsibility! They must bear not only their own burdens, but they must look out for the men, too.' So it is with the Republican Party. We must take care of ourselves and also take care of the kicking college professors and the uplift magazines. [Laughter.]

When Mr. Cannon stopped talking Chairman Ludwig Nissen aroused laughter by saying:

"If any of you doubt the contention of the insurgents that 'Uncle Joe' is a heavy load for them to carry on their shoulders, you can apply to my left shoulder for a testimonial. He rested on it during the greater part of his speech."

James Watson of Indiana, a former member of Congress who had come to the dinner with Speaker Cannon, frequently prompted him during his speech. Mr. Watson spoke afterward along the same general lines.

George A. Post, a manufacturer and a former Democratic Congressman, also spoke.

ATTACKS CIVIC FEDERATION.

Partial to Labor Unions, Declares President Kirby of the Manufacturers.

John Kirby, Jr., in acknowledging yesterday afternoon his re-election as President of the American Association of Manufacturers, took occasion to make an attack on the National Civic Federation as the principal support of the American Federation of Labor. He declared that if it had not been for the Civic Federation the labor organization could not have retained the position it has, and contrasted the attitude of the Federation with the stand taken by the National Metal Trades Association against the demands of the unions.

"I have tried in the last year to fill the shoes of Mr. Van Cleave," said Mr. Kirby. "I said when you elected me that my policy would be the policy of D. M. Parry and James W. Van Cleave. I feel very much encouraged at the steady headway we have made since Mr. Parry threw out the life line at New Orleans in 1903. If that had not been done we do not know where we should have been to-day.

"As it is, the American Federation of Labor, with the National Civic Federation behind it, has all it can do to retain its position. I am sorry if I say anything to hurt the feelings of any member of the National Civic Federation who may be present. The Civic Federation is the greatest asset of the American Federation. When it comes out with something definite like the National Metal Trades Association every member of this association can stand by it.

"I have been censured for my freedom of speech. One of the greatest educators of the country argued with me on this point after he had read my 'Goal of the Labor Trust.' He thought that less intensity of speech would be expedient, though he had nothing against my conclusions. At the end of our correspondence he wrote, 'I feel grateful. I can be no longer a member of the National Civic Federation.'

"Nothing but frankness of speech will bring us where we should be. I have spoken very plainly, but these are my sentiments, and it is these sentiments that have given us what freedom we have."

The remarks of Mr. Kirby were frequently interrupted by applause. It was stated afterward that the objection of some of the members of the Manufacturers' Association to the Civic Federation is based on the fact that the Federation considers only the grievances of union workmen, and will not take up questions in which open shops, to which the Manufacturers' Association is pledged, are concerned.

In addition to Mr. Kirby's re-election as President, F. H. Stillman was re-elected Treasurer, and J. C. Battelle of Columbus, Ohio; H. F. Chamberlain of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Ludwig Nissen of New York, C. W. Post of Battle Creek, Mich.; D. A. Tompkins of Charlotte, N. C.; C. F. Brandington of Rockport, Ill.; Alba B. Johnson of Philadelphia, and D. M. Parry of Indianapolis were elected Directors.

Congressman E. B. Vreeland addressed the convention on the reform of the banking system, arguing that it was of more importance to manufacturers than to bankers, as the former are forced to suspend or to curtail their production in a panic, while the latter seldom find themselves unable to pay their dividends. He declared emphatically that panics are unnecessary, and he contrasted the way in which the entrance of a few speculative bankers into the American banking system had caused the panic of 1907 with the way in which England managed to minimize the crash of the Barings for $100,000,000.

APPROVES JAMAICA BAY PLAN.

Sinking Fund Commission Also Grants a Ferry Franchise.

The Sinking Fund Commission approved yesterday Dock Commissioner Tomkins's plan for the improvement of Jamaica Bay. The city soon will appropriate $1,000,000 for the commencement of the work. The Government will build the channel through Rockaway Neck.

The commission granted a franchise to operate a ferry line from the foot of Clason Point Road, the Bronx, to the foot of North Tenth Street, College Point. The permit is for ten years at a rental of 2 per cent. of the gross receipts, with a renewal clause for ten years.

ALL MEDIUMS TRICK, MME. PALLADINO SAYS

And from Personal Experience, She Adds That They Are Not Easy to Catch.

HERS GENUINE PHENOMENA

And Whoever Doesn't Believe in Them Has Faith in Nothing—Why She Must Have "Tools of Trade."

The fruit man on the corner, the sacristan of the neighboring church, as well as the little girl who wheels a baby carriage with one hand and keeps a group of toddling brothers and sisters in rein with the other, all know Eusapia Palladino.

They may plead ignorance of other things—the names of near-by streets and buildings—but they know her and the house in which she lives. They will tell you when she goes out, what she wore, and when she is expected to return.

They will describe in detail the persons who visit her—when they came and when they went. To them all La Palladino is a personage of importance before whom the policeman, the postman, and even the ambulance driver sink into insignificance.

Withal there is a personal, intimate pride—a pride of possession—which a royal personage at the St. Regis or the Hotel Astor would not impart to Fifth Avenue or Times Square. And coupled with this pride is a faith that the malign influence of the comet will not disturb them as long as La Palladino remains among them.

It is all very wonderful and quite incomprehensible to one observing these primitive natures for the first time.

Probably La Palladino herself is unaware of what her neighbors expected of her as the earth last night passed through the comet's tail. At any rate she gave no sign when she saw the reporter. Her greatest concern was to know by what method her signature had been reproduced in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Tuesday morning. It was explained to her, and then—

"Sono molto, molto nervosa—molto, molto nervosa," (I am very nervous) she exclaimed in that language in which you can talk more and say less than in any other in the world.

"Possibly it is the comet," it was suggested. "You know that we are now passing through its tail."

She smiled incredulously, and added, as one eager to impart knowledge: "E vero! Ma dove son' oscuramento dell'atmosfera, la pioggia di piccoli bolidi, i meravigliosi effetti di luce, e tutt' altre cose?" (Indeed, but where is the black air, the rain of meteors, the wonderful lights, and all the other things?)

Evidently she had been told what the comet would bring, but it did not particularly interest her. Her people in the street who had imagined that she was spending the night in weird incantations for their protection would have been disappointed. She was simply nervous and this nervousness she could not honestly attribute to the comet's proximity. So she went on:

"No fear have I. Life is not in peril, but there is a possibility of curious and new phenomena, oh, yes, but"—

A genuine interest, an active intensity, appeared in her face and quickened her manner.

"Why, when some persons who believe in me, why do they call what I do 'supernormal or supernatural phenomena?' I call them 'buoni fenomeni,' (genuine phenomena.' Is not that enough! As for the rest, I am a good Catholic. I have the faith of my religion.

"Now I will tell you something," and she seized the reporter's hand and looked searchingly into his face. "I will tell you something: All these persons who do not believe in my 'buoni fenomeni' have no faith, no religion—nothing, nothing. They are atheists. They have turned all beautiful things into nothing and now they want to turn God into nothing. Their last resort is to keep me from producing 'buoni fenomeni,' so they can say to everybody: 'You see, Eusapia does nothing but tricks, and so, when you do not understand a thing, you may be sure that it is only a trick.' They are atheists, I tell you, and they have so much fear that I shall prove to them that they are not, that they are quite mad."

"Still," the reporter observed, "some of their conditions seem reasonable. Frankly, do you not think that there are certain conditions which will sufficiently assure them that you cannot perform tricks, and, at the same time, assure you that 'buoni fenomeni' may be produced?"

"Oh, yes," she returned. "But you do not know them. I accept their conditions—all that I know I can work under—and what then? What then, if I produce 'buoni fenomeni'? Then they want new conditions—there is always something else and nothing final, nothing final. Why the table, they say; why the cabinet, the stool, the guitar, or tambourine? Why these things?"

"Well, why these things?" repeated the reporter.

"I will tell you. You do not dig a hole with a broom, you do not paint a picture with a hoe, you do not write a letter with a cane. You may do wonderful things with the broom, hoe, and cane, but not dig holes, paint pictures, and write letters. For these things you need a spade, a brush, and a pen, just as in order to produce my 'buoni fenomeni' I need the table, the cabinet, and the other things.

"Why these things? Why because we have always used them. We all use them. Politi of Rome uses them. When I was a little girl and people began to wonder at my power, they said: 'She is a medium. She must have a medium's table, a medium's cabinet, and the rest.' And so I got them. All mediums have to have them. They are our tools."

"And do all mediums play tricks," the reporter smilingly inquired.

"Sicuro!" came the prompt answer. "All mediums indulge in tricks—all. And it is not so easy to catch them. I say this from personal experience."

Nearly all the local Italian journals have now reprinted the Italian text of La Palladino's offer of the conditions under which she will appear at the Times Tower séance—L'Araldo, Il Progresso Italo-Americano, Il Gionale, and Il Telegrafo—and certain comments are being made and communications to "the distinguished editor" published.

In L'Araldo one reads: "La Palladino ed i prestidigiatori americani," (La Palladino and American prestidigitateurs,) and further that the great Eusapia "in order to cut short all boasting assertions of certain scientists has consened to submit herself to a severe test."

Il Progresso declares that La Palladino, having accepted the conditions imposed "by the noted students of the occult, Professori Rinn and Davis," the coming séance in the Times Tower is certain to be of the fullest interest, and concerning which the readers of Il Progresso Italo-Americano may expect their paper to keep them fully informed.

DEGREES FOR ECLECTICS.

Conferred at Commencement Exercises for Medical College Graduates.

The graduating class of the Eclectic Medical College held its commencement exercises in the grand ballroom of the Plaza Hotel last night. Those who received diplomas from Prof. George W. Boskowitz, who conferred the degrees, were John Birkenhauer, Hyman Elster, James R. Heacock, Jacob Saffier, Philip Catoggio, Hyman Feld, John J. Lock, James Steele, Philip Suffin, Ignazio Congiolosi, Cecile Griel, John Mehrbacher, and Charles H. Stoerzer. The address to the graduates was delivered by Dr. John Thornton Sibley.

Following the exercises a dinner was held to mark the close of a three days' session celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the Eclectic Society of New York. Representatives were present at these sessions from cities of the State, and matters of importance to the medical fraternity were transacted.

Among the prominent guests present were Judge Charles Guy, Judge Norman S. Dike, Augustus S. Downing, Edward Lauterbach, Herman Metz, Prof. John Uri Lloyd, Prof. L. E. Russell, Commissioner T. B. Murphy, Dr. A. W. Ferbush, Dr. F. W. Abbott, Dr. Pitts Edwin Howes, and Dr. O. Massinger.

President S. A. Hardy was toastmaster, and 230 eclectics from all parts of the State attended the meetings.

OPEN HOSPITAL AT CONEY.

New Institution at the Beach Is Modern in Every Way.

The Coney Island branch of the Kings County Hospital, the first public building to be dedicated since Mayor Gaynor came into office, was opened yesterday afternoon. The building, stretching almost a block on Ocean Boulevard at Avenue V, was decorated outside with flags and inside with flowers.

After an opening prayer by the Rev. William Morrison of All Saints' Church the keys were turned over to Commissioner of Charities Michael J. Drummond by the contractor, Richard Henningham, and the architect, Frank Helmle. Second Deputy Commissioner of Charities Thomas L. Fogarty delivered a short dedicatory address, and Rose Drummond, daughter of the Commissioner, unveiled a bronze tablet bearing the names of those connected with the construction of the hospital.

The building is equipped with the most modern sanitary appliances. All rooms are cornerless, the walls rounding into each other. There will be 100 beds, with sunlight in nearly every room. Dr. Charles Durning, the Superintendent, will have a staff of four physicians.

BYRNES'S ESTATE TO WIDOW.

She Is Also to Administer It Alone—Valued at More Than $6,000.

The will of ex-Inspector Thomas Byrnes, who died on May 7 at his home, 318 West Seventy-seventh Street, was filed yesterday. The will, made on March 3, 1903, leaves all the property to Mrs. Ophelia A. Byrnes, the widow.

Supreme Court Justice Edward E. McCall and James W. Pringle were named as executors with Mrs. Byrnes in the will, but a codicil made on last March 19 makes Mrs. Byrnes sole executrix. The petition for probate accompanying the will states that the late police official left real estate valued at more than $1,000 and personal property valued at more than $5,000.

Mr. Byrnes left a widow and five daughters, Isabelle M. MacDonald of 315 West Ninetieth Street, Adelaide Rose Hickey of 311 West 102d Street, May Ophelia Conville of 123 East Sixty-fifth Street, and Amy Sarah and Jessie Louise Byrnes of 318 West Seventy-seventh Street.

Hoe Estate Needn't Pay Mrs. Johns.

Surrogate Thomas signed a formal order yesterday denying a motion to include the claims of Mrs. Margaret Johnson Brown Johns in the debts of the estate of Robert Hoe. He denied the motion without prejudice to the lawsuit in the Supreme Court which Mrs. Johns has brought to establish her claim, or to a future application for an accounting.

Saks Raincoats for Men

Of rubberized materials, at $15 to $25
Of waterproofed cloths, at $15 to $38
Of pure rubber, at $5.

Personal preferences must serve in the selection of the Raincoat. Each of the above enumerated varieties has its own particular merits and uses.

The waterproofed cloth Raincoat is most serviceable of all, in that it does double duty—equally useful as a rain garment or for fair weather wear. These Coats are produced by ourselves—fashioned by our own designers of exclusive patterns in homespuns, fancy cheviots or worsteds.

The models are characteristic of that strongly defined individuality which Saks-made garments always portray. Regulation or Raglan shoulders, conservative or ultra outlines.

The rubberized cloth Raincoat is more aristocratic in appearance than the all-rubber garment—and very light in weight. We furnish the above garment in shades of tan or olive, also gray

The pure rubber Raincoat is simply a garment of utility; absolutely impervious to rain, it can be worn in the hardest downpour and keeps its wearer "dry as a bone."

"A GREAT NOVEL"

NATHAN BURKE

"If the reading public retains its faculty of knowing what's what when a new book appears, Nathan Burke will be among the best read if not the most read books of the year. It is a long, strong, homely, humorous, friendly story which holds your interest and deepens your affection as you go along."

NATHAN BURKE

"One should carry away for vacation reading a novel of goodly length, that it may not be done with before vacation has really begun; of pervasive and persuasive humor, that it may entertain a mind above the cheaply comic......above all a story whose characters are so real and friendly that the reader is content to spend his vacation's leisure hours in their company. Just such a book is Nathan Burke."—The Outlook.

NATHAN BURKE

"There is a slowly increasing group of novels which seem likely to last much longer than the great mass of fiction which is talked about for a few months and then totally forgotten. This group is not large. Once in a decade an addition is made to the group......Perhaps this sounds like faint praise. The number of novels which are trumpeted as 'destined to endure' is so great that caution hangs over a reviewer like a cloud. In the enthusiasm aroused by a first reading of 'Nathan Burke' one is inclined to extravagance of praise. For here is a novel so sound, so filled with much that has inspired the great novels, that it is hard to maintain moderate standards of comparison."—Boston Transcript.

Talks on Teeth

BY

G. GORDON MARTIN

Enjoys His Martinolar Teeth

It is a great source of satisfaction to us to be able to publish a testimonial from a man who admits that his teeth were in a desperate condition, and that through the Martinolar Method we have restored all that he has lost, so that now he can eat anything and enjoy using his teeth, where before he was in misery most of the time.

A testimonial of this kind means a great deal to some other man who may chance to read it. It makes him want to know more about such a remarkable method of restoring teeth, and sooner or later that man will come to one of our offices.

It is a very difficult matter to explain the Martinolar Method of restoring missing teeth (without the use of plates or ordinary bridge work) at long range or in the brief space of a newspaper advertisement.

Come to our office and talk to our examining dentist. We will send you to patients of ours, who will tell you we can do all that we claim. We are going to ask you to read Mr. McLaughlin's letter.

J. J. McLAUGHLIN,
General Truckman,
163-169 Twenty-seventh St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

G. Gordon Martin (Inc.):

Dear Sirs—After several dentists had given up my teeth and told me there could be nothing done for me but have them drawn and a false set put in, I went to your office and placed myself in your hands, although I still had my doubts about your ability to fix up as bad a mouth of teeth as mine were, but I found that you could do all you say, and I can highly recommend your work to anyone. I can now sit down and eat a hearty meal, something I could not do in previous years. The work done by your people is one of the highest type of dentistry. Yours very truly,
J. J. McLAUGHLIN.

After continued use he says his Martinolar Teeth are a complete success. He is delighted with them and permits us to publish his letter so that others who suffered and are suffering may follow his example.

If you are in need of dentistry we invite you to call at our office and let us make an examination of your case and explain what we can do for you.

THE EXAMINATION IS FREE.

Where it is not possible to come at once, the next best thing is to send for our book, "Martinolar Dentistry," which is sent free upon request. This book will bring you, if you need teeth, no matter where you live.

MORE THOUSANDS SEE EDWARD'S BIER

Queue Outside Westminster Hall Yesterday Seven Miles Long.

MANY WAITED ALL NIGHT

Heavy Rain Did Not Drive Them Away—Roosevelt to Ride at Funeral with Pichon.

LONDON, May 18.—Thousands of persons, marching in double file on either side of the catafalque on which rests the coffin of King Edward VII., passed through Westminster Hall to-day, and when the doors were closed at 10 o'clock to-night there were seemingly miles of people still in line.

It was the greatest crowd ever formed in line in this city, and the people waited patiently under oppressive atmospheric conditions to pay a tribute to the memory of King Edward. The queue, six and eight abreast, extended this afternoon nearly seven miles from the entrance to the hall, through the adjacent streets.

The sun shone brightly this morning, after a night of rain, but, with little air stirring, the heat was excessive. Many persons, men as well as women, fainted from exhaustion, and ambulance attendants were busy all along the line.

The doors of the hall were opened at 6 A. M. By noon the total number who had passed the bier, including those who obtained entrance yesterday, had exceeded 100,000.

The police, with some tact and much patience, maintained order and kept the thousands moving steadily. The mourners entered at one end of the hall, double rows passing on either side of the catafalque, and emerging at the opposite end of the building.

When the doors were closed at 10 o'clock last night 53,000 persons had viewed the casket, while perhaps half that number were still waiting in the adjacent streets. At 11 P. M. a new queue was formed, and midnight found the waiting throng swollen by many thousands. These kept a night-long vigil, which they did not abandon despite a heavy fall of rain. It was a strangely cosmopolitan throng. Every land and every color was represented. There was no class distinction. The laborer in corduroys touched elbows with the frock-coated West Ender. In to-day's files women appeared to prodiminate.

Throughout the afternoon Victoria Station was the scene of a constant stream of foreign representatives arriving for the funeral. King Albert of Belgium and King Manuel of Portugal were met by King George and his eldest son, the Duke of Cornwall. Other arrivals included the Duke of Aosta, representing King Victor Emmanuel; M. Pichon, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, representing President Fallières; Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, the Crown Prince of Roumania, the Crown Prince of Servia, Prince Henry of the Netherlands, Prince Charles of Sweden, the Chinese Mission, headed by Prince Tsai-Tao, brother of the Prince Regent, and representatives of various German principalities.

Most of these visitors went to Westminster Hall after 10 o'clock to-night, when the hall was closed to the public, to witness the lying in state, Queen Mary accompanying the guests.

The German imperial yacht Hohenzollern arrived at Sheerness this evening, but at the Emperor's request no salutes were fired. The Emperor will land to-morrow morning and proceed to London.

The official programme of Friday's ceremonial, which was issued to-night, is a lengthy document, occupying five or six columns of newspaper type.

Mr. Roosevelt, as special envoy of the United States, will ride with M. Pichon in the eighth carriage in the procession.

TO-MORROW'S SERVICES HERE.

Thousands Who Wished Tickets for Trinity Church Disappointed.

The British Consul General has distributed all the tickets for the memorial service for King Edward to be held in Trinity Church to-morrow, and regrets that it has been impossible, for lack of accommodation, to entertain several thousand applications. He again calls attention to the fact that, simultaneously with the service in Trinity Church, a memorial service will be held in St. Paul's Church, for which no tickets of admission will be required.

At the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, 139 West Forty-sixth Street, requiem mass for the repose of the soul of King Edward will be said to-morrow morning at 7:30, 8 and 9:30 o'clock.

ROOSEVELT LIVING QUIETLY.

Refuses Dinner Invitations—Has a Long Talk with Seth Bullock.

LONDON, May 18.—Ex-President Roosevelt began to-day with a long talk with his old friend, Seth Bullock, Deputy United States Marshal in South Dakota.

In the morning Mr. Roosevelt and Henry White were received in audience by King Frederick of Denmark. Mr. Roosevelt also had an audience with King Haakon of Norway, and met King George of Greece. With all the members of the American special embassy he wrote his name in the books of King Alfonso of Spain, Prince Henry of Prussia, the Grand Duke Michael, and other royalties. At luncheon at Dorchester House he met Lord Landsdowne, Lord Cromer, and other noted Englishmen, while at dinner Lord and Lady Londonderry were among the guests.

Mr. Roosevelt has brought together R. J. Cunningham, who was one of his hunting companions in Africa, and Seth Bullock. They have taken greatly to each other, and are seeing London together. The Colonel went with them to the shop of the taxidermist who is mounting some of his trophies, and also gave the Marshal a view of his guns.

Mr. Roosevelt is seeing many personal friends at Dorchester House, but is not going out much, and is accepting no dinner invitations.

The appointment of Henry White, former Ambassador of the United States to France, as the diplomatic delegate from the United States at the royal obsequies is regarded at Court as a thoughtful act on the part of President Taft, because Mr. White had long known King Edward. Mr. White was appointed Second Secretary of the American Legation in London in 1884, and was promoted to Secretary two years later. Subsequently he was recalled by President Cleveland, but returned as Secretary of the embassy in 1897, continuing in that office until 1905, when he was appointed Ambassador to Italy.

ROUGH RIDERS TO SEE HIM.

Will Give a Luncheon in Roosevelt's Honor—A Philadelphia Tribute.

Col. Roosevelt has accepted the invitation of the National Roosevelt Rough Riders' Association to be the guest of honor at a banquet to be given in New York on Thursday, June 23. His acceptance was received in a cablegram addressed to Charles E. Knoblauch, a broker, with offices at 37 Wall Street. Mr. Knotlauch, who is President of the New York branch of this association, arranged some days ago with Henry Bull, a fellow stock broker and Rough Rider, to go to London and present the invitation in person.

Unknown even to his intimate friends Mr. Bull sailed on Wednesday of last week on the Mauretania and arrived in London the following Monday. Yesterday he had a conference with Col. Roosevelt, at which the latter said he would be delighted to renew acquaintance with the members of his regiment, but suggested that the luncheon be given in New York City instead of on Long Island as was originally planned.

The luncheon will be informal, as all of the regiment's gatherings are, and will be in the nature of a reunion. Col. Roosevelt will probably preside.

The Philadelphia Roosevelt Reception Committee, an organization comprising between 500 and 1,000 Roosevelt admirers, has notified the New York committee through its President, D. C. Humphreys, that the entire organization will take part when Col. Roosevelt is received on June 18. They will be accompanied by two bands of eighty pieces each.

Secretary Cosby has received an application from the Improved Order of Red Men asking for a position in the line during the parade. According to Chairman A. W. Windham, 500 or more men will march in uniform. There are forty-seven tribes in the city.

NANKING SITUATION SERIOUS.

American Warship to be Held in Readiness—Pessimism at Peking.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—United States Minister Calhoun at Peking reports a serious situation at Nanking. In a telegram to the State Department he says that the Consulate at Nanking advises the legation that there are disquieting anti-foreign and anti-dynastic rumors, not unlike those that preceded the Boxer outbreak.

The consular body at Nanking has presented a memorandum to the Viceroy calling his attention to the serious conditions and emphasizing the importance of immediate measures to stop the anti-foreign movement.

The Minister has telegraphed to Rear Admiral Hubbard, now in Chinese waters, to hold a warship in readiness to proceed to Nanking in case of necessity.

Mr. Calhoun adds that the crop outlook is not good and that there is a great deal of pessimism at Peking.

Charges are in circulation in China that Chinese immigrants arriving at San Francisco are harshly treated by the American authorities. United States Vice Consul Myers at Canton in a cablegram to-day said an organization calling itself the Self-Government Society made the allegations.

The State Department unqualifiedly declares that the charges are baseless, and has cabled Mr. Myers to that effect. The statement of ill-treatment is believed to have been made in order to prejudice the Chinese against the United States.

JAIL FOR DUMA PRESIDENT.

M. Guchkoff and Count Uvaroff Sentenced for Fighting Duel.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 18.—Alexander Guchkoff, President of the Duma, and Count Uvaroff, a member of that body, who settled a political quarrel on the field of honor, will, as a result, spend a part of the Summer recess in imprisonment.

A district court to-day found the legislators guilty of dueling and sentenced M. Guchkoff to four weeks' confinement in a fortress and the Count to three weeks in the central guard house. They will not appeal.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

ROME, May 18.—The Pope to-day gave private audiences to the Right Rev. Joseph J. Fox, Bishop of Green Bay, Wis., and the Right Rev. John J. O'Connor, Bishop of Newark, N. J., discussing with them the affairs of their dioceses and expressing gratification with the reports received.

SOUTHAMPTON, May 18.—The steamer Adriatic sailed for New York to-day, having on board the first-class passengers transferred from the crippled Kroonland, which put in here on Monday. The Kroonland broke a shaft after sailing from Antwerp on Saturday.

AWAITING DEATH, REPORTS DISASTER

Commander of Sunken Japanese Submarine Writes the Story of the Accident.

APOLOGIZES TO EMPEROR

Describes the Gradual Approach of the End—He and Companions Posthumously Honored.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, April 23.—One of the most extraordinary records of lingering, yet inevitable and heroic, death has just come into the possession of the Japanese Navy Department. It is the record kept by Lieut. Sakuma after the fatal sinking of his submarine with himself and fourteen men in the manoeuvres in Hiroshima Bay on Friday morning, April 15.

The manuscript was found in the conning tower of the submarine when it was raised a few days later by a wrecking party sent out from the cruiser Toyohashi. It is a sailor's log of rapidly approaching death. It opens with an entry made shortly after the total immersion at 10 A. M., in which the Lieutenant apologizes to his Emperor, and ends 2 hours and 40 minutes later with the words: "It is now 12:40 P. M."

The first news of the disaster reached Tokio on the evening of April 16, but in the papers of the next morning only the barest facts were published.

In the papers of the 20th a partial report was printed. This report is interesting in the light of further developments, as it contains a fragment of Lieut. Sakuma's remarkable log which inspired a complete "fake" record from the pen of a London journalist to whose paper the bare facts had been telegraphed.

It was understood that the record left by Lieut. Sakuma was in large part in the nature of a confidential report to his superiors, but on April 23 the Navy Department allowed the complete document to be published, and it will live in Japan's history as a document of tragic interest. It is as follows:

> Words of apology fail me for having sunk his Majesty's Submarine No. My subordinates are killed by my fault, but it is with pride that I inform you that the crew to a man have discharged their duties as sailors should with the utmost coolness until their dying moments.
> We now sacrifice our lives for the sake of our country, but my fear is that the disaster will affect the future development of submarines. It is therefore my hope that nothing will daunt your determination to study the submarine until it is a perfect machine, absolutely reliable. We can then die without regret.
> It was while making a gasoline dive that the boat sank lower than was intended, and in our attempt to close the sluice the chain broke. We endeavored to stop the inrush of water with our hands, but too late, the water entered at the rear and the boat sank at an incline of 25 degrees.
> When it touched bottom it was at an angle of 13 degrees. The current submerged the electric generator, put out the light, and the electric wires were burned.
> In a few minutes bad gas was generated, making it difficult for us to breathe.
> It was at 10 A. M. on the 15th inst. that the boat sank. Surrounded by poisonous gas the crew strove to pump out the water.
> As soon as the boat sank the water in the main tank was being pumped out. The electric light was extinguished and the gauge was invisible, but it seems the water in the main tank was completely pumped out.
> The electric current has now become useless, gas cannot be generated, and the hand pump is our only hope. The vessel is in darkness, and I note this down by the light through the conning tower at 11:45 A. M.
> The crew are now wet and it is extremely cold. It is my opinion that men embarking in submarines must possess the qualities of coolness and nerve, and must be extremely painstaking; they must be brave and daring in their handling of the boat. People may laugh at this opinion in view of my failure, but the statement is true.
> We have worked hard to pump out the water, but the boat is still in the same position. It is now 12 o'clock. The depth of water here is about ten fathoms.
> The crew of a submarine should be selected from the bravest, the coolest, or they will be of little use in time of crisis—in such as we are now. My brave men are doing their best.
> I always expect death when away from home. My will is therefore prepared and is in the locker. But this is of my private affairs. I hope Mr. Taguchi will send it to my father.
> A word to his Majesty the Emperor. It is my earnest hope that your Majesty will supply the means of living to the poor families of the crew. This is my only desire, and I am so anxious to have it fulfilled.

Here the record ends.

The Navy Department, in its report of the disaster, say that the steamer Rekizan Maru was at anchor off the port and No. 6 submarine was at a point 1,500 meters distant east of the steamer. Warrant Officer Sanagi of the Rekizan Maru, who had been charged to watch the boat, lost sight of the submarine at 11 A. M. on Friday. At first he did not feel the least anxiety about the safety of the boat, as he believed that it would rise again. Finding, however, that it did not after a certain time, he reported the matter.

It was conjectured that the crew breathed their last at about 2 P. M. on Friday, three hours after sinking. The cause of death was carbonic acid gas poisoning.

A Special Sale of

Men's and Young Men's Straw Hats

At About Half the Regular Selling Prices

2,160 straw hats, regular $2.50 grade
4,272 straw hats, regular $2.00 grade } $1.40
1,608 straw hats, regular $1.50 grade

1,560 straw hats, regular $5.00 grade
2,080 straw hats, regular $4.00 grade } $1.95
1,320 straw hats, regular $3.00 grade

These hats, made for 1910 summer wear, include Sennit Braid Sailors, Split Braid Sailors, Soft Split Straws, Milans and Mackinaws, in sizes 6⅝ to 7⅝.

They were bought by us from two big manufacturers of Baltimore, who found themselves at the end of the wholesale selling season with pretty big stocks. We paid for these hats a price per dozen which enables us to sell them at the prices quoted and still give to us a legitimate profit.

We availed of a similar opportunity last year, and the trade criticised us for selling straw hats at about half the regular price before the season had commenced. The matter was laid before Mr. William C. Freeman, writer of "Advertising Talks" in the Evening Mail, who, after hearing the story and seeing the hats, wrote:

"I have seen the hats. The various styles were exhibited in my office, and they not only impressed me, but they impressed many of the people in the office with me. I don't know very much about hats, but I do know that the $1.95 hat shown to me is as good as any $3 to $5 hat I ever saw."

The assortment we offer this year is more complete, and the quality uniformly higher, thanlast.

Sale begins in all of our four stores to-day.

Nowadays clothing advertisements suffer from too much "enthusiasm." Fact is displaced by Fable. The man who thinks he's getting an all-wool suit, very often gets only an all-wool promise.
When you "Moritz-ize" your dollar it buys more than a mere promise — — — any one of my suits at $15, $20 or $25 will prove it.

'WHITE SLAVE' SALES DESCRIBED IN COURT

Counsel for the Defense of Belle Moore Is Threatened with Penalty for Contempt.

TALKS OF AGENTS' "ORGIES"

Negress, So Miller Testifies, Was Said by Her Companion to Have Been in the Slave Dealing Business Nine Years.

George A. Miller, the special agent of the District Attorney's office who purchased two girls for $120, told the story of the "sale" yesterday in the trial of Belle Moore, the mulatto charged with "knowingly receiving money for and on account of procuring and placing women in the custody of another person for immoral purposes." So sluggish was the process of selecting a jury and so protracted the cross-examination, that last evening Miller was still upon the stand, and the two college women who aided in the investigation had not yet been called. Miller made frequent reference, however, to one of them, the Radcliffe graduate, who posed throughout as "Frankie Fuller."

Belle Moore's is the first real trial of the "white slave" investigation. Harry Levinson, the east side "salesman," has pleaded guilty, and Alec Anderson, the Moore woman's assistant, is yet to be tried. Assistant District Attorney Press is trying the case, but from its opening yesterday morning Mr. Whitman himself was not far from Mr. Press's elbow, and Assistant District Attorney Reynolds joined them in the discussion over each talesman.

Belle Moore is a very light mulatto, probably not more than 35, with a thin, rather acrid face. She has an appearance of great intelligence, and is not unsuggestive of Cassie in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Her hat was an amazing thing of peonies and pampas grass. Her counsel, Lawyer Karlin, bobbing up from a recent illnesse to try the case, made frequent reference in his examination of talesmen to George Kibbe Turner, to the "cheerful presence of Mr. Whitman," and to the "hysteria and clamor" with which the trial had been heralded.

"If you were to gather from the evidence," he began, "that the State agents for four weeks conducted a series of debauches and orgies—"

Here the court squelched Mr. Karlin, and the filling of the jury box proceeded.

Miller, the first witness, gave his home as Seattle, and said that for years he had been employed by the Federal Government as an investigator. Employed by Mr. Whitman on Feb. 23, he took the name of "Dick Morris" and a room at the Hotel Albany, whence he circulated in the Tenderloin. It was through the good offices of Alec Anderson, whom he met in a West Thirty-first Street restaurant, that he was first taken in April to Belle Moore's flat in West Forty-first Street. He was introduced and Anderson explained that he ("Morris") wanted to take to Seattle some girls who would be under 18 and light weight.

"Leave it to Belle," the negro assured him. "She's been in the business nine years. I broke her in myself."

"Bring me your woman partner and let me talk to her," was the woman's direction.

Miller said that on this occasion he saw in the woman's possession an eleven-year-old girl, named Helen Hastings. Judge Crain would not allow questioning on this point. He then described a series of visits, the second in the company of "Frankie Fuller," whom he introduced as the manager of his Seattle houses, in accordance with their joint instructions from Mr. Reynolds. After several false alarms and rejections word came by telephone that Belle Moore had found just what they wanted.

The girls she showed them were Alice Milton and Belle Woods. They had been found in a near-by resort, it was intimated. Taking with him a woman named Amy Jackson as a witness, the final terms were made. The Moore woman, Miller says, spoke of having worked very hard to suit their exacting taste, and wanted $75 for each girl. They paid $120 down on April 27 and were instructed to send the rest by registered mail, general delivery.

Counsel for the defense went into the cross-examination with zest, trying to show that the proceeds of the "white slave" investigation were pretty paltry for the fun the agents had had in the process and the money they scattered as they went.

"I mean to show that Miller and not Belle Moore was the real agent," he declared.

Miller admitted that since Feb. 23, in the rôle of "Dick Morris of Seattle," he had spent between $3,000 and $4,000, quite outside of what his woman companion spent. She, he admitted, had sent out for champagne when Belle Moore could offer nothing better than beer. She was in Atlantic City, he said, when the girls were actually taken there.

"We took them away in a taxicab. Belle Moore told me to carry the suitcase and the dolly," he said.

This was the only reference made to the two indications of youth in the girls—the doll and the Teddy bear—of which Mr. Reynolds talked so graphically when Belle Moore was arrested.

Much that is unprintable filled the record, and this was freely used by counsel for the defense for Miller's discomfiture. His persistent references finally brought down on Mr. Karlin's head the wrath of the court.

"You make a remark of that sort again and I'll punish you," said Judge Crain.

Mr. Karlin hastened to make several more such remarks, and was told that this morning he must show cause why he should not be fined for contempt of court. Efforts on Judge Crain's part to hold a night session were frustrated by Mr. Karlin, who declared that he was far from well, and that he had held up his head thus far only through great exercise of will power.

LAWYER HIS CO-RESPONDENT.

Dentist Names His Counsel in a Suit for Divorce.

Dr. William Turk, a dentist of 122 East Ninety-third Street, began proceedings in the Supreme Court yesterday for a divorce from his wife, from whom he has been separated for four years, naming his one-time friend, political co-worker, and attorney in the separation proceedings, Ruben R. Cohen, a lawyer of 132 Nassau Street, as co-respondent. Turk's wife is in the chorus at the Hippodrome, and goes under the stage name of Belle Arden. Her maiden name was Belle Gutherie.

The Turks were married nine years ago. At that time Turk was prominent in Republican politics and a captain in the Twenty-ninth Republican district. His bosom companion was Cohen. About six years ago Cohen had an ambition to be nominated for the Assembly from his district, and Turk worked hard to gratify his ambition. The nomination, however, went to Frederick Perrin.

When the Turks decided to separate Turk retained Cohen, who had become an attorney. An agreement was reached by which Turk was to pay his wife $9 a week. She was to have possession of their only child, a girl, but when Turk discovered that his wife had become connected with a burlesque show, and had put the child under the care of a negro woman, he had the case reopened, and the court decided that $3 a week was all he need pay.

Turk received information, he said yesterday, several weeks ago that his wife and Cohen were living together in a flat in East 109th Street. He engaged detectives and got information which, he said, bore out his suspicions. On Tuesday morning, in company with his daughter and his lawyer, Victor Deutsch, he went to the Hippodrome, and a clerk served papers on Mrs. Turk for absolute divorce. Mrs. Turk took the papers and told her husband that she would not contest the suit.

"I have known Cohen for about eleven years," said Turk yesterday. "At one time we were close friends, and I helped him in a political way. I have consulted with my lawyer regarding the advisability of bringing charges against Cohen before the Bar Association."

CLUBBER MUST PAY $2,000.

Verdict Against a Policeman Obtained by a Negro He Assaulted.

Joseph I. Charles, a negro, won a verdict for $2,000 for assault yesterday in the City Court against Patrolman Daniel Nihill of the East Twenty-second Street Police Station. Charles was badly clubbed in the Fall of 1907, sustaining severe scalp wounds.

"This is an eminently proper verdict," said City Court Judge Green from the bench. "The police must be taught that they are obliged to obey the law."

Inspector George McClusky was a witness for Nihill. He testified that the patrolman had been ordered to prevent persons from entering the premises 141 West Twenty-seventh Street.

Charles testified that on the night in question he went to the address, which was his residence, and was prevented by Patrolman Nihill from entering. Charles complained to the Lieutenant in the Tenderloin Station, who told him to go back and tell the policeman to call up and receive instructions over the telephone. Nihill paid no attention to this message, Charles said, and when a crowd began to collect made a savage assault on him with a nightstick.

The police practice of stationing a policeman to prevent persons from entering alleged gambling houses and other resorts was severely condemned by Mayor Gaynor in his campaign for the Mayoralty, and was abolished after he took office.

ARRESTED ON THE LUSITANIA.

Man There to Tell of a Dynamite Plot by Anarchists—In Bellevue.

An excited Englishman with a message of warning to the skipper of the big Cunard liner Lusitania caused mild excitement on the liner when he was arrested yesterday on the deck a few minutes before the voyage to Liverpool began.

The man was taken to Jefferson Market Court, where he said he was William Halliwell, recently of South Africa. He was committed to Bellevue for observation as to his sanity. The message which he wanted to deliver was "to warn the officers that three Anarchists are in the steerage, and the vessel will never reach the other side."

Halliwell first appeared on the vessel at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning. A commotion was raised when he tried to get on board without a ticket. After some difficulty Pier Supt. Roberts quieted him and he went away.

A few hours later he was seen by Detectives Leeson and Aikman in the crowd on the main stairway in the first cabin. He was followed on deck and then quietly told that he was wanted on shore. He insisted upon being allowed to sail free as a holder of the Victoria Cross. He also said that it was best for him to sail as he knew three Anarchists were going to blow up the great liner.

In court Halliwell said:

"I was in the Boer war, and I got the Victoria Cross for bravery. When I got to this country several Anarchists found out I was able to forestall them and wanted me to join them. This morning I had a premonition that some of these men were on board the Lusitania and that they would sink the vessel. I was trying to warn the officers when they stopped me."

A School for Ticket Agents.

District Passenger Agents of the Lehigh Valley Railroad from as far West as Chicago, met yesterday in the rooms of the American Railway Association, 24 Park Place, and decided to establish a school for ticket agents. Ticket agents will be asked questions designed to show how they would answer the questions of the traveling public, that each may develop into an information bureau.

GOOD SAMARITAN'S WATCH WAS STOLEN

Charles H. Tiffany Robbed by a Negro Woman, Who Feigned Illness.

SLEEP POTION THE TROUBLE

He Had Taken a Powder, He Says, and Then Rambled to an Unknown Part of the City.

The next time Charles H. Tiffany feels like taking a sleeping powder he will look carefully around for another kind of sleep inducer, he says. Mr. Tiffany, who is traffic manager for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, at 200 Fifth Avenue, says he took such a powder on Tuesday night, and that it cost him the temporary loss of a gold watch and chain worth $200, also got him into difficulty with a negro woman some 6 feet in height, and put him to the inconvenience of having to appear in court yesterday morning. He says also that the next time he starts prowling around town late at night he will choose some place other than the so-called "black belt" along Sixth Avenue, below Greeley Square. He doesn't like the locality.

Mr. Tiffany, who is a bachelor and lives at 43 Washington Square South, is of an inquiring frame of mind. He has visited most every part of the city by night and by day. But the "black belt," he says, was not a familiar place to him. In fact, he didn't know there was a "black belt" north of the Mason and Dixon line until his experience with the six-footer. And even now, says Mr. Tiffany, he only has a hazy recollection of how that part of the town looks at night or what happened to him there.

For several days, says Mr. Tiffany, he had been suffering from a cold. He was unable to sleep well at night. Some one suggested a sleeping powder, so he took one early Tuesday evening and went to bed, but still he couldn't sleep. After a while he got up and dressed and started prowling.

Mr. Tiffany called at Police Headquarters about 1:30 o'clock in the morning and reported that he had been robbed. He told the police that he had been walking along Sixth Avenue between Thirtieth and Thirty-first Streets when a negro woman of Amazonian proportions called to him from a hallway. According to the police story, he told them he was loath to respond to her call, but that when she began groaning, as though in distress, he walked into the hallway, intending to assist her if she were ill. There the negro woman threw her arms around Mr. Tiffany's neck, crowded him against the wall, and dexterously took his watch and chain.

The watch, by the way, was an heirloom which had been in the Tiffany family several generations. Inside the case was inscribed "Charles H. Tiffany." Lieut. Funston at Police Headquarters obtained a full description of the watch; also as good a description of the woman as Mr. Tiffany could give.

Detective Joseph Toner of the Headquarters staff was standing in a drug store at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street early yesterday morning, when a tall negro woman came in and wanted to use the telephone. She didn't seem to know much about the use of a 'phone, so Toner showed her where to drop a nickel in the slot.

"Give me 3100 Spring," said the negress, after she had inserted a nickel. Toner became all attention. He recognized the number as that of Police Headquarters, and wondered what the woman could be calling that for.

"I have been robbed of a gold watch and chain in a saloon in Thirty-sixth Street between Sixth and Seventh Avenues," said the woman to Lieut. Funston over the wire. "The bartender of that place has stolen it from me."

Toner said nothing when the woman hung up the receiver and started away, but he followed her as she headed for the saloon. On the way he stopped long enough to call up Headquarters and tell Lieut. Funston what he had overheard, and that he would attend to the case.

"See if the watch is marked 'Charles H. Tiffany,' for such a watch was stolen from a white man of that name a little while ago," said Lieut. Funston.

When Toner arrived at the saloon the negro woman was in an altercation with the bartender. Toner tapped the woman on the shoulder and showed his badge.

"I'll get your watch for you," he said. "Who is the thief?"

The negress pointed to the bartender. At a word from Toner the bartender produced the watch and chain. Sure enough, on the inside of the case appeared the inscription "Charles H. Tiffany." The bartender explained that the woman had given the watch to him for safe keeping, and that he had refused to hand it back to her.

"I guess you had better come along with me," said Toner to the woman. He pocketed the watch and took her to Police Headquarters, where she gave her name as Stella Hamilton and address as 229 West Thirtieth Street. She protested that the watch had been given to her by her brother, who in turn had received it from his mother, who said Stella was a former slave. She said it was an heirloom, highly prized.

Later in the day Mr. Tiffany arrived and identified the watch and chain as his. He said the negress looked like the one who had groaned and asked him to assist her. She was held in the Tombs Court, and in due time Mr. Tiffany will get his watch back.

Public Service Agents Appeared to Inspect Transportation Conditions from Barrooms.

Frederick W. Whitridge, receiver of the Third Avenue Railroad, sent a letter to the Public Service Commission yesterday apropos of the commission's action against him for $860,000 penalties for disobedience of wheel guard orders. Justice Brady of the Supreme Court dismissed the action last week on a legal objection interposed by the defense. The letter is couched in Mr. Whitridge's customarily vigorous language in his criticism of the action of the commission, but winds up by inviting the commission, its counsel, and its transportation engineer to luncheon to talk matters over.

Mr. Whitridge complained particularly of the work of the Inspectors of the commission and expressed his belief that the commission itself was misled by the reports rendered to it by these employes. In this connection the Third Avenue's receiver submitted reports made to him by detectives he said he had hired to watch the commission's Inspectors, some of which reports indicated that if Mr. Whitridge's men were watching the right individuals, certain of the commission's Inspectors were not very active at their work.

The case out of which arose the suit against the Third Avenue's receiver involved the killing of a policeman on the Sedgwick Avenue line of the Union Railway in the Bronx. An examination of the car which killed the policeman by the commission's Inspectors showed that it had no wheel guards, although the accident occurred some weeks after the wheel guard order became effective.

Further inspection of the cars on Mr. Whitridge's Bronx lines developed many other violations, which, on the basis of $5,000 a day penalty provided in the Public Service Commission law, footed up to $860,000 in the aggregate. Suit was accordingly begun and dismissed by Justice Brady as noted. It is now about to be appealed.

Mr. Whitridge's Letter.

This is Mr. Whitridge's letter to the commission:

Travis H. Whitney, Esq., Secretary Public Service Commission, 154 Nassau Street, New York City:

Dear Sir: The suit of the commission against me for the recovery of a penalty amounting to $860,000 for an alleged disobedience of an order having been dismissed, I feel bound to say to the commission what I may say about them.

I am indignant that such a suit should have been brought upon what is, at the worst, the merest technicality, and I cannot imagine how the commission could fail to perceive that any jury and the public generally would be certain to find—the circumstances in the case being what they were—that the action was, as several of the jurors volunteered to say to my counsel, perfectly ridiculous.

I think it is a possible explanation that the commission is continually being misled by its Inspectors. It appeared on the trial, as I previously suspected, that your Inspectors are given a roving commission to wander through your jurisdiction in search of violations of laws and regulations, and a system of petty espionage is thus established which I do not think was contemplated by the statute, and which I am sure the American people will not in the long run tolerate.

Whether as an abstract proposition it is a good thing for the public I am not prepared to say, but I wish the members of your commission could get out of their heads the idea that the United States receivers of these roads, who are public officials and as responsible as the Commissioners themselves, have any desire on earth except to comply with all the laws and legal regulations affecting them, and in every way to accept anybody's suggestions for the improvement of the service.

If, however, the commission persists in holding their present views, I feel justified in warning them against giving their Inspectors too much credence. You already know that in the case of the repairs of the Forty-second Street cars two years ago your Inspectors reported to you an absolute falsehood; in the case of the service on the Southern Boulevard they later suppressed the obvious cause of the delays of which they complained, and they have repeatedly been guilty during the past year of the most colossal absurdities in their blueprints.

In the litigation just dismissed they put your Chairman in the position of making oath that for 160 days I had disobeyed your orders, whereas their evidence showed only two days, and I hope that it is the Inspectors alone who are responsible for having put the commission in the position of collecting what they suppose to be evidence, keeping it secret, and bringing an action against me for an enormous and ruinous sum of money, without any notice or warning, contrary to the recognized principles of law, justice, common sense, and good manners.

Inspectors Inspected.

I may add that I have lately been having your Inspectors inspected, and the results would convince anybody that their labors are generally of the most trivial character. I inclose two or three of the reports on their movements, and I regret that their evident dislike and even terror of your observers to being observed put the expense of continuing my observations beyond my means.

I cannot but believe that the commission has been misled in all of these matters, and I know that their whole attitude toward the receivers of these properties is mistaken. I really believe that the members of the commission can be persuaded to change their mental attitude as well as the course of their procedure in some particulars.

I should be very happy, and I think it would be in the public interest, if the commission should feel disposed to meet me for a candid talk upon the whole subject. If they are so disposed I will endeavor to find some day within a week or ten days when they, together with their counsel, their transportation engineer, and you yourself, can come and lunch or dine with me.

Yours very truly,

FREDERICK W. WHITRIDGE, Receiver.

Some of the reports of detectives submitted by Mr. Whitridge as a result of his "observation of the commission's observers" are amusing. Here are two of them, the names and dates being omitted:

I arrived in the vicinity of —— at 7 A. M. and joined Opt. ——, who designated Inspector to me as he was leaving his residence at 8 A. M.

He walked to Columbus Avenue, boarded "L" train at —— Street, alighted at Park Place, and walked to the Tribune Building, entering at 8:50 A. M.

He came out again at 9:20 A. M. with another man, walked to Fulton Street, entered Naething's restaurant, came out at 10:40 A. M., walked to Chambers Street, entered Hall of Records, reappeared at 10:50 A. M., boarded Third Avenue surface car, alighted at Park Row and Worth Street, entered saloon, had a drink, spoke a few words to bartender, left an envelope, came out, boarded surface car, got off at the Brooklyn Bridge, walked to Tribune Building, and entered at 11:25 A. M.

He came out at 11:35 A. M. with the same man, walked to Centre Street, to Criminal Court Building, remained there about twenty minutes, crossed the street to saloon corner Franklin and Centre Streets, had a drink, and walked to Tribune Building, entering at 12:30 P. M.

I continued watch on the Tribune Building until 6:30 P. M., but did not see him again, and then discontinued.

A Busy Inspector.

I arrived in the vicinity of —— at 5 A. M. At 8:15 A. M. ——, Public Service Inspector, came out, proceeded to "L" station at —— Street, boarded southbound train, alighted at Warren Street with lady whom he met on the train, and both proceeded to the Tribune Building, entering at 9:05 A. M.

At 12:10 P. M. —— came out with a man, went to Dennett's restaurant on Beekman Street, had lunch, came out and separated. Inspector went to the Terminal Building, 50 Church Street, took elevator to the seventh floor, entered Erie Railroad offices, remained there half an hour, came out and met woman at Park Row and Beekman Street, with whom he conversed for about fifteen minutes, and returned to the Tribune Building, entering at 1:30 P. M.

At 5:05 P. M. he again left the Tribune Building, proceeded to Dewey's wine house, 138 Fulton Street, came out with a package, apparently a bottle of liquor, then proceeded to Ninth Avenue "L" Station at Cortlandt Street, boarded northbound train to 145th Street, and entered his residence, ——, at 5:55 P. M.

I concluded that he was through for the day, and then discontinued.

In the absence of Chairman Willcox Commissioner William McCarroll, when shown Mr. Whitridge's letter and the exhibits, said that the commission was inclined to place more confidence in its own Inspectors than in Mr. Whitridge's detectives. Beyond this he did not care

COURT-MARTIAL FOR AMES.

Sequel to the Suicide in the Philippines of Lieut. Janney.

MANILA, May 18.—Upon instructions from Washington Lieut. Col. Robert F. Ames was to-day confined to quarters and will be court-martialed on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and to the prejudice of military discipline.

The action against the officer is a sequel to the investigation of the crcumstances which led Lieut. Clarence M. Janney of the Twelfth Infantry, U. S. A., to take his life following a dinner party at the home of Ames at Fort William McKinley. The suicide's wife remains at the fort and will probably be the chief witness at the court-martial.

The tragic death of Janney created a sensation in army circles. A Filipino Coroner and an army board of inquiry found that Janney committed suicide, and so reported to Major Gen. William H. Carter, commanding the Department of Luzon. After examining the findings the General returned the same to the board with instructions that it obtain additional testimony covering certain features of the case. No further developments were made public until the receipt of the instructions from Washington to-day.

Janney's death occurred on the night of March 12 last. On that evening Janney and his wife attended a dinner given by Ames. Capt. William H. Jordan, Jr., also of the Twelfth Infantry, completed the party.

According to the testimony of the witnesses as taken by the board, Lieut. Janney and his wife quarreled in the course of the evening. It seems that Janney recognized in the home of his friend a champagne cooler which had belonged to him, but which Mrs. Janney had given subsequently to Ames. Janney upbraided his wife because of the gift, and harsh words followed. Finally Janney demanded an apology from his wife, and this was made. This ended the quarrel, according to the testimony, and the dinner was resumed.

A little later, however, Janney left the house, returning soon with a revolver with which, it was testified, he shot himself either through design or accident, in the presence of his wife and Col. Ames.

It was testified that Janney had rushed into the dining room and flourished the revolver while he talked wildly. Before the others could interfere, they said, he placed the revolver to his head and fired. Death followed quickly.

Following the shooting Ames was placed under arrest, but a preliminary investigation by the special board of inquiry having cleared him, he was released.

The only witnesses of the tragedy were Col. Ames and Mrs. Janney. After Janney had left the house Capt. Jordan went in search of him, but did not find the Lieutenant, who was said to have re-entered Ames's house by a rear door. Mrs. Janney testified that her husband and Ames had been good friends.

The Janneys were married in New York in 1908. Mrs. Janney was Miss Madeline McKassick and belonged to a prominent family of San Francisco. She first married Dr. Pedar Bruguiere, whom she divorced upon grounds of failure to provide for her. When she married Janney he was stationed at Governors Island. He went with the Twelfth Regiment to the Philippines in July, 1909.

SEE HOPE FOR MORSE.

Coleman's Case Suggests to Friends That His Sentence Is Illegal.

BOSTON, May 18.—Boston friends of Charles W. Morse, the former New York banker, now serving sentence at Atlanta, profess to see in Judge Hale's action in the Coleman case in the United States Circuit Court some hope for the release of Morse on the plea that his sentence was illegal.

George W. Coleman is the bookkeeper of the insolvent National City Bank of Cambridge, who was sentenced to fifteen years in the Greenfield (Mass.) prison today by Judge Hale for embezzling $309,000 of the bank's funds.

Coleman will spend probably ten years in Greenfield. That he was not sent to the Government prison at Atlanta was due to District Attorney French, who construes the statutes for persons convicted of misapplication of bank funds as warranting a term in prison without hard labor.

Mr. French read Chapter 5,209 of the Federal Statutes and called attention to the fact that it provides for imprisonment of not less than one year, and says nothing about hard labor, while under the Federal act establishing Federal penitentiaries it is stated that a prisoner can only be sent to Atlanta if his sentence calls for a year or more at hard labor. He therefore asked for a sentence to some jail, and Judge Hale selected, that at Greenfield.

Legal friends of Morse argued to-night that as he wan sent to Atlanta for violation of this same Chapter 5,209 he may be held illegally. Providing the term of court which sentenced him shall have expired, it is said that he cannot be resentenced, and his release may be secured on a writ of habeas corpus.

TO INCREASE CADET CORPS.

Decision of Secretary of War Adds 88 to Possible Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—As the result of a decision announced to-day by Secretary Dickinson there will be a substantial increase in the corps of cadets at the West Point Military Academy.

The decision in substance is that after March 2 next year, cadets may be admitted to the Academy as successors not only of the class graduating in 1911, but also of the 1912 class, making a total increase of eighty-eight original appointments over the usual number of admissions.

LILIUOKALANI LOSES AGAIN.

Ex-Queen of Hawaii's Claim for $450,000 Rejected by Court of Claims.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Liliuokalani, former Queen of Hawaii, has again met defeat in her effort to secure $450,000 for the rentals from the crown lands in Hawaii.

The Court of Claims has just decided that these lands belonged to the Government of Hawaii, and that the Queen had no personal claim upon them.

Nagel Dismisses Pilots' Dispute.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor has given his consent to a dismissal of the controversy between various transportation companies at New York City and their masters and pilots which began several weeks ago. The Secretary says that while the masters and pilots who resigned believed themselves within their rights, some of them disregarded their obligations to the general public.

INSURGENTS FORCE MORE CONCESSIONS

But Senate Regulars Defeat Plan to Take Commerce Cases from Attorney General.

ANOTHER DENIAL FROM TAFT

Regular Senators After Conference at White House Authorized to Deny That President Denounced Insurgents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Though the insurgents' own amendment to the Administration's Railroad bill was lost again today, the fight they put up caused the regulars to make some concessions in order to hold the uncertain Senators in line. The vote was on the Cummins amendment to deprive the Attorney General of control of cases before the Court of Commerce, and to vest that power in the Inter-State Commerce Commission, together with the complaining shipper. Instead of this amendment a compromise measure presented by Mr. Smith of Michigan along the lines of the House bill was substituted by a vote of 40 to 23.

In general the Democrats voted with the insurgents, but four of them drifted over to the Republican side. They were Messrs. Fletcher of Florida, Hughes of Colorado, McEnery of Louisiana, and Taylor of Tennessee. The insurgents mustered ten votes—Messrs. Beveridge of Indiana, Borah of Idaho, Bourne of Oregon, Bristow of Kansas, Burkett of Nebraska, Clapp of Minnesota, Cummins and Dolliver of Iowa, Dixon of Montana, and La Follette of Wisconsin.

The vote came late in the afternoon after much irregular debate, and the amendment as finally adopted was the result of many changes put forward in turn by the regulars in an effort to smooth over the differences with enough insurgents to insure the passage of the less objectionable measure. As finally adopted the Smith amendment embodies the House provisions giving the Attorney General control of the cases, while allowing the commission and the complaining shipper representation by counsel in the case, and adds further by way of concession that notive of all cases must be sent by the Attorney General to the commission that notice of all cases must be sent once started by the Attorney General and subsequently abandoned may be continued without prejudice by the shipper or the commission. No provision is made, however, for the commencement of a case without the approval of the Attorney General, and that was the great insurgent objection to the compromise.

One other concession the regulars made was in the form of an amendment offered by Mr. Aldrich to another section of the bill. The amendment extends from 60 to 120 days the period during which the Inter-State Commerce Commission may suspend for investigation any new rates or classifications made by railway companies. Mr. Aldrich's amendment was, of course, accepted by the insurgents, and was incorporated into the bill unanimously by a viva voce vote.

Mr. Aldrich made an attempt before adjournment to fix Wednesday next for a final vote on the Railroad bill, but the Democrats, while admitting the advisability of coming to an understanding on the subject, said that there was a special reason why the date should not be fixed this afternoon. It was afterward explained that this reluctance was due to the absence of Senator Bailey. The Democrats also wanted to confer with each other on certain portions of the bill before committing themselves.

It was the general understanding about the Senate Chamber that the Democrats would be asked to assist in expediting the bill by permitting amendments to be laid on the table, by refraining from speechmaking, and by other means, with the understanding that in return the last three sections of the bill relating to capitalization would be withdrawn. The Democratic Senators generally have opposed these provisions because of their supposed infringement of the rights of the States. Many of them, however, are anxious to dispose of the bill and willing to resort to any proper means to hasten its passage.

The Democratic conference to-night was held in the Senate office building, and was attended by about a dozen of the Democratic lawyers. After considering propositions advanced by the Republican regulars they decided to submit their views to their colleagues in time to consider any suggestion that may be made at to-morrow's session looking to the fixing a day for a final vote on the bill.

President Taft to-day authorized several of the Administration Senators to deny absolutely the stories in circulation for the past few days to the effect that the President had recently denounced the insurgents in unmistakable terms and had used language to which these statesmen took offense.

Reports had reached the White House that some of the insurgents, smarting under what they had heard had been said of them, were determined to defeat the Railroad bill and other of the President's measures regardless of what might happen to them or to the party. The matter was discussed at the White House to-day at a conference in which the President, Senators Aldrich and Root and Attorney General Wickersham took part.

The President, who talked the matter over freely with his callers, declared that he could not recall having said anything regarding the insurgents which could in any way justify the reports that had been spread broadcast since Saturday last. He was told that the remarks attributed to him were alleged to have been made to a number of newspaper men. The insurgents were also said to have taken offense at the general tone of the discussion at the Saturday night conference at the White House. The President said he had not made any such remarks as were reported to any newspaper men or man.

The President is further said to have told Senators Aldrich and Root that he was reluctant to believe that Senator Borah of Idaho, had been engaged in the circulation of the reports of the past few days; that he had always regarded Senator Borah's professions of loyalty as sincere and that while he recognized the Senator's independence in the Senate he did not believe that Senator Borah was willing to attack all of the Administration measures simply because they were advocated by the White House.

30 DAYS OFF FOR WEDDING.

Taft Commutes Embezzler's Sentence to Enable Him to Marry at Christmas.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Because he wanted to be married before Christmas, President Taft has commuted by thirty days the sentence of five years' imprisonment imposed on Charles T. Thornton, convicted of embezzling funds of the Hamilton National Bank of Chicago.

With good behavior allowances the term would have expired Jan. 8, 1911. At the Department of Justice it is said Thornton had been engaged to be married for some time, and during his term had been an exceptionally good prisoner.

HEIKE WILL DISPUTE SHORT-WEIGHT TEST

Plan of Defense Is to Cast Doubt on Accuracy of Special Government Weighers.

ISSUE TWICE UNSUCCESSFUL

Sugar Trust Secretary Will Also Contend Weighing System Was Established Before He Was Employed.

It was partly revealed yesterday what the plan of defense is to be in the trial of Charles R. Heike, Secretary and Treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Company, and five former employes of the trust in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Martin, charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with the importation of sugar at the piers of the Havemeyer & Elder Refinery in Williamsburg.

The Government's testimony consisted of the somewhat familiar story of how Richard Parr on Nov. 20, 1907, made his raid on the Havemeyer & Elder piers and discovered the weighing of sugar on scales tampered with by the insertion between the levers of a fine steel spring, which made the scales underweigh. Parr himself, Thomas H. Hyatt, Government weigher, who earned the sobriquet of the "honest weigher" by coming through the customs fraud investigation unscathed, and Acting Surveyor George J. Smyth, who had been under examination the day before, were witnesses yesterday. Progress was necessarily slow because of the vast amount of detail as to the operation of the customs rules covering the weighing of sugar, which the Government had to put into the record as a preliminary to its evidence intended to connect the defendants with the frauds that Parr discovered.

In the cross-examination of Mr. Smyth John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Heike, brought out one point upon which Heike will likely lay stress. This was that the system of weighing sugar which the witness described had been in force from 1897, two years before Heike became Secretary of the Sugar Trust.

The evidence of Mr. Hyatt ran into minute details about the construction of the platform scales on which the Government weighers weighed the sugar for the purposes of the duty, inside the little scale houses, where, prior to Parr's raid, the checkers employed by the trust also worked. These are the scales on which the frauds were committed. Winfred Denison, who examined Mr. Hyatt, had the witness tell how he found the steel spring inserted in the stanchion of Scale No. 1 on the Williamsburg pier, when Parr, on Nov. 20, 1907, sent for him to get corroberation for his discovery of the frauds. Hyatt said that he examined three of the scales that same day and found similar holes in all the stanchions, but no springs in the others.

On cross-examination Mr. Stanchfield led the witness into various questions along the line of those asked Mr. Smyth the day before, the purpose of which was to show the possibility of error in the weights recorded by the Government weighers. He also got Hyatt to admit that on the piers of the National Sugar Refining Company and those of the Arbuckle Refinery, differences in weight running against the Government were found as between the returns of the Government and those of the city weighers, although there was no indication on either the National or the Arbuckle piers that the scales had been manipulated.

"Isn't it true that no one could have found the holes in those scales unless he knew they were there?" was the next question. The witness answered in the affirmative.

"No one could have known of it just by walking around the dock and generally supervising the work there?"

"No," said Hyatt.

"Didn't you have to get down on your hands and knees with a candle and your eyeglass in order to see the holes?"

"Yes," responded the witness.

After an hour or two in which Attorney Cochrane, for the defense, led the witness through the details of weighing sugar all over again, Parr was called to the stand. He told the story of his raid as he originally told it at the two previous trials of sugar fraud cases, explaining, among other things, that he was led to discover the spring by that after he had ordered the reweighing of a draft of sugar on Scale No. 1, where Ephraim Japha was the assistant Government weigher, Thomas Kehoe, the checker for the sugar company, was seen to run his hand down the scale stanchion.

Parr followed the hand and discovered the steel spring. He asked Kehoe what he was doing with it, and Kehoe said he didn't know. The examination of Parr was unfinished when an adjournment was taken for the day.

ANACONDA FINDS MORE ORE.

Annual Report Shows Large Tonnage Added to the Company's Reserves.

The annual report of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, issued yesterday, tells in detail of the ore finds of last year which added materially to the reserves of the company, and supplied a large amount of rich ore. The net profits for the year amounted to $2,134,773, while the dividends paid totaled $2,400,000, the surplus at the close of the year being $4,679,216 compared with $4,944,442 at the close of the previous year.

The output of copper by the company last year was larger than the 1908 output, but was still below normal. One contributing cause was that the Anaconda shaft was out of commission most of the year owing to the presence of gas caused by a fire in the mine. Repair work is still under way in the shaft, and when this is completed it will again be operated at full capacity.

The most important ore body uncovered was in the high ore shaft from the 1,400-foot to the 1,800-foot level. This is one of several new veins opened last year which increased the ore reserves of the company.

The tunneling and shaft sinking in 1909 had a total length of ten miles. The mines produced 1,327,291 wet tons, and the company's reduction works treated a total of 3,517,386 dry tons. The year's sales of copper, silver, and gold amounted to $11,591,844. The metals on hand at the close of the year, counting the copper at cost, amounted to $5,986,963 compared with $6,169,244 at the beginning of the year.

The Anaconda management has been in consultation with fertilizer companies to learn what disposition could be made of acid phosphate, which, it is thought, might be successfully made at the Washoe Smelter, but so far not much progress has been made on this plan. In explanation of the decision in favor of merging a number of the Butte mines in the Anaconda Company, the report says that the management had become impressed with the hopelessness of establishing absolutely the ownership of ore bodies at many points where conflicts occur, and that consolidation of the companies seemed to offer the only solution.

WON'T LET THE CITY PAY.

Gaynor to Veto the Water Meter Bill—People Cheer at the Wrong Time.

Mayor Gaynor announced yesterday, after a public hearing in the reception room at the City Hall on the bill passed by the Legislature amending the law so that the city would be compelled to pay the expense of the installation of water meters, that he would veto the measure.

This was greeted with loud applause by the property owners present, who evidently believed that the Mayor [illegible] would veto the entire measure [illegible] the installation of meters [illegible] whereas the bill before him [illegible]

TRUST METHODS WITH MILK.

Boston Dealer Says Rival Forced Him Out—Pasteurization Attacked.

BOSTON, May 18.—John M. O'Hara testified before the legislative committee which is investigating the milk situation this afternoon that he was forced out of the milk business by H. P. Hood & Son, Boston contractors. Mr. O'Hara said that he had been an independent contractor. When he was receiving 400 cans a day, for which he was paying 25 cents per can, the Hood concern, he said, offered his producers 40 cents a can, so that his supply dropped to 58 cans. The Hood Company, he said, sold the milk in this city at 35 cents, and even gave his (O'Hara's) customers in Boston milk free in order to drive O'Hara out of the market.

Representative James Oliver, M. D., medical examiner of the First Worcester District, condemned the practice of pasteurizing milk. "Milk seventy-two hours old," he said, "is absolutely dangerous to give to invalids and children. When you pasteurize milk you take away the lactic acid, which makes it more dangerous, and before the milk sours it becomes putrid." The contractors have testified that they pasteurize most of their milk as a protection against disease.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The storm of Tuesday has passed out of the St. Lawrence Valley, and clear weather prevailed generally Wednesday night, except in the South and the extreme Northwest.

Temperatures are generally higher.

Pressure is comparatively low over the West, but precipitation in consequence is not likely during the next few days, and over the eastern portion of the country the weather will be fair Thursday and Friday.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate west, becoming variable; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate southwest, except variable on the Florida coast.

Steamships departing Thursday for European ports will have light to moderate west to southwest winds, becoming variable, with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York and New Jersey—Fair Thursday and Friday; light west winds, becoming variable.

New England—Fair Thursday and Friday; light to moderate west winds, becoming variable.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Thursday and Friday; light, variable winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1909.	1910.		1909.	1910.
3 A. M.	55	52	4 P. M.	64	63
6 A. M.	53	53	6 P. M.	61	67
9 A. M.	58	58	9 P. M.	57	63
12 M.	63	62	12 P. M.	60	62

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 60; for the corresponding date last year it was 59; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 60.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 56; at 8 P. M. it was 64. Maximum temperature, 68 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 55 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 95 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 55 per cent. at 8 P. M.

MR. TAFT ON HIS ADMINISTRATION.

"How Taft Views His Own Administration" is the title of an "interview" with the President by Mr. G. K. Turner in the June number of McClure's Magazine. It is, we believe, without precedent in the history of the office that a President should in an unofficial and rather familiar way explain and defend his own action. It is the more remarkable in the case of Mr. Taft because during the last half year he has spoken in public more often, more at length, in more places, to a greater variety of audiences than any—one might say than all—of his predecessors. But breaking precedent is not breaking law, and it is clearly a matter for personal discretion.

It is obvious, however, that an apologia of this description almost necessarily assumes the double character suggested by that term. It may start out as an explanation; it is likely to become an apology; in this instance the apologetic tone is plain, even conspicuous. The interview, cast in the form of a monologue, seems to have been framed with the critics of the Administration constantly in mind. It is in substance a defense against the comments upon the Administration which have been so frequent and so serious during the last six months. In some regards the defense is strong and may prove effective. This is especially true as to the policy of the Administration regarding public lands and the conservation of resources involved in the regulation of them.

It may also be expected that the statement of what has been done in the reorganization and reform of the business methods of the Government will produce a favorable impression. The account is in no wise overdrawn, quite the reverse, and Mr. Taft and his Cabinet deserve much credit for what has been done and what has been made possible. But we fear that these things are likely to be lost sight of and that the general effect of Mr. Taft's statement will be the one almost unavoidable when one so prominent assumes the defensive.

In regard to the tariff—the one feature of supreme importance in the record of the past year—Mr. Taft accounts for his course in a manner far from satisfactory. What he says and what he leaves unsaid by no means meet the grave criticism that has been passed upon him. In two respects he sadly misunderstands the feeling he has aroused. He greatly underrates the actual violation of the party pledges, and he gravely misinterprets his responsibility for it. He states clearly enough the principle on which tariff revision was promised—the principle of duties based on difference in cost of manufacture—and he admits that nothing was done to apply that principle, while everything was done to evade and pervert it. But he clings to the absurd pretension that the resulting bill was the "best I could secure under the circumstances." Of the actual betrayal of solemn and explicit pledges he breathes not a word, and on his own accountability he is evasive. "I did not believe myself justified," he says, "in holding up the business of the country for months longer on the chance of getting a better" bill. He ignores the probability, the almost certainty, had he vetoed the bill, with specific objections, that it would have been passed in a form meeting those objections. He makes a plea for praise because he put aside "the temporary personal popularity" such a course would have brought. He seems even now, with all the experience he has had, not to see that he would have been backed by a resistless public opinion that would have carried a decent bill.

But "the entire programme of progressive legislation to which I had dedicated the whole strength of my Administration would" have been "put in jeopardy." What is this precious programme? Practically a commerce court for railways, a tax on corporations with power to learn of their affairs, amendments to the land laws, and a postal savings bank system. Really this is the substance of it. Was it worth while to surrender to the favorites of the tariff in order to secure it? We think not. And in truth he has not secured his programme, attenuated as it is in the form in which he presents it, and he is not likely to. Nor has he avoided the "split" in his [illegible] century. Moreover, with peculiar ineptness, he has by his weakness as to the tariff alienated and rendered angry and suspicious the very party leaders who were in strongest sympathy with his "programme."

What is the motive that underlies this strange and contradictory record? He avows it more plainly, perhaps, than he realizes: "I have one aim in the Presidency—to make a broad and permanent advance in the powers of the Federal Government and in their enforcement." It is an ambitious aim. Some of our best and greatest Presidents have held the conviction that the "powers of the Federal Government" were defined by the Constitution interpreted by the courts, and that their own function was to help in their exercise, not to "advance" them. The larger task which Mr. Taft professes to have undertaken is of doubtful expediency, and it is immensely difficult. It requires a very strong man.

BAD WAYS OF GOOD MEN.

There are some features of the Stenographer Kerby's case that deserve as much attention as the motive on which he professes to have acted, and criticism cannot fairly be confined to him. He testified on Tuesday that the first stage in the rather sordid story was an inquiry from a farmer, private secretary to Mr. Garfield, as to what he knew about the President's letter. His reply was, of course, in strict confidence, but it was followed promptly by an intimation from the private secretary that testimony would have to be given about it before the committee, and a suggestion that Kerby would give it. Kerby then sought an interview with Mr. Garfield, and met Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Brandeis at the same time. Mr. Garfield heard his story, recognized that he would be dismissed for it, expressed sympathy, and said he would not have him called unless it was necessary. No one in this select group seems to have hinted a doubt as to the moral or professional requirements imposed on a confidential employé.

After that Kerby appears to have felt justified and safe in talking to some newspaper friends. It is not surprising that they respected his confidence, as the others, evidently, had not. Moreover, one of them promised him that if he should publish his story he should have a good place. So the story got out. Apparently Mr. Garfield's ex-secretary was the first to leak, and so Mr. Garfield and Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Brandeis came into the case. None of them seems to have warned Kerby that he was doing a dishonorable and treacherous thing, and Mr. Garfield plainly said that "if necessary" the thing would be done. One wonders what was the code of ethics that prevailed in the offices of these gentlemen when they were in places of trust. Was it based on the assumption that good men may do bad things for what they think is a good end? That is a risky rule.

THE KIEFF EXPULSIONS.

It is difficult to understand what useful object the Russian Government can have in view in proposing to expel the unfortunate Jews from Kieff. Surely the fair fame of Russia has been sufficiently besmirched by the pogroms and other deplorable excesses which have made men doubt whether she is rightfully to be counted among civilized nations. In recent months, and especially since the rapprochement with England, a new spirit had seemed to come over Russia's treatment of her Jews and other repressed elements—a spirit which, as compared with her former attitude toward them, might be almost called one of mildness. Now suddenly an edict of expulsion is issued against the Jews of Kieff under conditions which make the measure seem more arbitrary and unjust than even the customary acts of the Russian bureaucracy.

It is well known that Jews are allowed to reside only in that part of Russia Proper which formerly belonged to the old Kingdom of Poland. This Pale of Settlement, as it is called, includes Kieff, and it would seem at first sight that Jews would have the right of residence there. But Kieff, from associations with the early ecclesiastical history of Russia, is regarded as a peculiarly holy city, therefore the Jews were excluded from its sacro-sanct precincts. Nevertheless, by special exemption from this rule, Jewish merchants of the First Guild, Jewish professional men, Jewish ex-soldiers, and a few other classes have been permitted to reside in Kieff with their families and sometimes with their servants.

It is easy to understand how indefinitely these latter categories may be extended, and what opportunities would be afforded to the Russian police, notoriously the most corrupt in Europe, to give informal permits of residence, each of which would constitute a source of "graft." Thus the original law of exclusion from Kieff has grown obsolescent with the connivance of those "higher up," who have doubtless shared in the illicit gains. About one-tenth of the Jews resident in Kieff had a strict right to remain there. A recent examination of their passports has shown that, out of 1,250 Jewish families in the Holy City, only 170 came within the privileged classes.

It is now proposed summarily to expel the remainder, some 5,000 souls, the majority of whom have been allowed to settle and to remain in Kieff for many years with the tacit [illegible] exception to the obvious right of the Jews to reside in the districts which they inhabited before Russia obtained possession of them. They then tacitly permit their police, subordinates to extend the scope of exemptions from the rule of exclusion, and they now propose to expel 5,000 men, women, and children from house and home without a word of warning.

To add insult to injury, Gen. Trepoff, the Minister of the Interior, has chosen a time for this decree when the whole policy of confining the Jews to the Pale of Settlement is being called in question by the Duma. It is a widespread opinion that this congestion of the Jews within fifteen out of the hundred "Governments" of the Russian Empire is the main cause of the degraded condition of the Czar's Jewish subjects. Having no natural outlet for their recognized abilities, cribbed and confined, the unfortunate Jews of Russia prey upon one another, as well as upon their neighbors, and ill-will results on all sides. The present Duma, recognizing this, has appointed a commission to inquire whether it is not advisable to grant rights of free movement and residence to the Jews throughout Russia, and it seems the height of arbitrary injustice to seize this moment to increase the congestion within the Pale.

Even in Russia, and among classes not usually friendly to the Jews, the injustice and bad policy of the proposed expulsions are becoming recognized. Though it may be suspected that the initiative for expulsion has come from the commercial rivals of the Jews in Kieff itself, petitions protesting against it have been sent from the mercantile classes of Kieff to the Governor of the south and western provinces, upon whom will fall the odium of carrying out the decree. They point out the obvious disruption and breaking off of lucrative business which will result from the exile of so large a number of energetic tradesmen. No strong ill-will, indeed, is manifest against the Jews among the lower classes of the Russian population. The persecution comes from above, not from below, and it is ultimately based upon the obsolete and mediaeval conception of the identity of State and Church, upon which the Russian autocracy rests precariously.

Already misgivings have seized the official mind with regard to the execution of this fresh design. A delay of ten days has been given beyond the date originally fixed for the exodus, and to that a further postponement for a like period has been made. It is sincerely to be hoped that wiser counsels will prevail with the Czar and his advisers. The prestige of Russia was seriously impaired at a critical moment by Kishineff and the other pogroms. The world was beginning to forget and to forgive even these examples of Russian barbarity. Hopes were felt and expressed that Russia, after the new entente with England, had returned once more to the paths of civilization. American public opinion was beginning to take a more lenient view of the Russian reaction since its severities had relaxed. It would be a serious disappointment to her well-wishers if the expulsion of the Jews from Kieff shall now prove that Russia, like the Bourbons, forgets nothing and learns nothing.

THE INCOME TAX.

It is hopeless to expect unanimity regarding the merits of the income tax amendment, but there should be no disagreement upon the proposition that the action taken regarding it ought to be in accord with the opinions of those who will pay it. Taxation without representation is bad enough, but taxation contrary to representation is an indictment of representative institutions, and an issue superior to the income tax itself, whatever views are taken of its importance.

After the proposal had failed of passage in the Assembly twice it has now passed the Senate by the following vote:

	Republicans.	Democrats.
Noes	19	1

This is an apparent majority of six, but is really ratification by the exact number required. The loss of a single vote would have caused the proposal to have been defeated, and ratified in the Assembly also it failed by a single vote. Here is no such preponderance of opinion as to require deference by any one whose views are dependent upon those of a majority. And the analysis of the vote altogether deprives it of sanction by the majority. This is a Republican State, and the majority of Republican Senators voted nay. The proposal would have failed but for the votes of the Democrats, representing the minority of the electorate. The party which lost the election is dictating the important legislation.

It is odd that the position in the State should so closely reproduce that in the Nation. We have a Republican President and Congress, but we are getting Democratic legislation. It is the proposals rejected at the polls which are reaching the statute book. The income tax is not a Republican proposal, it is a Democratic proposal. It appears as a Republican proposal because it was necessary to facilitate the passage of the objectionable tariff bill. Just so the silver purchase law was the price of the McKinley tariff. The bad bargain haunted the Republicans years after they purchased the victory with a price which ought not to have been [illegible] hence, perhaps, it may be necessary to explain that an income tax was imposed on the Nation and that the State parted with one source of financial strength, and something of its independence, because of political necessities unrelated to the merits of the tax.

Thus our voters are being taught that it is of little consequence what are the issues of the election, or what the decision upon them may be. After election the party managers decide what political strategy requires, and that is what is done. It is of no consequence what was the mandate of the electorate. Platforms are intended for campaigns, not for administrations. The representatives of the people are chosen not to execute a declared policy, but to take a line which shall keep the party in power. Who knows what were the issues of the last campaign? Who cares what may be the issues of the next campaign, since they may be dodged after election like the issues of past campaigns?

ATYPICAL COLLEGE MEN.

College students who cheat in their work are physically deficient. That is the inference drawn from a table prepared by Dr. J. C. Elsom, Medical Examiner of the 8,000 students in the University of Wisconsin. Taking a list of fifty students who within two years have been disciplined by the faculty for various acts of dishonesty in their university work, Dr. Elsom found that, in height, weight, girth of head, breadth of shoulders, depth of chest, strength of arms, legs, and back, the disciplined students were inferior to the average student at Wisconsin. Notably they were deficient in girth of head and strength of back. They lacked "backbone" in the physical sense.

These figures, taken by themselves, are too slim to meet proper statistical demands for basing conclusions on the physique of dishonest college students. But in the public schools and in the children's courts of this and other cities like comparisons have been made, and it has been determined pretty conclusively that moral delinquents are as a class inferior in physique. Our jails and prisons, too, are filled with badly nourished and poorly developed adult prisoners. The saying that cleanliness is next to godliness is true chiefly, perhaps, because cleanliness is conducive to health. The physically weak are a prey to temptation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Apprehension Can Now be Dismissed.

Now that the comet is safely through the spacial straight between the sun and the earth, and, after the curious cometary habit, is following its own tail off into the wider and chillier regions where it presumably feels more at home, a good many people will perhaps confess that they have been a bit worried by the terrible possibilities about which the astronomers have so calmly talked. They all knew—if they had sense enough to accept expert opinion and to calculate chances—that the world was in no measurable danger; but knowing is one thing and feeling is quite another, and there is no doubt that a vague uneasiness has been widespread ever since the mysterious wanderer came into sight, headed this way.

The results of its visit will probably all be good. Superstition has received another blow, general interest in astronomy has been excited, and everybody has learned at least a little something about the heavenly bodies and their motions. Some of the information acquired is of the kind that isn't so, but most of it is true as far as it goes, for the astronomers have been generous in answering questions and the newspapers enterprising in the publication of facts and figures and diagrams that helped to an understanding of the situation. The Times has been particularly fortunate in securing statements from learned observers—as was cordially noted by its neighbors, to the columns of which, in one form or another, its dispatches from the men with big telescopes have been promptly transferred as fast as they appeared. In doing this, said neighbors have illustrated a beautiful and deeply appreciated confidence in our accuracy by repeating a few typographical errors, including one which put the death of Methuselah a thousand years out of the way. But of course we don't mind, being always glad to be of service.

Before people turn to other matters, however, they ought to heed what Prof. Jacoby said yesterday about the need of a really large and good telescope in the vicinity of New York. Not far from the city there are several excellent sites for one, and Columbia University would be glad to provide competent men who would sit up nights to use it for our instruction and edification. The very most delicate sort of observation could not be done in this part of the country, but all ordinary astronomical work could be carried on from a peak in the Catskills, say, as well as anywhere else.

Mr. Kipling's Tribute to Edward.

Rudyard Kipling's poem on "The Dead King" cannot be said to reach the utmost height of merit attainable in what is called occasional verse, but, judging from the stanzas as yet at hand, it ranks well among the productions of its kind. It has dignity and solemnity, and though the meter is somewhat harsh and difficult, the harshness and difficulty are of a kind congruous with the grief and desolation in which, by hypothesis, the British Empire has been overwhelmed.

Inevitably these verses will be compared with the prompter and hastier tribute of Alfred Austin, and, so viewed, it is nothing less than a masterpiece. The furthest anybody has gone in praising the Laureate's poem was to call it harmless. We are ourselves not quite sure of that, for it is not well that poetry or poets should be made ridiculous, but of course Mr. Austin's intentions were of the best, and though we do not at the moment recall any serious poem by a practiced writer that is quite as bad as "The Truce of God," probably there are not a few even more inept and commonplace. Mr. Kipling at least is not inept, and he is not commonplace. He has something to say and knows how to say it with force and originality.

Whether or not Mr. Kipling is better fitted than Mr. Austin to laureate is a question to which, from some points of view, there is only one answer, but from [illegible] meets with approval in official circles his whole duty is probably done. Some, but not all, of Mr. Austin's predecessors have done more—and earned the butt of wine, or whatever the laureate's wage may be, no more honestly for the excess. Mr. Kipling himself does not write poetry quite as often as he does verse, and perhaps if he had to sing royal births and deaths and marriages, instead of doing it only when inspiration comes, he would make mistakes even graver than those of Mr. Austin.

Certainly there is no slightest chance that he will ever get the place. He is not a ductile man, his politics is a matter of personal conviction and temperament, not of party ordering, and if a royal marriage didn't please him or a royal death did, he would be dangerously apt to say so. And that would not do—in a laureate. As for this strangely constructed dirge of his, the almost grotesque exaggeration of its sentiment is obvious, but of insincerity there is no trace in it. As always, what Mr. Kipling feels and believes he sets down, and though his later phases as preacher and statesman may not best please his most devoted admirers, they are not to be ignored.

Reformers Stern Indeed.

In determining to impose severe simplicity of dress upon this year's graduates, the committee of Radcliffe seniors that had the momentous matter in charge was doubtless inspired by the highest motives, aesthetic, moral, and economic, but it may be that its members have avoided one extreme only to fall into another and that they have altogether missed the golden road that lies between.

Certainly there is need to limit expenditures for graduation gowns, lest beauty be eclipsed by vulgar because incongruous magnificence, and lest the girls with poorer parents suffer the agonies of humiliation because of inability to attain a decorative standard set unduly high. Yet, most families who can send their girls to college at all are not only able but glad to incur a reasonable amount of extra expense for Commencement Day gowns, and they should not be deprived of the privilege of doing so.

A PLANETARY SCARE.

Fear of the Comet Recalls Dire Prophecies of 1881.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The cometary event of the day with its flock of scare mongers and the prevalent morbid sensationalism remind one of the planetary conjunction of 1881. Many of The Times readers will recall that period as one when many people in Europe and this country confidently expected the occurrence of a great catastrophe, most terrible in its effects upon the earth and its inhabitants. A prophecy attributed to a certain Mother Shipton of rather uncertain existence but alleged mediaeval performances as a sorceress had obtained wide currency to the effect among other things that

> The world to an end would come
> In the year eighteen hundred eighty-one.

In the Summer of that year an unusual cosmic event occurred, viz., all the great planets—Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune—were in conjunction, every one being in the north and apparently exerting a tremendously combined attraction upon our little sphere. This event was anticipated by astrologists, fortune-telling fakers, and calamity howlers to frighten the credulous by widely circulated warnings of dire happenings at its consummation. Not a few, indeed, of the more intelligent entertained much apprehension of danger because of the planetary situation that astronomers had announced in their publications for 1881. Well, the year came, and its train of weeks and months passed on in usual course and nothing happened to disturb the earth's rotation that warranted extraordinary notice. If I remember rightly Prof. Larkin, at that time connected with the New Windsor observatory, discussed the relations of the planets at that time in a popular way, showing that even Venus and the moon were in the conspiracy against the earth, because of their position in June, 1881, between the sun and our habitat, but he showed clearly how the interrelation of axial movement and gravity rendered our world safe from extra-planetary aggressions, just as our astronomers to-day would dispel the fear of the ignorant and credulous by instructing the public with regard to the nature of comets and their movements.

H. S. DRAYTON.

Jersey City, May 17, 1910.

SUFFRAGE IN NORWAY.

Mrs. Harper Corrects Misleading Dispatches About Extension.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent dispatch from Norway regarding the extension of suffrage to women which has been widely published is so misleading that it seems best to make a statement in regard to it. It was as follows:

> By a great majority the Odelsthing has voted to grant universal municipal suffrage to women over 25 years of age * * * Since 1907 women have been allowed to vote under the same conditions as men only when they, or the husband when the couple have the property in common, have paid an income tax of 400 kroner in the towns, and 300 kroner in the country districts.

Municipal suffrage was granted to the women of Norway in 1901 instead of 1907. They did not have to pay an income tax of 400 kroner, but only a tax on an income of 400 kroner, $110. Thus even wage-earning women could have a vote. This applied to single women, to married women who held property in their own name, and to those who held it jointly with their husbands. At the same time this law was passed universal municipal suffrage was for the first time granted to me without any tax-paying qualification.

In 1907 the Parliament gave to the women of Norway full suffrage, the right to vote for members of Parliament, and to sit in that body. This was granted to all women who possessed municipal suffrage, and therefore it carried this small tax qualification. Women exercised the Parliamentary vote for the first time a few months ago, and one woman was elected to Parliament.

The women have always protested against the tax-paying qualification, which was not imposed on men. The Parliament by now removing the disqualification for the municipal suffrage has also removed it for the Parliamentary suffrage, and thus there is complete universal suffrage for women in Norway.

English in Hungary.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A unique incident occurred recently in the Slovak community, in Hungary, where, at present, an exciting electoral campaign is going on for election of members to the Hungary Congress.

A candidate trying to state his platform was interrupted by a farmer, who, addressing him in English, said:

"Slovaks don't understand Hungarian. Talk English, the language we can understand."

The candidate discussed for over an hour his platform in English. At the conclusion another farmer spoke, also in English, of his satisfaction with the platform.

This incident brought out the fact that 80 per cent. of the 3,000 inhabitants of the community had lived for some time in the United States and acquired a fair knowledge of the English language.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If Mr. Ballinger's letter is correctly published this morning he accuses Mr. Kerby of giving "information to those whom you are bound to know are wrongfully seeking to bring reproach upon the Administration." It would seem that the Secretary should be capable of writing an official letter grammatically, but how can the pronoun whom be in the nomina- [illegible]

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

An Answer to the Criticism of Misdirected Effort.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos your remarks in an editorial article this morning concerning some misdirected ambitions of the average school teacher a few comments may be pertinent.

It is a notorious fact that, in order to live up to the respectable standard of life expected of them, most teachers are to-day eking out their insignificant earnings by doing a good deal of extraneous work. Many teachers practice law after school hours, others pursue a teach in the evening schools, others pursue a goodly number of graduate courses in the universities solely for the purpose of passing higher examinations, and thus having their salaries raised—in short, it is a rara avis indeed (I mean among the male teachers) who does not quit work sharply at 3 P. M. and fly to fields and pastures new.

Such a practice may, of course, be regarded as reprehensible, but what chance of ultimate victory has any high, ethical sense of duty over the cold, hard, ever-present fact that he is not making enough to live any kind of respectable existence? Think of it! High professional and moral standards of work are set up by young men before they take their examination for License No. 1, but lo, and behold! if they are fortunate enough to pass this severe test the wolf at the door drives out of their minds all those splendid and idealistic sentiments regarding the sublime nature of their calling, its high, moral aim, &c.

If you want your children to be educated by men of refinement, education, and culture, by men who have a love, yes, a passionate love, for their work, let not these men be reminded (usually on the first of each month) that their calling is regarded with no greater favor than that of the ordinary day laborer. Do this, and we shall hear no more complaints of the unprofessional conduct of teachers in seeking so eagerly to get higher pay.

Congratulations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit a subscriber of The Times to congatulate you on your editorial in the issue of May 17, entitled "In Justice to Methuselah"? Of all that has been printed in The Times that has any bearing on the comet, this will carry off the palm for pure humor.

It is simply delicious—one of the funniest things I have seen in a long time. If you could turn to as good account every typographical error as that one, your well-wishers should be able to pardon many of them every day.

Seriously, I would like to express my appreciation of the splendid way in which you have been treating the subject of Halley's comet.

So far as I have observed no paper has compared with The New York Times in the fullness or excellence of its articles. Your series of interviews with the great astronomers of the world in the issue of May 16 was splendid. As a lover of astronomy for many years, I have enjoyed all this very greatly.

Death of Methuselah.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In suggesting that Methuselah may have succumbed to lack of sleep in watching for the comet you do not consider the alternative supposition that he met with a premature death in the flood.

Methuselah lived 187 years and begat Lamech. Lamech lived 182 years and begat a son, and he called his name Noah.

And Noah was 600 years old when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

187+182+600 equals 969.

And all the days of Methuselah were 969 years, and he died.

IT DIDN'T.

A youth upon an aeroplane was whizzing through the sky,
Fear was written on his features, there was terror in his eye.
The 'plane was aeronaughty and he couldn't stop the thing,
And when he struck the pearly gates he heard the angels sing:
"Back to earth, O flighty mortal, with your meteoric jumps,
You'll have time enough to try your wings
if Halley's comet bumps!"

A young and ardent suffragette was "rough-housing" an old peer,
She had knocked his blooming head off and had chewed off half an ear;
She fractured several vertebrae and spoiled his good right arm
To prove that votes for women couldn't do a mite of harm.
"Alas!" he sighed, and sadly stroked his sorely smitten stumps,
"If ladies act like this, who cares if Halley's comet bumps!"

A clown down at the Hippodrome was feeling rather blue,
He somehow couldn't start a laugh no matter what he'd do.
His puns all sounded punky, and his antics seemed antique,
He put his foot into his face each time he chanced to speak.
But Farceline consoled him, saying:
"Why these doleful dumps?
The earth itself will split its sides if
Halley's comet bumps!"

The animals in Africa, or such as may survive,
Expect to give a party to give thanks that they're alive.
For Bwana Tumbo's trusty gun has frightful havoc wrought,
And Kermit's faithful camera full many a beast has caught.
So the jungle folk are waiting in the jungle's thickest clumps
To see the pretty fireworks when Halley's
comet bumps.

Ah-took-a-shoe and Ak-peh-lah, those husky Eskimos,
Who helped mendacious Dr. Cook to fight the arctic floes,
Declare he really reached the pole; in fact
Ah-took-a-shoe
Affirms the flag was fastened there with some of his igloo.
But Peary says it isn't so and that these men are chumps—
Still I won't care who found the pole if
Halley's comet bumps.

Alackaday! the poet's lot is but a thankless one,
And though it strike you as a joke 'tis sad to think a pun.
It isn't that it's hard to write when once
you start to rhyme,
But ah, 'tis passing difficult to cut it out in time.
It's true they say it's curable, like chickenpox or mumps—
Still, woe unto the Paper Trust if Halley's
comet bumps.

CONGRUITY.

When beggars die there are no comets seen; the heavens themselves blaze forth the death of Princes.
—(Julius Caesar, Act II., Scene 2.)

If 'tis true when beggars die
Comets are not seen,
Still upon their lowly biers
Falls a jeweled sheen.
All the sparkling firmament
Marks the passing breath,
And the changeless stars shine forth
On the beggar's death.

If 'tis true when Princes fall
Comets blaze the sky,
Fitting symbols do they prove
Of the ones who die.
Out of place in ordered schemes
Are their orbits shown,
Erratic as a dynasty,
Fleeting as a throne.

BUTLER LAUGHS AT ARMING FOR PEACE

Ridicules "Influential Citizens" Who Want Big Armies to Prevent War.

IS THERE PATRIOTIC GRAFT?

President of Columbia at Lake Mohonk Conference Asks If War Prophets Are Disinterested.

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., May 18.—In his opening address as presiding officer of the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration, which began its sixteenth annual meeting to-day, Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, took a very different attitude to that of ex-President Roosevelt on the subject of international armament. Indeed, some of Dr. Butler's remarks were regarded by his hearers as being intended as a direct answer to Mr. Roosevelt's speeches.

Dr. Butler, who is President of the American Association for International Conciliation, said in part:

"Men who are themselves preying upon the public interest from private station or from public office are not going to be the first to urge the cause of international justice. The men who cannot succeed in holding in check their own tempers, their own lusts, and their own greed are not going to cry out for the establishment of an international court of arbitration. We have set out in this undertaking—now perfectly certain of accomplishment at a date no longer remote—without the aid and comfort of those elements of the world's population.

"Moreover, we are not likely to gain much assistance from the cynical observer of his kind whose faith is not adequate to the entire observation of history and of men. His keen vision and quick wit see readily enough the bad and selfish side of public and of private life, and he contents himself with a jeer and a sneer at those who propose to turn that life inside out.

"Some of these elements are elements of indifference, some are elements of active opposition. To those who represent the element of indifference I cheerfully accord the most powerful place among the opponents and obstacles of our programme. Those who are in active opposition need not detain us long. The assumptions which are their grotesque substitutes for argument and the fallacies which they hug to their several bosoms as illustrations of perfect logic are too easily confuted to make them dangerous.

"There is one other type of citizen who must be mentioned, because the type is numerous, influential, and important. This is the type which holds the view that, of course, international arbitration is a thing greatly to be desired; of course, we must all hope for the day when that at present distant, impracticable, and wholly praiseworthy ideal shall be reached; but that, until that day—which is probably to be the Greek Kalends—we must continue to tax our great modern industrial nations, struggling as they are under the burdens of popular education and of economic and social betterment, in order that death-dealing instrumentalities may be increased and multiplied and the several nations thereby protected from invasion and attack. This procedure, so the curious argument runs, is to hasten the coming of international arbitration and to promote it.

"This point of view requires for adequate treatment, not the arguments of a logician, but the pencil of a Tenniel or the caustic wit of a Mr. Dooley. Look at the situation in the world to-day as this type of man presents it to us. Of course, the United States is a peaceful nation; of course, Great Britain is a peaceful nation; of course, Germany and France and Japan are peaceful nations; but therefore, because they propose to attack nobody they must so strengthen their defenses, so multiply their navies and increase their armies, that nobody can successfully attack them.

"Who, pray, is left to attack these peaceful and law-abiding nations if, as we are assured by everybody—both leaders of Governments, the molders of public opinion, and the substantially unanimous press of the world—they do not propose to attack each other, unless it be an army of white bears from the newly discovered north pole or a procession of elephants and camelopards from the jungles of Central Africa?

"The gullibility of mankind was never more conclusively demonstrated than by the widespread acceptance of this huge joke, which, unlike most other jokes, has to be paid for at a literally stupendous price.

"Either the whole world is being deluded by a witticism of cosmic proportions or some important persons are conspiring to tell an awful lie.

"I am one of those who look for the simplest motives in explanation of action or of conduct. My impression is that somebody makes something by reason of the huge expenditures in preparation for war. Have you ever noticed that about the time that the appropriations for military purposes are under consideration in the Congress, in the House of Commons, in the Chamber of Deputies, or in the Reichstag, or just before such a time, hostilities are always on the point of breaking out in two or three parts of the world at once? Just at these times war prophets begin to see visions and to dream dreams, and the poor, gullible people rush off to their cyclone cellars and shout timorously to their representatives to vote at once and as much as possible in order that great ships and guns and forts may be built to protect them from their fears.

"We have done of late some helpful and illuminating legislative inqury in this country. It might be worth while to have the same sort of ability that has so brilliantly exposed to our repelled and astonished gaze other forms of political chicanery and graft, make some measurement of the sincerity and disinterestedness of the lively type of patriotism which accompanies these military and naval debates the world over."

Prof. John B. Clark of Columbia University spoke on "An Economic View of War and Arbitration." He discussed class antagonism, the growth of Socialism, and the menace of revolutionary doctrines, which he said were spread throughout the world, and the strife between capital and labor as showing that the existing social order is in grave danger. He said that these dangers could be largely removed if the vast sums now expended in military preparations were used for improving and conserving natural resources, bettering educational methods, caring for the aged and infirm, conquering disease, relieving congested population, and other work for the general benefit of mankind. By such means he believed the economic evils of the time might be overcome. Taxes might be lowered, monopolies removed without interfering with production. But to carry on such reforms, he said, would require expenditures so great that it would be necessary to employ the resources now going toward the maintenance of instrumentalities of destruction.

The members of the conference—diplomats, educators, jurists, and clergymen from various parts of the world—were welcomed by Albert K. Smiley, LL.D., the founder and host of the organization.

TO INTRODUCE POOR TO PARKS

Series of May Parties, with Music and Luncheon, to be Given.

Finding that a large number of families never visit the parks the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor is arranging a series of introductions to Central Park. These introductions will take the form of May parties, with other appurtenances of the Spring festival.

More than 1,000 have been invited to the two parties on the East Green on May 21 and June 4. Three trained kindergartners with five or six assistants will be in charge and organize games for the children. A luncheon with ice cream and milk will be served. A feature will be the Children's Orchestra of thirty players, which will furnish the music under the leadership of [illegible]

MINIATURE HOMES SEEN AT THE GARDEN

Real Estate Exhibition Opens There with Some Notable Examples of Modern Houses.

A FORTY-HOUR STRUCTURE

Workmen Put Up a Tile and Stucco House in That Time—Flowers Bloom at the Door.

No longer need the city toiler remain in doubt as to the whereabouts of his suburban home. A visit to Madison Square Garden, which was transformed last night into a real estate emporium, will solve all of the troublesome problems with which the prospective commuter may have been wrestling.

A real estate and ideal homes show, the first of the kind ever given in the city, opened there last night, and if any one seriously thinks that the higher price of railroad fares to the country is likely to make any difference in the army of suburbanites, he should have witnessed the crowds grouped around the portable and stucco houses and the miniature topographical plans of many localities whose names are well known to every seeker for suburban life.

As one enters the Garden the first sight that meets his gaze is a six-room portable house, built exactly according to living plans. It can be set up for $1,200, and has the advantage that if the owner dislikes the community in which he has pitched his camp, he may pull up stakes, so to speak, and move on to some other locality.

To those who want something more enduring, the hollow tile fireproof stucco house in the centre of the floor may prove attractive. The house itself is an object lesson of rapid and clever building skill. It is twenty feet long, and has been put up in every detail as a permanent dwelling in the open air. Twenty-five skilled workmen were employed on the job and they were putting the last of the Spanish tiles on the roof last night. It took forty hours to complete the job.

As fast as the masons did their part of the work the plasterers and stucco men followed, and when the walls were up the scaffolding was lifted on in one piece.

Wistaria blooms over the entrance, while red geraniums and bay trees in the front yard add to the home comforts.

How a tapestry brick house on the old English style looks is shown by an entire wall with gabled roof of big oak rafters on one side of the Garden.

Two of the most interesting exhibits are miniature topographical maps outlining every conformation of the ground with the winding roads of the Great Neck estates, Long Island, and Palisade Heights in New Jersey, opposite Grant's Tomb. In the latter a bit of realism is injected by a canvas painting adjoining the land showing the projected Hudson River bridge leading from Leonia across the river to about 179th Street.

Another attractive exhibit shows a home recently finished at Woodmere, L. I. The house is made on a scale of one inch to the foot, conforming in every particular to the original. This principle is carried out even to the trees in the yard, which are real, planted in real sod, including two dwarf Chinese maples, a Chinese arbor vitae, a most unusual tree, and a row of dwarf box leading up to the doorway.

Besides the houses and detailed plans of suburban home sites nearly everything conceivable that enters into the construction or furnishing of a country home is shown.

CLARA MORRIS LOSING SIGHT.

No Hope Entertained of Preventing Actress from Becoming Blind.

No hope is now entertained of preventing Mrs. F. C. Harriott, who was Clara Morris, the actress, from becoming totally blind. Dr. B. H. Belcher, the family physician, in Yonkers, stated yesterday that every possible effort was being made to cure Mrs. Harriott of her ailment, but that her sight was failing so rapidly that it was difficult to see how eventual blindness could be prevented. The general condition of the actress aside from her eye trouble was somewhat worse yesterday, and fear was expressed that Mrs. Harriott may not recover.

Drs. Markle, Leonard, and Hartley of New York were in conference yesterday on the case. Many persons who had heard of Mrs. Harriott's affliction called to express sympathy, but were not permitted to see the patient, on whose recovery absolute rest is regarded as being essential.

MLLE. DAZIE GETS DIVORCE.

Dancer Obtains a Decree Against Mark A. Luescher Without Alimony.

Justice Martin J. Keogh, sitting in Special Term of the Supreme Court for Westchester County at New Rochelle yesterday, granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in favor of Dazie A. Luescher against Mark A. Luescher. The action was brought on statutory grounds. A hearing was held in New York City on April 12 before Walter G. C. Otto as referee. George Young Bauchle represented the plaintiff and William E. Hills appeared for the defendant.

The decree gives the plaintiff the right to resume her maiden name, which is Daisy Peterkin, but makes no provision for alimony. Mrs. Luescher is known on the stage as Mlle. Dazie, a dancer, and several years ago was billed as La Domino Rouge. Mr. Luescher is press agent of the United Booking Offices.

Lupino Arrives to Act Chanteclair.

Barry Lupino, the English actor who is to act the title rôle in "Chanteclair" at the American Roof Garden this Summer, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic. "Chanteclair" is a musical satire of farmyard life. Herr Tuschl, the stage manager, arrived yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland, bringing with him the costumes and other properties for the production of "Chanteclair," which is not the Rostand play of similar name.

Nat C. Goodwin to Appear in New Play

Nat C. Goodwin will again return to the stage after a short vacation as mine owner and financier. His first offering next season will be a new play that has been written for him, and later he will probably revive "A Gilded Fool," "An American Citizen," and some of his other old plays. Mr. Goodwin is now in California on his ranch near Ocean Park. Mrs. Goodwin, who was Edna Goodrich, is in Europe.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Walker Whiteside has arrived in New York after an automobile trip from Chicago, where he has been playing in "The Melting Pot."

The Ogden Crane Opera Club will present "Cavalleria Rusticana," "A Bachelor's Dream," and Act. III. of "Rigoletto" at Carnegie Lyceum this evening. In the casts will be a number of people well known in social and musical circles.

Marie Dressler will give a matinee for women at the Herald Square Theatre on June 1, her last Wednesday matinee of "Tilly's Nightmare" until after the hot weather is over. No man will be allowed to purchase a ticket.

Arthur Cunningham has been engaged by the Shuberts and W. A. Brady to sing the title rôle in "The Mikado," which will open at the Casino Theatre on May 30. Mr. Cunningham has been in comic opera on the Pacific Coast for several years and was a member of the Tivoli Opera Company in San Francisco. He appeared here with Fritzi Scheff in several of her productions, and has been leading comedian with Lulu Glaser in "Just One of the Boys."

The City Theatre on Fourteenth Street will end its first season on Saturday night with "The Servant in the House." The theatre will reopen the latter part of August with one of the current plays of Broadway.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Henry Addison Alexander has sent out invitations for the wedding of her daughter, Eleanor Butler Alexander, to Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., which takes place at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church on Monday afternoon, June 20, at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. William Curtis Demorest has closed her town house and is stopping at the Hotel Renaissance in West Forty-third Street. Next week Mrs. Demorest will go to her camp at Loon Lake in the Adirondacks.

The wedding of Miss Helen Morgan Frith, second daughter of L. Edward Frith of 35 West Thirty-seventh Street, and Hendrick Hudson will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the residence of Mr. Frith. The reception following will be small.

In the palm garden of the Central Park Casino at 3 o'clock this afternoon there will be a Chantecler entertainment for the benefit of the New York Diet Kitchen. There will be a sale of Summer hats, and an attractive musical programme at 5 o'clock. In the evening a café chantant is to be held during which a table d'hote dinner will be served.

To raise funds for the children of Old Greenwich Village a dramatic performance portraying life among the Indians and a pantomime and dance will be given this afternoon on the roof of the Waldorf-Astoria by the boys and girls of the Greenwich House Settlement.

Miss Mathilde Townsend of Washington, whose wedding to Peter Goelet Gerry takes place on June 1, is in Atlantic City for a few days.

Joseph E. Fletcher of Providence gave a dinner last evening on his yacht, the Carmina, which was anchored off the Columbia Yacht Club.

Mrs. Henry Villard has closed her city home and has gone to Dobbs Ferry.

Mrs. M. Orme Wilson entertained last evening with a small dinner at her residence, 3 East Sixty-fourth Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Camp have returned home after spending some time in Europe.

Lady Arthur Herbert of London, on her arrival in this country late this month, will be accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. G. H. Slater, who is now in London. They will go to the Slater villa in Newport for an indefinite stay. Mrs. Slater has been abroad for some time and spent the Winter in a trip up the Nile.

WEDDED AT BRIDE'S BEDSIDE.

Lieut. J. C. Walker Married to Mrs. E. C. Jones, Recovering from Appendicitis

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—In a flower-bedecked room of St. Luke's Hospital, Lieut. J. C. Walker, United States Army, stood by the bedside of Mrs. E. C. Jones yesterday as the Rev. A. C. Bane read the service that made the couple husband and wife. The wedding was to have been celebrated last Saturday, but was interrupted by an attack of appendicitis, from which the bride was sufficiently recovered yesterday to permit the holding of the ceremony.

Mrs. Walker is the daughter of the late Col. Bryce, who was the editor and owner of The San Antonio (Texas) Express. The bridegroom is a native of Galveston.

MISS DOROTHY WAGNER WEDS.

Daughter of the Late Col. A. L. Wagner Married to Lyman H. Nelson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Miss Dorothy Wagner, daughter of the late Col. A. L. Wagner, U. S. A., was married at noon to-day to Lyman Haviland Nelson of New York. The ceremony took place in the small ballroom at Rauscher's, Canon Austin of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church officiating. The bride was escorted by her uncle, Thomas H. Howard of Pittsburg. Miss Gertrude Wagner was her sister's only attendant. Talen Nelson of New York was best man. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Nelson left Washington or New York, whence they will sail Saturday for England, where they expect to make their home.

Weds Day After His Graduation.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 18.—Thomas F. Carter of 18 Bradford Place, who was graduated yesterday from the Union Theological Seminary, was married to-day at noon to Miss Dagny Olsen of Norway in the Spring Street Presbyterian Church, New York City, by the Rev. Roswell Bates, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. Samuel Carter of East Orange. Next Tuesday Mr. Carter will be ordained in Trinity Presbyterian Church here, and he and his bride will spend the Summer in Europe. In the Fall they will leave for Hwai-Yuen, China, where Mr. Carter will become a missionary.

William McAdoo Sails for Europe.

William McAdoo sailed yesterday on the White Star liner Oceanic. He said that he was going abroad for six weeks and declined to discuss business.

Wm. Faversham and Julie Opp Sail.

William Faversham and Julie Opp, his wife, their two children, and Mrs. Opp, Mrs. Faversham's mother, sailed yesterday on the Oceanic. They will spend the Summer at the country home of Mr. Faversham in Surrey, England, returning to America in September. Mr. Faversham and his wife will then go on a tour of the country.

REGULARS WIN IN OHIO.

Only One Defeated in the Republican Congressional Primaries.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 18.—Forty-two candidates were nominated in Ohio yesterday for the twenty-one seats in the lower house of Congress, and Ralph D. Cole, Republican, of the Eighth District, the only present Congressman, defeated for a renomination. Frank B. Willis, a lawyer of Ada, takes his place upon the ticket.

The campaigns made against Representatives Taylor of Columbus, Kennedy of Youngstown, Thomas of the Eighteenth District, and Keifer of Springfield, on the score of their tariff attitude, failed. Gen. Keifer won by 600 votes.

CENTRAL ROAD ALSO WILL RAISE RATES

New Commutation Schedule Now Being Prepared—Increase Will Average $1.

HIGHER FARES ON D., L. & W.

Erie Blames Big Jersey Tax for Its Action—All Roads Say Commuters Are Costly Customers.

It was announced yesterday that the New York Central Railroad, like the other railways running into this city, will presently raise its commutation rates. It was said two days ago that the Lackawanna, the Central of New Jersey, and the Erie would raise theirs, but that the New York Central was still on the fence. The circle is now complete.

General Passenger Agent Fort of the New York Central said that the new rates it will submit to the Public Service Commission, about May 25, will decrease the rates of some commuters, though the general purpose of the change is to get more money for the company out of the service, which in itself is always unprofitable and often costly.

"While we are making the changes," he went on, "we will standardize the charges on the West Shore, Hudson River, Harlem, and Putnam Divisions, so that the rates will be the same on all. There are some differences now. This standardization will bring about a decrease in some instances."

The New York Central is not ready yet to say how much its commutation rates will be raised, but a dollar a month probably will be the average raise for all the roads.

"Commutation service is not a profitable part of the railroad business," said Mr. Fort. "Not infrequently it is a costly expense. In the case of a big city like this, where the terminal facilities are very expensive, the commuting service is particularly unprofitable. The roads get something back in freight charges, and when a commuter wants to go on a long journey he naturally will use the line at his door if he can.

"Labor and everything else connected with the railroad business has gone up so high that the roads must raise their rates. President Brown of the New York Central is on record as saying that freight rates must advance. It was inevitable that the commuting service should be increased also."

The raise of rates by the Erie will vary from 85 cents to $1.25. The Montclair rate will be $6.35 instead of $5.50. Paterson will be raised a flat $1. The Erie has been losing money on its commuters, it was said yesterday. Even the popular Greenwood Lake branch lost $80,000 last year, it was declared.

New Jersey's heavy tax upon the Erie is partly to blame for the raising of the commuting tickets, it was said. The road paid last year to the State about $500,000 in taxes. If half that amount had been taken off it was possible that the commuters would not now have to feel the increase. The Erie doesn't want to make any money off its commuters, it was declared; it only wanted to come out even with them.

Though Vice President Caulder of the Lackawanna said that he had nothing to give out, it is known that the Lackawanna has been considering raising the rates, and has been figuring upon what could be done. The increase has not yet been determined.

General Passenger Agent Hope of the Central Railroad of New Jersey was found struggling with a lot of figures. He said he was at work on the question of raising commutation rates. He did not know just how much they would be raised, nor for a certainty that they would be increased, but he was struggling with the problem.

General Passenger Agent Lee of the Lehigh Valley said that his road had never tried hard for commuting business, and so had only two or three hundred of them, but that their rates would be raised in about the same proportion as in the case of the other roads.

MUST NOT SHELL BLUEFIELDS.

American Officers Forbid the Venus to Bombard the Town.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, May 18.—The steamer Venus, with Gen. Irias and a large force of Nicaraguan troops on board, accompanied by the tug San Jacinto, arrived off the bluff yesterday afternoon and immediately demanded the surrender by Gen. Estrada, commander of the Provisional forces, of the bluff and the town of Bluefields. The notification to Gen. Estrada allowed twenty-four hours for the women, children, and non-combatants to retire to a place of safety before the bombardment of both places was begun.

Gen. Estrada refused to surrender, and American Consul Moffatt, Commander Gilmer of the United States gunboat Paducah, and Commander Hines of the United States gunboat Dubuque at once intervened. They refused to permit the bombardment of Bluefields or any fighting within the town, on account of the large foreign interests.

They did not forbid the bombardment of the bluff, but ruled that foreign commerce could not be stopped. They demanded the release of the Norwegian steamer Dictator, which had been held up off the bluff by the Venus, and this demand was complied with.

The Venus sailed last night from the bluff, and this morning the steamers Moriella and Hiram arrived, the latter having a consignment of heavy guns, rapid firers, and ammunition. It is thought that the Venus went in search of these vessels.

The bluff is now being fortified with field pieces and rapid firers, and probably will be able to give a good account of itself in an engagement.

DEMOCRATS RALLY FAILS.

Less Than 300 Jerseymen Out to Hear Three United States Senators.

The Democratic rally planned to initiate the Fall campaign in Essex County, N. J., which was held last night in Krueger's Auditorium, in Newark, was very much of a fizzle. Despite the fact that four United States Senators were advertised to speak and three showed up, there were less than 300 persons in the vast hall, and only twenty-five on the platform.

The meeting was arranged by leaders of the Democratic Union of New Jersey as the beginning of a movement which they hope will assume a National aspect, demanding a return to government in accordance with a stricter interpretation of the Constitution and opposed to the so-called special interests. This purpose was explained by J. P. Sprigg of Essex Falls, N. J., Chairman of the union, in calling the meeting to order.

The speakers were Senator Joseph A. Bailey of Texas, Senator Joseph F. Johnston of Alabama, and Senator William E. Purcell of North Dakota. Senator Charles J. Hughes of Colorado had been invited to attend, but was prevented from coming from Washington by ill-health.

Senator Bailey, who was the last speaker, predicted future Democratic success and urged New Jersey to make up in the next ten years for the "mistakes" of the last twelve years.

"You will have help in this," he said. "There are Republicans who are beginning to get conscience-stricken. They are insurgents. Do you know what insurgency is? It is a half apology for being a Republican."

He said that Republicans who are opposed to the principles of the regulars should leave the party, citing that in 1896 Democrats left their party "like men," when they did not agree with it, and that Republican insurgents should do the same thing now.

DE CRESPIGNY A SUICIDE.

British Officer Who Recently Played Polo in America Self-Slain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 18.—Capt. Claude Champion De Crespigny, D. S. O., who was recently in New York, where he had many friends, was found dead to-day by the roadside at Kingscliffe, Northamptonshire. He was shot through the head, and a revolver was in his hand.

Capt. Champion De Crespigny arrived at Kingscliffe Station from London at 10:30 last night and set out to walk in the direction of Apethorpe Hall, the residence of Leonard Brassey and Lady Violet Brassey, where he had been an occasional visitor. At 5 o'clock this morning a workman came across his body.

The dead officer was the eldest son and heir of Sir Claude Champion De Crespigny, the well-known sportsman, of whom it has been said that he can hunt like a hound, swim like a fish, run like a hare, and box like Jeffries.

Capt. Champion De Crespigny was in the Second Life Guards.

Capt. Claude Champion De Crespigny was a member of the Hurlingham Club polo team that recently visited the United States.

The Captain was 37 years of age. He served with the British Army in South Africa in 1899 and 1900, and with the West African frontier force in 1903. He was twice wounded, and was twice recommended by his commanding officers for the Victoria Cross because of deeds of conspicuous gallantry.

Capt. Champion De Crespigny was made a member of the Distinguished Service Order in 1900, and in that year became an aid de camp to the Viceroy of India, returning to England in 1902. He was educated at Eton, and entered the army in 1895.

The Champion De Crespignys are a very old Norman family who fought in the first crusade under St. Louis and took the name "Champion" from the circumstance that the head of the family was hereditary champion of the Dukes of Normandy and Brittany.

Claude Champion De Crespigny, Escuier, Sieur De Crespigny, was an officer of high rank in the French army, but after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes went with all his family to England, where he was received by the Pierponts, being allied by marriage with that noble house. He obtained a Colonel's commission in the English army. His great-grandson was created a baronet in 1805 after receiving the Prince Regent at his home, Champion Lodge.

The present baronet, Sir Claude Champion De Chespigny, has five sons, each of whom is named Claude. Capt. De Crespigny, who has committed suicide, bore no other Christian name, while each of the others has two Christian names. The heir is now Claude Raoul Champion De Crespigny, an officer of the Grenadier Guards.

JOHN A. KASSON DEAD.

Ex-Minister to Austria and Germany and Envoy to Samoan Conference.

John A. Kasson, former United States Minister to Austria and Germany, died yesterday in Washington, D. C., in his eighty-ninth year.

Mr. Kasson was born in Charlotte, Vt., Jan. 11, 1822. He was graduated from the University of Vermont in 1842 and three years later was admitted to the Massachusetts bar. He removed soon after to Iowa, where he was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in Chicago, in 1860, which nominated Lincoln. His long official life began in the following year, when he was appointed First Assistant Postmaster General. He was a member of Congress from Iowa from 1863 to 1867, a member of the Iowa Legislature from 1868 to 1873, and again in Congress from 1873 to 1877 and from 1881 to 1884. In the interval between his two last terms of Congress he represented the United States as Minister to Austria and served in the same capacity to Germany from 1884 to 1885. In the latter year he was a commissioner to the Congo International Congress, and in 1893 he was special envoy from this country to the Samoan International Conference.

Among his most distinguished achievements was the successful negotiation with the late William Walter Phelps of the Tripartite Treaty between the United States, Great Britain, and Germany which determined the dispute between the three countries as to the ownership of the Samoan Islands, which resulted in the division of the group between the three nations. He was appointed by President McKinley as special Commissioner Plenipotentiary to frame reciprocity agreements with foreign countries under the terms of the Dingley tariff law. In 1808 he was a member of the America-Canadian Joint High Commission.

Mr. Kasson wrote a history of the formation of the United Statets Constitution and the history of the Monroe Doctrine. He was President of the Columbia Historical Society and a member of the Metropolitan and other Washington clubs.

J. WALLERSTEIN DEAD AT 103.

Walked a Mile Every Morning Until the Day of His Death.

Joseph Wallerstein is dead at his home, 340 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, at the age of 103 years. His age did not seem to have any effect on his physical condition until the morning of the day he died, for it was then that he was unable to take his usual morning one mile walk, a custom with him for the last five years. He complained of being ill Tuesday morning, and at noon he died.

On Monday morning he visited the Jewish Temple of the Congregation Ohaz Sholoum, at Thatford and Belmont Avenues. This had been his custom every morning, and he followed it by visiting his son, Morris Wallerstein, at 351 Belmont Avenue. From there he walked to his home. This morning walk was usually about a mile.

Mr. Wallerstein was born in Centre, Russia, in 1807. Besides his wife, who is 102 years old, he is survived by two sons and four daughters. They are all married. Mr. Wallerstein has great grandchildren living in Russia. He was a member of almost every Jewish organization in the city.

MRS. BRASHEAR IS DEAD.

Mother of Astronomer Remembered Last Visit of Halley's Comet.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 18.—Mrs. Julia Smith Brashear, 91 years old, mother of Dr. John A. Brashear, the astronomer, and daughter of Nathaniel H. Smith, a pioneer of Pittsburg, died last night at the home of her son, George A. Brashear, after an illness of about two years.

Mrs. Brashear remembered well the former visit of Halley's comet seventy-five years ago, and frequently discussed it with her sons. In recent years while her son was preparing to observe the present comet she recalled phenomena occurring in connection with the earlier appearance. Prof. Brashear had abandoned his extensive preparations for observing the comet and devoted himself to his mother, whose death had been expected for some time.

Charles P. Forbush.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18.—Charles P. Forbush, Commodore of the American Canoe Association, died last evening after a short illness. Mr. Forbush was one of the organizers and oldest members of the Buffalo Canoe Club, and had been a member of the National Association for more than fifteen years, holding in turn every office, being elected Commodore last Fall. He was one of the most popular canoeists in the country, and did much toward broadening the field of canoeing along lines of a practical, healthful sport. He was about 50 years old and leaves a wife and children.

DIRECTORS EXPEL SYNDICATE CHIEFS

Producing Managers' Body Also Drops Cohan, Thompson, and Others Who Resigned.

FOR 'CONSPIRACY TO WRECK'

Open Door Theatre Men to Meet with Association To-day—Joseph Brooks Denies He Took Books.

Further action was taken by the National Association of Theatrical Producing Managers at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, in the matter of several of the members who resigned last week. These members, who included Klaw & Erlanger, Joseph Brooks, Henry B. Harris, William Harris, and others, asserted that certain other members of the association had been guilty of breaking the association's rule about making public the happenings at a Directors' meeting held Thursday afternoon.

At yesterday's meeting, according to a report sent out late last night, it was unanimously decided to expel from the association A. L. Erlanger, Marc Klaw, George M. Cohan, Joseph Gaites, A. W. Dingwall, Frank McKee, James Forbes, and Frederic Thompson for "conspiring to wreck the organization and for conduct unbecoming members." It was further decided to allow Henry B. Harris, William Harris, and Jesse L. Lasky, who were out of the city, and who had notified the Directors that they could not be present, two weeks' time in order to appear and answer the charges against them.

Twenty new members were elected yesterday. At 2 o'clock to-day the Board of Directors of the Producing Managers Association, and the Directors of the recently organized National Association of Theatre Owners, of which John Cort is President, will meet in the rooms of the former to discuss methods for the mutual protection of both.

The only one of the resigning members who had anything to say about Tuesday's action of the association was Joseph Brooks, who gave out the following letter as a copy of one he sent to the Producing Managers' Association:

"I have your favor of the 17th inst. That the instigator of the letter lacked the courage to sign his name was undoubtedly due to the fact that the statements are and were known to be false. The letter was no doubt written for publication and for the purpose of giving free advertising—or I should say notoriety—to one or more of your members. I have resigned and that ends it, for I, on my part, am not so hungry for free advertising as to engage in this feigned controversy."

The communication to which Mr. Brooks refers is a letter sent him Tuesday by the Directors of the association accusing him of having taken certain books and records of the association from the rooms in the Times Building, to which, it was alleged, he had no right.

Obituary Notes.

AUGUST GEHNER, President of the Planters' Hotel Company, President of the German-American Bank, Vice President of the Kinloch Telephone Company, and Director in the Mississippi Valley Trust Company, is dead at his home in St. Louis, Mo. He was born in that city in 1846, and served through the civil war.

HYPOTHESIS

The income from a building, like any other hypothesis, must be worked out logically.

Extravagance, poor workmanship and delay will not give the proper income for a result, any more than two and one will make four.

The only way to prove the hypothesis of a building income is to work out the problem on the basis of economy, quality and speed.

But our Cost Insurance contract goes further than that.

JEFFRIES TO FIGHT JOHNSON IN FRISCO

Official Announcement of Change from Emeryville—Bout on July 4.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 18.—Official announcement was made to-night by Jack Gleason and Texas Rickard, the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, that the fight will be held in San Francisco on July 4.

This decision was reached after it became evident that District Attorney Donahue of Alameda County would endeavor to prevent the fight if the promoters attempted to pull it off on the Oakland race track. The opposition has become so strong in Alameda County, and especially among the church people, that District Attorney Donahue was forced to declare himself against holding the bout in that section.

In view of the new turn of affairs, the filing by Louis Blot and Milton T. Clark, representatives of a local athletic club, of a petition for leave to build a big open-air arena within the city limits, is looked upon as significant. It is proposed to expend $10,000 on this structure, and the plans call for a seating capacity of 15,500. Work on it will be begun at once.

Jack Johnson went through his scheduled programme of boxing this afternoon, the second workout of the kind since he opened quarters at the beach. In spite of disagreeable weather 400 spectators were out to see the heavyweight work with his sparring partners. Ned Greenway, a society leader, with a party of friends, and Eddie Smith, an Oakland referee, were present. Smith declared himself as well pleased with the appearance of Johnson.

Johnson boxed nine three-minute rounds to-day, but did not go at it with the same dash that characterized his showing Sunday.

Of the three men who donned the gloves Marty Cutler gave Johnson decidedly the best exercise. Marty is no boxer and has a poor defense, but he slambanged at Jack and caused the champion to exhibit his "golden smile" on more than one occasion.

BEN LOMOND, May 18.—Led by the retired champion, everybody in the training camp went fishing to-day. An early start was made to Santa Cruz, where Jeffries was to indulge for the first time in deep-sea fishing. In the party were all the members of the training staff.

Eddie Graney, who was prominently mentioned for referee before Rickard was selected, was closeted for half an hour with Jeffries last night, and while he declared that he called merely to renew friendship, his presence here has an element of mystery which has caused some speculation.

Jack Kipper, business partner of Jeffries in Los Angeles, is out with an offer to bet $50,000 on Jeffries at odds of 10 to 8.

WITH THE LIGHTWEIGHTS.

The Smith-Baldwin Bout May Develop a Go with Wolgast in It.

If Frankie Smith wins his bout with Matty Baldwin at the Madison Athletic Club to-night it is possible that he will be matched with Ad Wolgast, the lightweight champion, at the same club in two or three weeks. Joe Humphreys has assured Heinie Rafael, Smith's manager, that he will recommend Smith for this bout on the strength of his showing with Baldwin to-night.

In the meantime Ray Bronson, the Indiana lightweight, is anxious for a go with Wolgast, but he prefers to go the distance allowed in California. In the event of a California bout not materializing, Bronson would be willing to go into a New York ten-round bout with Wolgast. Bronson lays great stress on the fact that he is his own manager and transacts all of his business from his home in Indianapolis.

Attell and Murphy to Meet Again.

Abe Attell will make his last local appearance before his fight with Jem Driscoll on the coast against Tommy Murphy at the National Sporting Club on Friday night. Murphy, who has strong lightweight championship aspirations, is determined to make a more decisive showing against Attell than on their last meeting in this city. The Harlem fighter is training at Fishkill and is going at his boxing mates hard, hoping to develop speed for ten rounds which will leave no doubt about his superiority over his opponent. Attell doesn't worry about dream punches, for he is confident that he can outbox Murphy so decisively that there can be but one conclusion when it comes to a decision on Friday night.

Burns Tackles Piet To-night.

Kid Burns, the west side lightweight who is to box Henri Piet, the French lightweight, at the Long Acre A. A., to-night has completed his training for the contest. Burns is in fine physical condition and expects to put out the Frenchman long before the limit round is reached. Piet is also ready for the fray, and is confident of winning.

Goodman Training at Fair Haven.

RED BANK, N. J., May 18.—Jack Goodman of New York, who is aspiring for the lightweight championship, has gone into training at the Atlantic Hotel, Fair Haven, for his fight on May 31 with Driscoll, the lightweight champion of England, at the Fairmont Athletic Club in New York. Jack spent last season at Fair Haven, and he liked the place so much that he decided to go into training there. His trainer is Danny Sullivan, and his sparring partner is Eddie Toy.

UNIVERSITY CLUB GOLF.

D. H. McAlpin, Formerly of Princeton, the Leading Competitor.

Fortunately for several other contestants, conditions governing the University Club golf handicap at Morris County yesterday made it possible for a contestant to win only one prize. Otherwise D. H. McAlpin, a former Princetonian, who knows every blade of grass on the Morris County course, so to speak, would have cleaned things up generally. As it was, Mr. McAlpin with a score of 159 won the thirty-six-hole gross prize.

As McAlpin took the gross prize for the double round, W. D. Vanderpool, another Princeton graduate, with an eighty-one in the afternoon, received the trophy for the best eighteen-hole gross figures. With the aid of his handicap McAlpin also had low net, but as he had already won a prize this trophy went to A. P. Alvord of Amherst, who scored 171—18—153. R. M. Tarleton of John Hopkins and F. B. Pratt of Amherst also came in for net prizes. The leading scores were:

	Gross.	H'c'p.	Net.
D. H. McAlpin, Princeton	159	8	151
A. P. Alvord, Amherst	171	18	153
W. D. Vanderpool, Princeton	163	8	155
R. M. Tarleton, Johns Hopkins	174	16	158

Hackensack Golf Club Election.

HACKENSACK, May 18.—The Hackensack Golf Club last evening elected the following officers: President, W. Edward Foster; Vice President, Charles Henderson; Secretary, George E. Wells; Treasurer, T. H. Thomas; Governors for two years, G. G. Ackerson, H. Myers Bogert, H. Paul Mehlin, and T. S. B. Nielsen.

Touring Club Entertains Trade.

The officers of the Touring Club of America yesterday entertained the members of the automobile trade at the new clubrooms, Seventy-sixth Street and Broadway. During the afternoon nearly one hundred manufacturers and dealers inspected the new quarters, and were received by President Westgard, Secretary Elliott, and Mr. Jones.

Taft at Tennis Tourney.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—In the third day matches of the invitation tennis tournament at the Chevy Chase Club, the stellar performance to-day, witnessed by President Taft, was between Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia and Spencer Gordon of Washington, the former winning, 6—1, 2—6, 6—3. In the men's singles also another spirited match was played by L. E. Mahan and Lee McClurg, the former winning, 6—1, 6—2, every game having been close. In the men's doubles McLean and Gore defeated Cassells and Newbold, 6—2, 6—1.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

As a result of a disagreement over the stable management James McManus, the former San Francisco street car conductor, who has come into notice as a successful turfman, has transferred his horses from the care of Kimball Patterson, an able young trainer from Kentucky, to O. A. Bianci, whose change from Italy to America has added a very capable trainer to the American turf.

Many horsemen who timed the race for the Ladies' Stakes, run in sloppy mud on a fairly sound bottom, returned the first five furlongs in 1:00.

Just before Fitzherbert went to the post for the Jockey Club race yesterday he struck himself on the right hind leg. The injury was regarded as slight and he ran without any indication of damage received, but J. E. Madden, his owner, gave his individual attention to the horse before he was led away.

P. S. P. Randolph yesterday bought from G. W. Berry the smart two-year-old Aldrian for a sum reported to have been $3,500.

Jockey Vincent Powers, with engagements at the Toronto (Canada) meeting to-day, left New York last night.

TURF STARS VICTORS IN CLASSIC STAKES

Ocean Bound Wins Historic Ladies, and Fitz Herbert Takes Jockey Club Race.

The comet quite probably had nothing to do with the light and solemn attendance at the Belmont Park races yesterday, but some intangible influence reduced what under anything like ordinary conditions would have been an attractive card, to a decidedly perfunctory series of mildly interesting races. Two of the big events of the turf calendar, one a real classic in the forty-second running of the Ladies' Stakes, which has survived beyond two of the great and famous race courses of the American turf, old Jerome Park, where it was inaugurated a very short time after the civil war, and Morris Park, to which course the race was transferred after the old American Jockey Club gave up to improvements old Jerome Park.

The other stake was The Jockey Club Weight for Age race, a race which in its history has usually brought out the best horse of the year in the test of speed under weights equal for all under the scale.

The stakes did not quite equal the records, but they brought out some of the most notable horses of the turf, Woodford Clay's Ocean Bound, which until a mishap threw her out of training about midseason rated with the best performers among the two-year-old fillies of 1909, and Samuel C. Hildreth's Fitz Herbert, the most successful three-year-old on the turf last year and conceded to be the champion of his age, victor in the Jockey Club race. Both started as warm favorites, though there was some little hesitancy among the partisans of Ocean Bound, due to her misfortunes in training, and lack of knowledge of her fitness. Ocean Bound won in a style that made it quite certain that she was immeasurably best of the field of five fillies that ran over the mile distance of the stakes, but at that she had a race and had little to spare when she reached the winning post, two lengths before Indian Maid, second, six lengths in the front of the others of the field lined out, heads apart, for third place, which Mexcana secured by a narrow margin.

Fitz Herbert, with 129 pounds, against Grasmere and Candleberry, 109 each, two of the most promising of the three-year-olds developed in the latter part of last season, made the running for The Jockey Club race, Fitz Herbert starting, with Powers up, as the strongest favorite of the day. For just the few seconds that the horses were settling down after the barrier rose for the mile and a furlong trial, Candleberry led, Fitz Herbert second and away. Passing him then, Fitz Herbert was out in front the remainder of the distance, though Grasmere seemed to straighten him out twice in his challenge for first place, once coming to the far turn and again close about the last quarter pole. Fitz Herbert came on in stout style at the end and was first at the finish, a good length before Grasmere, with Candleberry beaten off eight lengths. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Purse for two-year-olds, non-winners of three or more races, or of $1,000, special weights, with allowances; four and a half furlongs straight.
Jonh E. Madden's Novelty, b. c., by Kingston-Curiosity, 110, (E. Dugan,) 4 to 1 and 7 to 5....1h Marigot, 121, (E. Dugan,) 20 to 1, and Louise S., 121, (Shilling,) 12 to 1, also ran. Ocean Bound won decisively, though tiring at the finish. Time—1:43.

FIFTH RACE.—The Jockey Club Weight-for-Age Race, for three-year-olds and upward, scale weight; one mile and a furlong.
John E. Madden's Fitzherbert, br. c., 4, by Ethelberg-Morganatic, 126, (Powers,) 1 to 3 and out....1 1½
James R. Keene's Grasmere, ch. c., 109, (Butwell,) 5 to 1 and 3 to 5....2⁸
Richard T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Candleberry, b. c., 109, (E. Dugan,) 7 to 1 and 4 to 5....3
Only three horses ran. Won in hand at finish. Time—1:54.

SIXTH RACE.—Purse, for three-year-olds and upward, selling allowances; seven furlongs.
S. C. Hildreth's Eddie Dugan, ch. c., 3, by Mazagan-Lady Hope, 95, (G. Garner,) 9 to 10 and 1 to 2....1⁴
Richard F. Carman's Sir Cleges, b. g., 5, 106, (Langan,) 8 to 1 and 2 to 1....2⁸
William Walker's Chepontuc, ch. c., 108, (Ramsey,) 7 to 2 and 1 to 1....3¹
Blue Crest, 105, (Clement,) 30 to 1, and Loco, 106, (McGee,) 16 to 5, also ran. Won easily. Time—1:29.

ENGLEWOOD TAKES MEET.

Hackensack Was Outclassed in Second Dual Competition.

The second annual athletic dual meet between Englewood and Hackensack was held yesterday on the grounds of the Englewood Field Club, and resulted in an easy victory for the home team. The Englewood athletes scored easy wins in the track events, while the competing clubs were fairly evenly matched in the field events. The summary:

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

William B. Cragin, Jr., the Long Island champion, and Benjamin M. Phillips, the former hockey player, won the places in the semifinal round of the cup singles yesterday on the clay courts of the Harlem Lawn Tennis Club, 131st Street and Seventh Avenue. In the doubles, helped out by defaults, Gustave Steinacher and S. Howard Voshell landed in the semi-finals. Altogether the progress of the tournament was impeded by the heavy rain which fell during the early morning, and as a consequence the test of competitors' skill became an important feature in the few matches decided. The summary:

Men's Cup Singles.—Fourth Round—William B. Cragin, Jr., defeated Walter L. Pate, 6—2, 7—5; Benjamin M. Phillips defeated Edgar A. Lowther, 7—5, 6—4.

Men's Cup Doubles.—First Round—Edgar A. Lowther and George S. Groesbeck defeated Walter D. Chase and E. A. Salembier by default.

Second Round—C. M. Schubert and R. A. Woods defeated G. B. Legge and Henry M. Hobart by default; Gustave Steinacher and S. Howard Voshell defeated H. M. Robinson and partner, (walkover;) William B. Cragin, Jr., and Walter Merrill Hall defeated Benjamin M. Phillips and Edgar F. Leo, 5—7, 6—3, 6—1; Ralph Lewers and W. A. Noble defeated A. Balch and Paul Martin, 11—9, 6—2.

Third Round—Gustave Steinacher and S. Howard Voshell defeated C. M. Schubert and R. A. Woods, 6—4, 6—0.

Consolation Singles.—First Round—George A. Hamlin defeated Walter Hazard by default; Arthur Scheffer defeated George Brinkerhoff, 6—0, 6—3.

Frederick C. Inman, the metropolitan champion, and John Tomlinson reached the semifinal round of the men's championship singles for the Hackett-Alexander Cup yesterday on the lower courts of the West Side Tennis Club, 117th Street and Amsterdam Avenue. Inman disposed of L. H. Fitch, 6—2 and 6—love. In his match Tomlinson defeated Newton Rae, 6—3, 9—7. The summary:

Men's Cup, Championship Singles.—First Round—Joseph Condon defeated Edgar W. Leonard, 6—4, 6—4.

Second Round—Joseph Condon defeated Dr. J. W. Travell, 6—2, 6—1; Ross Burchard defeated Edwin P. Fischer, 6—4, 6—3; J. P. Fuller defeated W. W. Washburn, 6—4, 8—6; J. S. Cushman defeated George S. Groesbeck, 6—0, 6—3.

Third Round—Frederick C. Inman defeated L. H. Fitch, 6—2, 6—0; John Tomlinson defeated Newton Rae, 6—3, 9—7.

All of the duly accredited representatives of the clubs included in the Metropolitan Lawn Tennis League were passed upon as final yesterday for the season. The club lists of eligible players for the championship series of matches will be closed to-day. As the matter now stands there are a number of players in dispute as to which club they may play for. One of these is Carleton R. Gardner, the Californian, who is claimed by two clubs. Unless Gardner makes his declaration to-day to Secretary Walter L. Pate in writing, as provided by the recent rule, he may not be eligible to compete in any of the championship series.

The list of the representatives of the clubs is as follows:

Crescent Athletic Club—Henry C. Martin; New York Athletic Club—Lewis H. Freedman; New York Lawn Tennis Club—Robert M. Beckley; West Side Tennis Club—William B. Cragin, Jr.; Kings County Tennis Club—Henry J. Mollenhauer; Knickerbocker Field Club—Harry S. Roberts; Montclair Athletic Club—Otto H. Hinch; Hamilton Grange Tennis Club—Walter Merrill Hall; Bedford Park Lawn Tennis Club—William H. Connell; Brooklyn Tennis Club—Arthur A. Hassell; Harlem Tennis Club—Dr. William Rosenbaum; Park Slope Tennis Club—Alfred P. Abbe.

Montreal Limits Privileges of Athletes.

The Montreal Amateur Athletic Association at its annual meeting on Monday night decided to limit the privileges of athletic members, at the same time increasing their fee. This matter has been the subject of much agitation among the members of the association, and the curtailment of the athletes' privileges is said to be due to the infringements on the organization's generosity. Reports showed the association to be in a splendid financial condition. The receipts during the year were $80,000, and the surplus over the expenditures was $10,800. Another $10,000 was paid on account of a loan to the association, making $50,000 in all paid off during the last five years.

Strong Field of Marathon Runners.

Marathon racing seems to be attractive to Canadians, as a second annual Derby over the full course, 26 miles 385 yards, will be decided at the new Stadium, Hanlon's Point, near Toronto, on the night of Tuesday, May 24. The field, one of the strongest that ever entered a Marathon, includes Thure Johansen of Sweden, the world's record holder; Jim Crowley, New York City; Ted Crook, Harry Jensen, and Pat Dineen, United States; Kolehmainen and Neimren of Finland; Wood, Red Hawk, Deerfoot, Simpson, Davis, Hans Holmer, Roe, and March, Canada; Henri St. Yves, France, and Liberios, Italy. The two Finlanders are said to be first-class runners. They are under the management of Lawrence Robertson, trainer of the Irish-American Athletic Club of New York. Tom Eck, the manager of the Marathon, says Deerfoot, the Alberta Indian, will be a hard man to beat, as it is contended he can defeat either Longboat or Acoose.

BILLIARD TITLE FOR ALFRED DE ORO

Defeats Hueston for World's Three-Cushion Championship by a Score of 150 to 114.

Alfred De Oro won the three-cushion billiard championship of the world last night by defeating Thomas Hueston, the title holder, by a score of 150 to 114 as a result of three nights' play at Doyle's Billiard Academy, West Forty-second Street. The match was played in blocks of fifty points, and each was won by De Oro. The first evening he scored a victory by 50 to 41, the next evening by 50 to 35, and last night the score read 50 to 38.

Hueston played high-class billiards, but he could at no time approach the form displayed by the new champion, who gave an exhibition the like of which has not been seen in a three-cushion billiard match for a long time. An indication of what was accomplished by De Oro is shown by the number of innings which it took him to complete his string of 150 points. The first night sixty innings were played, Tuesday night the total was sixty-two, and last night sixty-one, or a total of 183 innings for his 150 points.

De Oro was at the top of his game, and for a time last evening he gave an exhibition that far outclassed anything which he accomplished in the other two games of the match. Not only was he brilliant getting carroms from difficult "leaves," but after the middle of the game he steadied down and played consistently with no particularly high runs, but steady counts that increased his total rapidly. From the twenty-eighth to the thirty-eighth inning he totaled eighteen points with the highest run three, and from the twenty-eighth to the forty-eighth inning he gathered thirty points, which brought his total to 42. After this he fell down somewhat and it took him thirteen innings to assemble his count of eight for the completion of his string of fifty.

For a while it looked as if De Oro would beat his opponent even more decisively than in the two previous nights. When it was evident, however, that the match was out of the reach of the St. Louis player he played with more ease and perhaps a bit of recklessness, so that he cut down De Oro's lead materially. At the end of the forty-eighth inning De Oro was leading by 15 points, and with the same form that he was then displaying it appeared that he would defeat his rival by at least 17 or 18 points.

While De Oro unquestionably outclassed Hueston, the latter certainly did play in some hard luck. Many times he was "kissed" out of points that seemed certain of being chalked up. This was the rule throughout the three nights' play, De Oro, on the other hand, escaped such misfortunes many times by the slightest margin.

During the first part of last night's match De Oro was not playing any too well. In twenty-seven innings he was able to add to his count only 12 points, but Hueston could not seem to take advantage of the misses of his opponent, and his total for the same number of innings duplicated that of De Oro. All during this period of play the lead alternated frequently, with never more than one or two points separating the rivals.

Hueston's best play came in the thirty-second inning, when he gathered a neatly worked out cluster of five, which stood as the best run of the evening. His next best total was four, negotiated in the fifty-second inning. De Oro's best run was four, in the forty-fifth inning, but he had six runs of three.

It was announced last night that Lloyd Jevney of Salt Lake City, the Western champion at the three-cushion game, had challenged De Oro for the championship. According to the rules, the match must be played within sixty days, and it will probably take place at Doyle's Academy.

COOPERSTOWN WINS CUPS.

Polo Tournament at Westchester Closes with One-Sided Victory.

The annual Spring polo tournament of the Country Club of Westchester closed yesterday on the club grounds at Westchester when Cooperstown defeated Portchester for the Westchester cups by the score of 13 goals to 8½. The winners were handicapped with seven goals, but this was wiped out before the first half of the game was played. The Cooperstown team, which won the opening contest Monday, continued its good playing and ran up a big score.

Malcolm Stevenson, who, with E. S. Reynal, shouldered the biggest individual handicap, played an exceptionally brilliant game. He scored nine goals and completely outplayed his opponents. He rode true and hard, and was particularly effective with his backhand strokes. The Portchesters scored but two goals, both of which were from the mallet of J. H. Hunt, and in addition lost half a goal by penalties. The final period was the most brilliant in the game when Stevenson, by clever riding scored three goals in quick succession. The line-up and summary:

COOPERSTOWN.		PORCHESTER.
1—E. S. Reynal	4	1—J. J. Downing	1
2—C. P. Beadleston	2	2—E. J. Crawford	0
3—M. Stevenson	4	3—J. H. Hunt	2

What is the most important part of an automobile?

Usually the manufacturer of an accessory says his specialty is—tires, wheels, magneto, axles, gears, etc.

But when you get right down to it, the engine is the most vitally important part of any car, just as the heart is the most important part of a man. It is the motive power that sustains the life action. Skilled engineers know this for a fact. The engine is the first thing you want to look at when you examine an automobile.

Do you know that the

engine is and has been the standard gasoline engine for years, even long before automobiles were ever run successfully? And that the Oldsmobile has been a successful automobile for twelve years, which is a very long time for the automobile industry in this country? So it is evident what an enormous advantage the Oldsmobile had to start with—i. e., the best gasoline engine in existence. Have you ever heard of an Oldsmobile engine breaking down?

The rest of the car was built around this remarkable engine and used it as the standard—a high standard for automobile constructon—but it is the reason why you see to-day so many 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909 Oldsmobiles running right along with other 1910 models.

In appearance—which means design and "lines"—the 1910 Oldsmobile, in any of its models, shows "class" throughout. In performance it has justly earned the terms Reliability, Roadability, Oldsmobility, and these terms resulted from the experience of owners, not through press notices of specially built racing cars and specially geared hill climbers.

Always-ready-ability is what is wanted in a motor car, and you get it in the Oldsmobile at two thousand dollars less than you pay for other makes in the Oldsmobile class.

Don't accept these statements because they are in an advertisement; come in and substantiate the claims for yourself by any kind of a demonstration—or better—test.

Comet day was observed at American League Park yesterday with appropriate astronomical fireworks, the Yankees gushing forth a shower of meteorites in the seventh and eighth innings which put the St. Louis Browns groggy under the strong influence of cyanogen gas. As the Hilltop is high, a lot of the fans thought it likely that this streamer of fire that young Halley is driving was likely to strike there, and stayed away. Those who did observe the display liked the pyrotechnics. The Yankee won, 6 to 3.

The St. Louis team are great starters, but when they get in the stretch they are the champion snoozers. For six innings yesterday they plastered the Yanks from head to foot with whitewash, in the meanwhile slapping the wood against the répertoire of tosses sent up by Jim Frill opportunely enough to corral three runs. In the lazy inning, just as every one stood on his legs and lifted his arms and yawned, the Yanks began to pummel the pill, and meteoric base hits splashed all over the lawn. A peaceful citizen who was passing along the outside of the fence about this time thought that the crowd was having a rehearsal for the Roosevelt homecoming next month.

Ole Stremmel from the Wisconsin woods was the latest pitcher to be tried by St. Louis. He delivered the right packages for six innings, and then the Yanks got "hep." Up to that time he gave them only a brace of harmless singles. When the Yankees did solve the slants they rushed by the Browns like the Twentieth Century dusting through Wappingers Falls. When the Browns hit Frill they made dents in the fence. Griggs cudgeled with demoniac fury, getting a triple and double and a single off Frill, and the only scratch single that was made off Jim Vaughn was when he took up the flinging in the eighth. In the fifth Stone crashed one to the furthest corner of centre field, and it ought to have been an easy homeromp for a sleep-walker, but a coacher stopped Stone as he was rounding for the pan and put him to slumber on the third mattress.

Appertainin' to the arithmetic worked out by St. Louis it was like this: Stremmel unfurled a two-sacker in the third, and Stone met his demise, Frill to Chase. Stremmel raced to third, and Chase tossed over to catch him. The throw was irritable, and Laporte muffed it. He shot it home as Stremmel sprinted in that direction, but that throw was unmentionable also, and the St. Louis pitcher chalked the first run. Allen singled in the fifth and Stremmel sacrificed. Stone's terrible jolt to the centre fence scored Allen. Griggs unpeeled a rousing rap to centre in the sixth, traveling three stations before he put on the brakes. Schweitzer put all his Teutonic muscle into his swing and ignominiously fanned. Hartzell skied one to left, and Cree ran in for it when he should have been hurrying in the opposite direction. Griggs scored, and Hartzell got to second all right, but tried to stretch himself to third, and died on the trip. There's really little else to tell about St. Louis.

New paragraph. Here's the comet inning. Gardner monoplaned to Stone, and Jack Kleinow accepted a gift. Long John Knight was sent in to bat for Frill. His first meteor was a foul. Allen was right under it, but gazed skyward as if spellbound. That was a life for Knight. The next toss he straightened into right field. Hemphill nestled a bunt along the third-base line, and Wolter punched a roller to Griggs, who was slow in fielding it, and Kleinow scored. Bases full, and all telescopes focused on Hal Chase.

Well, when the haze dissolved Knight and Hemphill had tallied, and the score was all square. Laporte cracked a hot, snaky bounder to Wallace, and Bobby let it filter through him, Wolter jaunting homeward.

With two dead and buried in the eighth, Kleinow singled and got along by secondstory work. Vaughn lifted a Roman candle to Hoffman. Pardon the laughter, but Danny fondled it as if it was a broken bottle of carbolic acid. Kleinow ran home, and Hemphill singled to left. Wolter laid a bunt in the proximity of first, but no one covered the bag. No wonder St. Louis is in last place. Vaughn scored on this trivial bit of carelessness.

Come on, Cleveland.

Groom Effective Against Naps.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Groom was effective with men on bases to-day, and Washington was enabled thereby to defeat Cleveland 4 to 3. Mitchell was driven to the bench in the fourth inning, and Berger, who relieved him, was very effective. McBride's fielding again featured the game. Score:

Buffalo Finds Skeeters Easy.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 18.—With two men on bases and two batsmen out in the ninth, after the Skeeters had started a rally, Milligan was put into bat for Crist, but was unable to land safely on the ball, and the Bisons took the first game of the series from the Skeeters. Ferry was hit at the right time, while Taylor kept his singles scattered. The feature was a home run drive over the left field fence by O. Johnson in the second inning. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 18.—The New York Giants took the first game from the Reds here this afternoon and incidentally George Suggs, the famous Southern twirler, got a walloping for the first time this year. Previous to this afternoon's game Suggs had a record of five straight victories and no defeat. But Mathewson worked against him this afternoon, and even though the Alabama pitcher pitched his cleverest, he couldn't hold the Giants to less than ten counts. Cincinnati scored twice in the early innings and made a hard fight of it at the end, but the lead was too great to overcome. The final count was 10 to 6.

The "ginger ginks" were first to score. Bob Bescher began the work by singling on the first ball pitched. Paskert was out, but Bescher worked the delayed steal and got to second, going to third when Hoblitzel flied to Seymour and coming home when Mitchell singled. In the second, with two men out, Lobert singled and stole second on a passed ball. Suggs doubled to right centre and Lobert came home. This ended the scoring for the Reds until the latter part of the ninth.

In the fourth, a bad bounder made Downey fumble Doyle's tap and he was safe. Mitchell erred on Murray's long hit, Doyle scoring and Murray going to third. Downey fumbled the second time on Bridwell's rap and Murray came home. Devlin went to first when he was hit by a pitched ball, and a moment later the pitcher tried to catch Bridwell off second, but threw wide and both men moved up a notch. Merkle walked, filling the bases. Bridwell scored when Meyers singled and "Wingo" Anderson went out to warm up. Lobert caught Matty's foul, but Devore singled and Devlin touched the plate. Mitchell made a beautiful throw from centre field and caught Merkle a the plate.

Devore opened the seventh with a beautiful triple to right, and scored a moment later when Doyle singled. Murray fanned and Seymour walked, Bridwell singling to third, and Doyle scoring. Devlin flied to Mitchell. Merkle doubled to left, and Seymour and Bridwell scored. In the eighth Mathewson singled to Downey. Devore sent a three-base hit to the right garden and Mathewson scored. Doyle sent a sacrifice fly to Bescher and Devore came home. Murray fanned for the third time and Seymour grounded out.

Had not Devore dropped an easy fly in the ninth inning Mathewson would have held the Reds to something like seven hits. As it was, they got eleven, and were coming so fast near the end that it looked to a few of the 10,000 fans present as though the Reds might possibly win out.

The final round of the game began with Egan's single to left. Downey died. Egan tried to steal second and was caught, Meyers to Bridwell. McLean sent out a Texas League single. A moment later he advanced on an error. Then the large blow-off came. Lobert sent a high fly to left, and everybody thought that Devore had it. But he dropped the ball, and McLean scored. McCabe was substituted to bat for Suggs and made a two-base hit, scoring Lobert. Bescher singled and McCabe scored, Bescher going to second when they tried to catch McCabe at the plate. Paskert singled and Bescher scored. Paskert went to second when they tried to catch Bescher. Hoblitzel, however, ended it all by striking out.

Brooklyn Errors Give Cubs Victory.

CHICAGO, May 18.—Chicago defeated Brooklyn 3 to 2 in ten innings to-day. The winning run was scored on McMillan's bad throw of Tinker's grounder, Archer's sacrifice, and Pfiester's single. After making two spectacular catches in the seventh, Wheat dropped two flies in succession and gave Chicago its second run. Pitcher Carson has been released to the Vernon (Cal.) club. Score:

Pirates Bat Curtis Out of Box.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 18.—Boston hit Camnitz hard, but the hits were scattered through the game, and the visitors lost to Pittsburg again, 8 to 5, mainly because of ragged fielding, and the fact that Curtis was found for seven hits in the first two innings. Brown, who succeeded him, was more effective. Leach and Brown each knocked the ball over the fence for a home run. The score:

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

The all-American rugby football team, composed of representatives of the State universities of Nevada and California and of Leland Stanford Junior University, left San Francisco on Tuesday for Vancouver to sail for Australia and New Zealand. The invitation for the tour was extended by the New South Wales Rugby Union, which has arranged a schedule for the visitors that will enable them to play all the representative rugby fifteens of the Antipodes.

One of the features at the Palisade Amusement Park, Palisade, N. J., which will be opened on May 28 will be the automobile race. Three automobiles on an incline rising to the sky line of the tall trees on the bluff will be at the disposal of automobile racing enthusiasts during the entire season. The automobiles will start on an even line behind a barrier after the fashion in vogue in horse races. Immediately after the barrier is released the autos with their occupants start on their ride of 1,900 feet.

Charles F. Ackerson's new forty-eight-foot cruiser yacht Selma of Brightwaters, built by George E. Buckhout, Poughkeepsie, from designs by Edson B. Schock, had her maiden trip on the Great South Bay on Sunday. Mr. Ackerson had as his guests Mr. and Mrs. F. Pennington Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kellock, Mrs. Susan Ackerson, Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Urquhart, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Ackerson, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. B. Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller, Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Ackerson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Hynes, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Buchheit, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mackenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Oddie, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. William Chipman, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ackerson, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cummin, and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Watson.

Three feature events will be shown at the games of San Salvador Council at Pastime Oval next Sunday afternoon that should appeal to every athletic enthusiast. In the 300-yard scratch event Ray Dorland of the Pastime A. C. will race W. J. Hayes of Philadelphia and J. J. McEntee, New York A. C. The San Salvador team will represent New York against Philadelphia and Washington in the inter-city relay for Knights of Columbus. On the local team will be such talent as Keating, Rosenberger, Egan, and Wright.

The Sharkey A. C. will hold its regular weekly stag to-night. In the main bout "Dixie Kid," colored welter weight, will box Billy West. West has defeated Bill Hurley, Charley Hitte, and Kid Henry, and on a recent tour of the South defeated the best fighters. "Dixie Kid," although beaten by Clabby at the Empire A. C., has a great record, and is again in good condition. In the semi-final Young Rocky will tackle "Battling" Larry Ryan for six rounds, and there will be four more bouts.

Less than a week remains to enter for the games of the Brooklyn A. C. on Decoration Day. The events follow: 100, 300, 880-yard and three-mile handicaps; 75 and 600-yard novices. The meet, which will be held at Washington Park, Grand Street, Maspeth, is sanctioned by the A. A. U. Entries close with Dieges & Clust, 23 John Street, and with Gilbert McGowan, 132 South Eighth Street, Brooklyn.

Charley Lawrence will meet Jack Dorman in the main bout of ten rounds at the Lehigh A. C. to-morrow night. Goodman was engaged to box Dorman, but had to call it off because he is compelled to help Cross train. Goodman, however, will meet Dorman in two weeks. Two six-round bouts will precede the main event. Terry Brooks will meet Billy Creamer and Eddie McMahon boxes George Bush.

The first Winter tournament of the Catalina (Cal.) Tuna Club showed some surprising results. According to the rules, anglers had to bring their catches to gaff unaided and the fish reeled in. A broken rod, before and after gaffing, disqualified the angler. The prize winners in the light tackle class, nine-ounce rods and nine-strand lines, were: Largest yellowtail, 40½ pounds, Commodore C. G. Conn; largest white seabass, 57 pounds, J. W. Frey, Los Angeles; largest albicore, 50 pounds, W. N. MacMillan, East Africa; largest bonita, 14½ pounds, Miss Susie Conn.

According to Louis Opp, there is every indication of a good weakfish season in the neighborhood of Broad Channel. This part of Jamaica Bay has always been a favorite place for these fish, as well as flounders, and this Spring has been no exception. The first weakfish was caught about two weeks ago, and since then they are growing larger in numbers daily. On Tuesday Harry Stuyvesant of the Nomad Fishing Club of Brooklyn landed six nice ones near the trestle, and wound up the day by catching a good mess of flounders. The Nomads have scheduled a trip to the channel on Sunday next.

Blackfish are still much in evidence around the City Island bridge. Dick Hanlon and Bob Ferguson of the Harlem Fishing Club rowed out from Jordan's on last Tuesday morning and seemed to have struck a school of blackfish at once. Hanlon's first catch was a two-pounder, and Ferguson followed with one nearly the same size. Altogether they got fourteen "blackies" and five flounders.

Seabass usually do not run into the bays until early in June, but this year they have appeared in Great South Bay in fairly good number. In the vicinity of Babylon on Monday last two Long Island City fishermen caught six, weighing from three-quarters of a pound to one pound. Seabass of this weight are considered very choice even in the midst of the season.

The Wyanoke Fishing Club of Brooklyn, with Capt. Henry Harris in command, has scheduled a trip for Gravesend Bay and around Coney Island in a motor boat next Sunday.

YALE AND BROWN GAME ENDS IN TIE

Providence Collegians Even the Score in Eighth—Stopped in Twelfth Inning.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 18.—Yale and Brown played twelve innings this afternoon without either team winning, the score standing five all when Capt. Hennessey of Brown asked Capt. Logan of Yale to excuse the Brunomans from further hostilities as the team had to catch a train. Yale apparently had a safe lead in the eighth, when the Browns fell upon pitcher Murfey and he retired after Brown had scored three runs. Two more runners were driven home with Tommers in the box, but this ended the scoring.

A muddy field made errors frequent, but Nash and Regnier contributed some gilt edge fielding. McIntyre pulled off what would have been a triple play had not one man been out when it occurred. With men on second and third, in the fifth inning, Hennessey drove a high liner to McIntyre, who leaped and caught it. He raced to second and touched the bag before Snell could return and tossed the ball to third before Manswer could retreat. Bliss was hit hard, but not effectively, when the bases were occupied. The score:

Fordham Beats Springfield T. S.

Fordham won a light-hitting game from Springfield Training School on University Field yesterday by a 3 to 0 score. A heavy rain fell immediately before the game, and the wet ball was responsible for many of the errors. The game was a pitchers' battle, with the honors falling to Murray Quinn. Only two hits were registered off his delivery, and eleven men were victims of his slants. Washburn pitched a fine game for the visitors. He had a bad inning, however, in the second, when he hit two men and walked another. Skip McCarthy, whose catching and base running were features, drove two men home with a double to centre. Jim McCarthy played fine ball at third base, some of his pick-ups being of the sensational order. Cook had a finger split in the eighth inning, and Peew, a left-hander, went behind the bat. N. Y. U. Loses to Seton Hall.

Seton Hall had little difficulty in defeating New York University on Ohio Field yesterday afternoon, scoring 11 runs to their opponents' 3. Pitcher Yule, for N. Y. U., struck out ten men, but he was poorly supported, and the boys from Seton Hall easily scored on the New Yorkers' errors. The score:

Johnson Looking Into Boycott.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 18.—Ban Johnson, President of the American Baseball League, was in conference with the owners of the Cleveland ball team here to-day, discussing the labor boycott against the team. The boycott arose through the alleged employment of non-union labor in the erection of the new grandstands. President Johnson was unfamiliar with the situation, and had no advance theories.

BARGAINS IN SHOW HORSES.

Dispersal Sale of the Late Mrs. Ladew's Stable Amounts to $7,040.

Bargain prices marked the sale of the saddle horses and ponies last night at Van Tassell & Kearney's sales ring, 126 East Thirteenth Street, to close out the stable of the late Edward R. Ladew. The sale, which was ordered by J. Campbell Thompson, attorney for the executors, attracted many society leaders and Horse Show exhibitors. The imported hackney stallion Changue Squire fetched the highest price of the sale. After lively bidding the handsome son of Newberry Lightning was knocked down to W. Burling Cocks for $1,275. Robador, for which Mrs. Ladew paid $2,500, was disposed of to Dr. Ryder for $800. This was one of the best bargains of the sale. Robador won the saddle horse championships at Madison Square Garden and Long Branch.

The imported pony Defender, which has captured fifty blue ribbons, also went to Dr. Ryder for $1,100. He was expected to find a purchaser for twice this amount. Doncaster Model, another imported champion pony, went to Douglas Robinson for $685, while his mate was knocked down to Dr. Ryder for $875. The only other notable bargain was Artist's Model, which was secured by F. S. Brown for $610.

There was some disappointment over the withdrawal of the famous roan pony All There, which has beaten all the best ponies in this country, including A. G. Vanderbilt's Mel Valley Wonder. Eleven head went under the hammer for $7,040, an average of $640 apiece. The summary and prices follow:

Confederate, b. g., (Stuart and Hollis,) $800; Jack Frost, ro. g., (J. Schweiger,) $200; Pattie Pembroke, ro. m., (Dr. McCully,) $450; Ragtime, ch. g., (H. S. Whiting,) $410; Cardiff, b. g., (J. E. Davis,) $335; Doncaster Model, b. s., (Douglas Robinson,) $685; Mighty Atom, b. s., (Dr. Ryder,) $875; Artist's Model, br. m., (F. S. Brown,) $610; Changue Squire, b. s., (W. Burling Cocks,) $1,275; Robador, ch. g., (Dr. Ryder,) $800; Defender, ch. g., (Dr. Ryder,) $1,100. Total, $7,040.

Results of Billiard Matches.

In a practice game yesterday afternoon of 18.2 balk-line billiards at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway, Harry Cline defeated F. N. Nally by the score of 300 to 52. Cline's high run was 96 and his average 30. Nally's high run was 13 and his average 5 2-10. In the evening game Cline again won, defeating Harry Parham by the score of 300 to 27. Cline made a high run of 115 and an average of 21 6-14. Parham's high run was 5.

In the special 50-point three-cushion-carrom billiard match last night at McGraw's Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, George Moore, the champion three-cushion-carrom billiardist of Greater New York, was defeated by Henry Solomon, the champion of Portland, Ore., by the score of 50 to 45 in ninety-three innings. Solomon's high run was 6 and Moore's was 4.

Fordham Athletes Under Ban.

At the monthly reading of marks in University Hall it was announced by the Faculty that Joseph Sharkey, '13, and Francis McCaffrey, '12, members of the Fordham 'Varsity baseball team, were barred from participating in athletics because of classroom deficiencies. As both McCaffrey and Sharkey are regular players, the former 'Varsity shortstop and the latter second baseman, their loss will be keenly felt.

Had to Give Up Girl or Baseball.

OXFORD, Miss., May 18.—Rather than lose his fiancee Robert Mitchell, regarded by many as the best college pitcher ever developed in the South, will abandon the idea of playing as a professional. Young Mitchell had accepted terms from Manager Chance for a trial with the Chicago Nationals and was to report before June 1. His sweetheart, however, delivered an ultimatum and Mitchell has forwarded his letter of explanation to Chance.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Heavy and Dull, with Call Money Rates 3¼@4 Per Cent.

TRADING SMALLEST OF YEAR

Cotton Market in Sharp Decline on Presence of Rains in Belt—Better Feeling in Iron and Steel Trades.

Yesterday's stock market was a thoroughly uninteresting affair. The volume of trading fell to something like 230,000 shares, the minimum for any full session of the present year, and the movement of prices was entirely in keeping, fluctuations being confined in practically all instances to small fractions. There were no features to the trading; the stagnation was practically complete. If such a market could be said to have any tendency whatever yesterday's could probably be described as heavy, by reason of the fact that prices in general were at the close a trifle under those obtaining on Tuesday night. All the day's interest centred in the cotton and grain markets. Cotton broke sharply on reports of plentiful rainfall over every section of the cotton belt where rain was needed, and before this movement had run its course spot cotton had declined $1.75 a bale, while the various futures were off nearly as much. Wheat prices were heavy, but the final losses were relatively small, although reports from both Winter and Spring wheat districts were unanimous in foreshadowing largely increased yields as a result of rains as timely as those which visited the cotton territory. No more welcome occurrence could be conceived than the disruption through continuously favorable weather conditions of the speculative pools which have so long had both cotton and grain markets in their grip, and it is by no means impossible that the indicators of the barometer are setting in exactly this direction. On the somewhat mixed situation prevailing for a month or more in the iron and steel world yesterday's usual weekly review by The Iron Age was of interest, this widely accepted authority noting a better feeling in the steel trade and an increase in pig iron orders at the lower prices recently fixed. Regarding the curtailment of iron output this publication says that the situation has been much exaggerated, and that the movement has led to a reduction of not more than 10 per cent. from the production figures of April 1, and adds that the closing of additional furnaces scheduled to go out will not enlarge the curtailment beyond 12 per cent.

For the first time in a number of days the foreign exchange market displayed heaviness. Quotations were up somewhat at the opening, but before the close of the day demand sterling had declined 10 points, an influence toward this result coming doubtless from the definite and authoritative announcement regarding the closing up of the negotiations involving the sale of $10,000,000 of Big Four bonds to Paris. The tone of the money market was again a trifle easier, call money rates in particular declining below 3½ per cent. for the first time in ten days or more. From the Sub-Treasury the banks made another heavy gain, bringing the total received by them on balance since Friday last up to $3,327,000.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 18.—Trading in the local market was extremely dull to-day. There appeared to be some disposition to take profits, and as a whole the market showed a fractional decline. In the miscellaneous issues United Fruit was the one particular feature, advancing about seven points.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—It was another day of dullness on the Stock Exchange. Lehigh Valley eased off to 114. Lake Superior hardened a trifle. All the arbitrage shares were lower in sympathy with the further recessions in Wall Street, and Pennsylvania, which was the firmest spot on the list yesterday, led the decline to-day. The Tonopah group moved irregularly within narrow limits, and this was also true of United Gas Improvement, Philadelphia Electric, and Cambria Steel.

Late in the day much interest was aroused throughout the financial district by the announcement that a Philadelphia financier, whose name Mayor Reyburn would not divulge, had tentatively offered to take the $8,000,000 4 per cent. city loan at par. This mysterious individual asked for forty-eight hours to prepare an offer.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Day of Extreme Dullness, with Price Movements Narrowly Confined on Curb.

RUBBER STOCK SELLS OFF

Drops to 2½, the Lowest Level Since Official Appearance on Curb—Goldfield Consolidated Sells Off.

The Curb market had another day yesterday of sluggish trading and narrow movements which left prices in many cases unchanged from the opening levels. Among the mining issues there were a few small gains at the close as well as scattered fractional losses. In the industrial list Intercontinental Rubber sold down to 21½ from 22⅛ and closed at the low price, which is the lowest since the certificates were officially listed. Transactions of 1,000 shares were reported. United Copper preferred failed to report transactions yesterday, but the common stock sold, 1,800 shares, at 7½ and 7¼. Goldfield Consolidated, after opening at 8½, sold down to 8 5-16, which was the closing price after transactions of 6,000 shares.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

Professionalism was again the leading characteristic of the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Trading interest was at a minimum even among the specialties, which are often moved when there is little interest in the leading stocks. Floor opinion seemed to be more bearish than otherwise, but there was some covering at the close, which caused Union Pacific and United States Steel common to end the day ⅛ of a point above their final quotations on the New York Stock Exchange. Sales totaled 52,240 shares, with forty-four different stocks on the list.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Narrow Price Movement.

Chart readers and those who follow closely the movement of the averages have been finding much to talk about in these last few days of intense dullness. For one thing the average price of twenty active railroad stocks as computed by one of the Wall Street news agencies has been making a line just above 121, which for narrowness has few duplicates save in the dullest of midsummer sessions. On Tuesday, May 10, this average price moved up from 120.73 to 121.59. The next day it went to 121.60, and in the five subsequent market sessions the highest figure touched was 121.82, and the lowest 121.50. In six days of trading the aggregate fluctuations of this average price as represented by a combination of the daily changes has been a trifle over three-quarters of a point. It is hardly surprising that traders are discussing the necessity for a "new impetus."

The Farmers' Income.

Wall Street has been watching with growing envy the success of the automobile makers in disposing of their wares to the farmers. For the moment, at least, securities are out of favor, although if the figures just made public by the Department of Agriculture regarding the growing purchasing power of the farmer may be taken as a criterion, after each farmer has his stable of motors, there ought to be something left over to squander on stocks and bonds. According to the statisticians of the department the growth in average farm value per acre for each crop covered is as follows:

	1909.	1910.	Inc.	Per Cent. Dif.
Wheat	$15.62	$7.61	$8.01	105.25
Corn	15.20	9.02	6.18	67.4
Oats	12.29	7.63	4.66	61.07
Hay	15.07	11.39	3.68	32.3
Barley	13.40	8.32	5.08	61.05
Potatoes	58.59	34.78	13.81	36.8

These percentages of increase would make interesting reading in a comparison with the slender advances in the general run of salaries and the actual decrease in the purchasing power of incomes from bond investments.

Reopening a Washed Out Road.

The San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad, which is owned jointly by the Harriman lines and by Senator W. A. Clark, is soon to reopen its line for through traffic. Notice that the road proposes resuming through freight service on June 10 and through passenger service on June 15 was issued by an official of the road yesterday, with a footnote explaining that "we have been washed out since Jan. 1." It is the sort of notice which roads of the importance of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake seldom have occasion to send to reopen a line after a washout. It was no ordinary weather mishap that the San Pedro had to contend with, else its officers would not be saying at the middle of May "we have been washed out since Jan. 1."

Chesapeake & Ohio Dividend.

The Directors of the Chesapeake & Ohio are scheduled to meet to-day to act on the quarterly dividend on the road's common stock, which it has been their purpose, according to some reports, to increase at this time from 4 to 5 per cent. a year. A more generous dividend policy has generally been regarded as one of the purposes of the Hawley interests when they took over control of the Chesapeake & Ohio, and the plans in this direction have been regarded as only partly carried out in the advance which has already been made from 1 per cent. a year, at which rate the dividend was kept for a long time, to the present 4 per cent. rate. How far the Directors, in passing upon the present dividend, will be influenced by the litigation in which the Chesapeake & Ohio has been involved in connection with the stockholders' suits against the Hocking Valley and the Kanawha & Michigan is of course not known, but it is considered not improbable in some quarters of the financial district that whatever plans may have been laid for a further increase in the dividend rate may be allowed to wait for a time.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 18.—Local stocks were featureless. Covering of short sales advanced Street's Stable Car Line over a point. Chicago Telephone shares held about steady in the absence of offerings from frightened holders. Investors are beginning to realize that forthcoming negotiations between the City Council and the telephone company do not mean confiscation, but reasonable regulation of rates. People's Gas stock weakened on small offerings.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, May 18.—Money was in moderate demand to-day and discounts were firmer. No change in the Bank of England's rate of discount is expected to-morrow.

The stock market was only moderately active, with the chief movements and interest centred in home rails and foreign rails, and improving prices were chiefly due to investment buying. Speculation in Kaffirs and rubber shares was quiet, and no increased activity is looked for this week. Consols and other gilt-edged securities were steadily maintained on cheap money rates.

The market for American securities opened about unchanged, and on a few buying orders prices strengthened somewhat. In the early afternoon the market sagged off on lack of support, and there were further declines in the late session on New York selling. The close was dull and easy.

Bar silver steady, 24 13-16d per ounce.

Money, 2½@3 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅛ per cent; for three months' bills, 3 7-16@3½ per cent.

PARIS, May 18.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were dull but firm.

Three per cent. rentes, 98 francs 87½ centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 28 centimes for checks.

BERLIN, May 18.—The general tone of the Boerse was irregular, but some specialties were strong.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 50 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3⅛ per cent.

Private rate of discount, 3¼ per cent.

PARIS TAKES BIG FOUR BONDS.

Issue Will Be 50,000,000 Francs, So Termed to Suit Investors.

Negotiations for the sale of $10,000,000 Big Four bonds in Paris have been completed. The issue will take the form of 50,000,000f 4 per cent. debentures, the bonds being issuer in france instead of in dollars, with a view to adapting them more fully to the needs of the French investment market.

This is the second issue which the New York Central lines have placed in Paris this year, the Lake Shore having sold $8,500,000 short-term notes in Paris some time ago.

Negotiations have been reported under way for the sale abroad of a large block of New York Central equipment trust bonds, being part of the $30,000,000 lately authorized by the Public Service Commission.

MANUAL OF INDUSTRIALS OUT.

New Publication on the Order of Poor's Railroad Manual.

A new reference book of corporations has just been issued in Poor's Manual of Industrials, which is designed to perform a similar function in regard to corporations of that class that has been covered in Poor's Manual of Railroads in the forty years of its existence. The publishers make the statement that the 2,317 pages of its text cover a greater scope than has hitherto been attempted by any publication.

The total capitalization of all industrial corporations represented is $18,873,000,000, of which $17,529,000,000 is in the United States. The total capitalization of all the railroads in the United States, according to Poor's Manual of Railroads, is $17,234,000,000.

The total stock issued by industrial corporations in the United States is shown to be $13,132,000,000; total bonds, $4,397,000,000. The railroads have issued $7,642,000,000 stock and $9,593,000,000 bonds.

The average rate of interest on bonds of industrial corporations is 5.27 per cent., as against 3.88 per cent. on railroad bonds. The average dividend rate on industrial stock is 4.02 per cent., as against 3.50 per cent. on railroad stock.

Gross earnings of industrial corporations making complete returns to the manual, and representing an aggregate capitalization of $7,163,000,000, were $2,165,000,000. The gross earnings of all the railroads, representing an aggregate capitalization of $17,234,000,000, were $2,407,000,000.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Pig Iron Demand Better and Trade Outlook More Favorable.

The leading trade authorities in commenting on conditions in iron and steel in iron and steel conditions find the most favorable outlook in recent weeks. The Iron Age says:

> Some of the week's developments have contributed to a better feeling in the steel trade.
> The prevalent idea concerning the cutting down of pig iron output exaggerates its extent. Counting furnaces that have actually blown out, the movement represents scarcely more than 10 per cent. off the rate of production on April 1, and furnaces now scheduled to go out will not increase it beyond 12 per cent. The United States Steel Corporation now has thirty-one idle furnaces out of a total of 119, having blown out one additional furnace—that at Niles, Ohio—in the past week.
> Pig iron inquiry has increased most in the East, where 35,000 to 40,000 tons is pending, a total that seems large only in comparison with the beggarly buying of many weeks.
> The better feeling in finished lines is due to the placing of good car and locomotive orders and the expectation of other railroad buying to follow; also to the additional contracts for bars for Western agricultural works, amounting to 150,000 tons. The Harriman car contracts have at last been placed, and are for a total of 12,440, of which the American Car and Foundry Company will build nearly 11,000. The Hawley lines have bought seventy-two locomotives.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> A shade of improvement is noticeable in the market, due to placing of orders by the Harriman lines for 12,400 cars and to some other favorable developments, but actual buying of pig iron and finished products has not increased to any considerable extent. It is noteworthy, however, that business at the present time is about equal to that of the prosperous year 1906. The pig iron market has a better tone in the East, and inquiries covering from 20,000 to 30,000 tons are pending.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Francis H. Page, for fifteen years Second Vice President of the Washington Trust Company, was elected Vice President yesterday and George W. Toerge, Second Assistant Secretary, was elected Assistant Secretary.

The committee of the second mortgage bonds of the International & Great Northern Railroad Company, of which W. Emlen Roosevelt is Chairman, announces that the time for depositing these bonds with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company has been extended to June 15.

Henry D. Hotchkiss, receiver in bankruptcy of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., stockbrokers of 60 Broadway, has obtained authority from Judge Hazel to deposit certain securities in his hands with the Bankers' Trust Company under the plan of reorganization of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company.

A petition to the Governors of the Produce Exchange was circulated among the members yesterday asking that the Exchange be closed on Saturday, May 28, the last business day before Memorial Day.

Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio, was elected President of the American Railway Association yesterday to succeed F. A. Delano. H. U. Mudge was elected Vice President and C. R. Gray and I. G. Rawn members of the Executive Committee.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat Nervously Irregular—Coarse Grains Weak—Provisions Rally—Cotton Breaks on Fine Weather.

The wheat market sold down about 1 cent a bushel, but rallies during the day were sharp, and the feeling one of distinct uneasiness over the apprehension of aggressive bull support. The control of the Chicago May delivery is still pronounced, and prices fluctuated over a considerable range on extremely small transactions. Late the selling was active on reports that 650,000 bushels of Nebraska and Duluth wheat had been bought during the day to come forward for May delivery. The nervousness in July and September is very great. The trade believes that there is a controlling long interest in those months and the sharp recoveries in the market from time to time, in face of bearish news, makes operators apprehensive and easily frightened. The weather news was much more favorable. The rains have been generous and general throughout the entire Spring wheat region, and advices from conservative sources in the Northwest claim that the rains have been of immeasurable benefit, and that the conditions are very favorable. There are complaints of insect damage in Illinois, but the situation shows that the entire area from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from the Gulf to the Saskatchewan has received good rainfall during the past few days, and this rain has been followed by more seasonable temperatures.

Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.15¼ nominal; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, $1.16 free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.18½ nominal; No. 2 hard, Winter, nominal; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.05½.

Corn was weak and active. The change to clear weather and higher temperatures following the rains seemed to be immediately followed by heavier country offerings of corn. Speculative holdings were offered freely, and the market declined with the stop orders in rather large volumes as the market declined. The recent firmness has been largely due to the rains and low temperatures. A change in weather, therefore, has removed an important bullish interest in the situation. Cash corn was quoted, No. 2, 69c nominal, and steamer nominal.

Oats were also weak. The rains have been just as beneficial in the oats area throughout the entire country as in the wheat area, and the change to more seasonable temperatures and clear skies immediately had an effect on the oats market. Cash oats was quoted: Natural white, 46@48½c; white clipped, 47@52½c.

Provisions were weaker during the morning on some speculative realizing, but later there was a rally, with considerable covering of shorts and reports of higher prices for hogs at the stock yards.

COTTON.

The cotton market was decidedly weak. It opened down with considerable bearish aggressiveness in evidence. This selling was partially due to the confidence given by the more favorable weather. From this decline there was a good recovery, and prices were very steady, with the decline partially recovered. Later the selling was of pronounced volume, and the market became decidedly weak, particularly in the old-crop deliveries. The insistent reports which have been circulated for several days past that the Chicago long interests sold their cotton last week and shifted the load to the Southern bulls seems to be having considerable effect in increasing the confidence of the bearish operators. The continued large receipts of spot cotton and maintenance of local stocks, notwithstanding the heavy withdrawals for shipment out, are also having a good deal of effect. It is also expected that the receipts will continue heavy, and it is believed that the South has sold considerable cotton on the recent advance. The weather conditions were much more favorable. The rain has been general throughout the entire belt, while temperatures were somewhat warmer, and the predictions were for still higher temperatures. Warmer growing conditions following the rains would be highly beneficial for the crop.

Southern spot markets unchanged to 1/16c decline.

New York spot cotton quiet, 35 points decline; middling uplands, 15.40c; middling Gulf, 15.65c.

COFFEE.

Coffee was inactive, with total sales amounting to 4,250 bags. The undertone was steady, and final prices were unchanged to 5 points above the previous close. It was a very narrow market, easily influenced by small orders either way. Havre came ¼ franc higher, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig advance. In Brazil, Rio was steady and unchanged at 4$550, and Santos was also unchanged, with 4s quoted at 4$350 and 7s at 3$950. Rio exchange on London was 1-16 higher, at 16d. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States was 3,060,429 bags, against 3,508,301 last year, and 3,526,408 two years ago. Spot coffee steady; 8¼@8⅜c for Rio No. 7.

BRITISH SUPPLY NEW CAPITAL

Investments the World Over for Part of 1910 Far Advanced.

The Statist of London in its issue of May 7 publishes an estimate of the amount of capital which British investors have supplied to the world in the first third of the present year. The figures show that Great Britain is increasing its investments over the world, and, in the absence of the figures for France and Germany to make direct comparisons, probably adding to its hold upon the world's banking.

The Statist estimates the amount of new capital subscribed by British investors in 1907 at $683,000,000, in 1908 at $1,002,000,000, and in 1909 at about $1,042,000,000. It has now estimated the investments made from Jan. 1 to May 1 of 1910 at $575,000,000, which, if typical of the whole year, will bring 1910's total up to $1,725,000,000.

Of the $575,000,000 some $125,000,000 has been investerd in Government bonds, $35,000,000 in municipals, $130,000,000 in railways, $50,000,000 in industrial concerns, $30,000,000 in mines, and $70,000,000, or 12 per cent. of the four months' entire total of investment subscriptions have gone into rubber shares, while $35,000,000 have gone into oil stocks, which are now almost as popular in England as "rubbers." Thus nearly a fifth of British investments so far in the year have been in these two highly speculative specialties.

Great Britain has invested $105,000,000 in the United States, while only $92,000,000 has been invested at home. There has been $75,000,000 invested in Canada. Of the investments in the United States $65,000,000 were in railroads.

TO THE PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS OF THE Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company

At the request of a large number of preferred stockholders, the undersigned have organized as a Committee to protect the interests of the holders of preferred stock of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company, and the preferred stockholders are invited to deposit their stock with the Committee's depositary, the CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, No. 54 Wall Street, New York City, which will issue transferable certificates of deposit therefor. The property of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company is leased to the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railway Company, which has recently defaulted in the payment of interest on its bonds and is now in the control of a Receiver. A Committee of Bondholders of the First Refunding Mortgage Bonds of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company has been organized. In view of these facts, co-operation among the preferred stockholders of the Railroad Company has become imperative.

Copies of the deposit agreement may be obtained from the Depositary, or from the Secretary of the Committee.

All certificates must be properly endorsed in blank and bear all stock transfer stamps required by the Laws of the State of New York.

BULL COTTON WAS HELD UP.

At Least Hayne Held Warehouse Receipts for Consignments Enjoined.

The proceedings brought by the receiver of the Southern cotton house of Steele, Miller & Co., tying up by injunction a large quantity of cotton received by Stephen M. Weld & Co. from the failed firm, created a situation in the cotton trade which put the Exchange authorities in a dilemma until the situation bids fair to adjust itself by a modification of the court order of injunction.

Much of the cotton tied up had already been sold, but not delivered, and incidentally one of those who paid for cotton which he could not get is Frank B. Hayne. He and James A. Patten, Eugene F. Scales, and W. P. Brown constitute the quartet of bull leaders.

Some 800 of the bales in warehouse which the Federal injunction originally prevented delivery of, had been accepted on contract by Mr. Hayne, who had instructed his brokers, Clayton N. Rich & Co., to make delivery of it to the mills. The brokers found that their warehouse receipts were not as strong as the Federal injunction, and were not able to get the cotton.

In the face of this situation the question has arisen as to whether the delivery of the warehouse receipts to Mr. Hayne constitutes valid delivery of the cotton as has hitherto been the custom on the Exchange, or whether the buyer can demand of the original makers of the contract its satisfaction in free cotton.

Judge Hazel, in the United States District Court, modified the injunction yesterday. The order at first restrained Weld & Co. from disposing of any securities, notes, accounts, cotton, or other property received from Steele, Miller & Co., and the New York Dock Company from disposing of any cotton received or to be received from Steele, Miller & Co. for the account of Weld & Co.

On the representations of counsel for Weld & Co. the order was changed so as to relate merely to a certain 100 bales of cotton particularly described, and which are now within this jurisdiction. The principal affidavit submitted for the cotton brokers is that of George H. Neville, a member of Weld & Co., who relates that prior to April 24, Steele, Miller & Co. drew on Weld & Co. by diffrent drafts with bills of lading attached covering shipments of cotton.

All of these drafts were delivered to Weld & Co. prior to April 24, and indorsed by that firm before that date. Mr. Neville declares that his firm had received no other cotton from Steele, Miller & Co. except cotton shipped on these drafts and bills of lading.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

NO. 4,962. NEW WATER-SUPPLY SYSTEM.—The necessity of a new water-supply system is at present the topic of conversation in a Latin-American city. An American Consul reports that municipal and state representatives have recently been in consultation with Federal Government officials with the object of securing aid in raising $1,000,000 for a new and adequate water-supply system and other contemplated improvements, among which are mentioned a modern abattoir and a public park.

NO. 4,965. NAPHTHA AND GAS ENGINES WANTED.—An American consular officer in Russia reports that a business house in his district wishes to communicate direct with American manufacturers of naphtha and gas engines who are desirous of finding a market for their products and who are not already represented in that country.

NO. 4,968. PUBLIC WORKS OF VARIOUS KINDS.—The Mayor of a European city, in response to an inquiry from an American consular officer, states that the city requires a loan of $669,000 for public improvements, $154,500 to be available at once. It is the intention of the city to reconstruct the waterworks, install an electric lighting system, as well as electric tramways, erect a grain elevator on the banks of a river, pave the streets, and construct municipal office buildings in the centre of the city. The loan will draw interest at 5 per cent. per annum.

NO. 4,972. LOCOMOTIVES AND STEEL RAILS.—An American Consular officer in a European country furnishes the name of a business man in his district who desires offers from American manufacturers of locomotives and steel rails for ordinary standard-gauge railways as well as for railways for mining purposes.

NO. 4,973. TENDERS FOR POWER-HOUSE EQUIPMENT.—Sealed tenders will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, at Ottawa, Ontario, until May 25, 1910, for the equipment necessary for power house in connection with the shops east of Winnipeg, including water-tube boilers, mechanical stokers, feed-water heaters, engines, generators, air compressors, pumps, &c.

NO. 4,974. AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY AND HOUSEHOLD APPLIANCES.—An American Consul in Saxony reports that an experienced business man is desirous of representing American manufacturers of improved agricultural machinery and new devices for household use, as well as other practical novelties.

NO. 4,979. DREDGING AND DRAINING ENTERPRISE.—An American Consular officer reports that a South American Government has announced its intention of calling for bids for the dredging and drainage of a large area of swamp lands surrounding much of a local bay. With comparatively little expense it is believed this land can be reclaimed and restored to its former productiveness and value. The indications are that the work will be let out on one or more general contracts, to be paid for according to a rate for unit of work accomplished rather than by entire contract. The Consular officer states it will be practically impossible for Americans interested in this work to get in touch with the Government without an agency in the country or some one on the ground to present their propositions. Copy of the complete report, giving further details, may be obtained upon application at the Bureau of Manufactures.

NO. 4,984. ROAD-MAKING MACHINERY.—A report from an American Consul in a European country states that the poor condition of the roads in his district will be emphasized in the automobile race which will shortly be held. A country with interminable stretches of level, muddy plain, and no abundance of road-building material, should afford a market for road-making machines, and the attention of American manufacturers of such machines is invited to this fact.

NO. 4,985. NEW WATER SUPPLY SYSTEM.—The necessity of a new water supply system is at present the topic of conversation in a Latin-American city. An American Consul reports that municipal and State representatives have recently been in consultation with Federal officials with the object of securing aid in raising $1,000,000 for a new and adequate water supply system and other contemplated improvements, among which are mentioned a modern abattoir and a public park. Copy of the complete report, giving further particulars, can be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures.

NO. 4,987. MACHINE FOR CLEARING SMALL IRRIGATION CANALS OF SILT.—A farmer in South Africa advises an American Consular officer that he desires to purchase a machine for clearing small irrigation canals of silt that can be worked by animal or hand power, similar to a dredger on a smaller scale. Manufacturers are requested to send illustrations and price of such a machine to the officer in question for transmission to the inquirer.

NO. 4,990. TENDERS FOR WORKING MINES.—Minister George H. Moses of Athens reports that the Greek Government will entertain bids for the working in perpetuity of its silver mines in Milos, Komolos, and Polyaigos. Bids will be received by the Minister of Finance until Nov. 16, 1910. The concession will be for silver and barytum ores only. Copy of the Minister's report, giving further details, may be obtained from the Bureau of Manufactures.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

ABRAHAM KOPELMAN.—Judge Hazel has appointed Colin W. MacLennan receiver in bankruptcy for Abraham Kopelman, furniture dealer of 799 Broadway, Brooklyn, who lives at 98 Essex Street, this city. The assets are estimated at $1,250.

ISAAC KAUFMAN.—Judge Hazel has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Isaac Kaufman, manufacturer of furs, formerly at 94 Fifth Avenue, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Nov. 21, 1907, and whose liabilities were $23,650.

UNITED STATES EMBROIDERY MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the United States Embroidery Manufacturing Company of 96 East Broadway, show liabilities of $10,841, and assets unknown. Among the creditors are M. Hogg, $2,190; M. Tranchtman, $900, and the Jefferson Bank, $480.

GEORGE H. TAYLOR.—George H. Taylor, real estate broker, 854 Union Avenue, the Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $14,456, and no assets. Among the creditors are the Anderson Realty Company of Mount Vernon, $10,000, disputed claim in suit, and William Adams & Co., $2,399, lumber.

SAMUEL DUBIN.—Judge Hazel has denied an application for discharge from bankruptcy of Samuel Dubin, designer, of 29 East Broadway, formerly a cloak manufacturer, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Feb. 15, 1909, with liabilities of $5,136, on the ground that he did not bring on a hearing on specifications of objections to his discharge, filed by the American Woolen Company within thirty days.

MICHELE BERTOLI.—Michele Bertoli of Harrison, Westchester County, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,448 and assets of $20 cash in a trust company. He was formerly a sculptor in this city, and a judgment was obtained against him and two others in the City Court on Nov. 27 for $808 in favor of Louis Oransky. Mr. Bertoli's attorney made an application yesterday to Judge Hazel for a writ of habeas corpus.

UNITED TUNGSTEN LAMP COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the United Tungsten Lamp Company, dealer in incandescent lamps at 47 West Thirty-fourth Street, by these creditors: George M. Beatty, $457; George M. Warner, $248, and Central Electrical Supply Company, $140. The liabilities are said to be $5,000, and the assets $3,200. The company was incorporated on Feb. 8, 1909, with a capital stock of $10,000.

KAHAN MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Kahan Manufacturing Company, dealer in waists and dresses at 108 Grand Street, show liabilities of $12,461, of which $3,362 are secured, and $1,308 are for wages, and assets of $3,799, consisting of stock, $1,500; machinery, $600; accounts, $1,689, and cash, $10. Other accounts to the amount of $3,942 have been pledged. Among the creditors are the Federal Finance Company, $2,542, secured; William Anderson & Co., $1,023; Edward Gribbons & Co., $845, and M. Doob & Son Company, $705.

W. H. STEVENS.—W. H. Stevens, living at 291 Edgecombe Avenue, the Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $23,741 and assets of $25 cash in a trust company. Part of the liabilities were contracted as a partner of the firm of W. G. Houck & Co., wine importers, of 72 Beaver Street, who went out of business in 1905. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against W. G. Houck & Co., (a corporation,) on Nov. 14, 1905, which corporation had previously succeeded the firm of the same name. Among the creditors are W. M. Hughes for $7,849, on an assigned claim of the Adirondack Trust Company of Saratoga, on which execution was issued to Sheriff Shea a few days ago; Stadler & Stadler, $1,750, clothes; Charles Billings & Son, $1,350, jewelry; Elliot Mason, $1,225, auto repairs; Gorham Company, $844, silverware; Coney Island Jockey Club, $65, dues; Frank Moore, $65, due on a wager; Ulman & Co., $582, on stock speculation; First National Bank of Saratoga Springs, $227, loan; White Top Champagne Company, Hammondsport, N. Y., $489; Waldorf Astoria Cigar Company, $195; J. B. Martin, $67, meals and drinks; Knox, $75, hats; Mark Cross Company, $123, leather goods; Alex McFinlayson and George H. Armstrong, $1,497, liquors; Charles T. and W. S. Dieffendorfer, Baltimore, $1,638, liquors; Park & Tilford, $121, groceries, and Dempsey & Carroll, $124, stationery.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Growing Activity of Seventh Avenue Realty—Deals in the Loft Zone—Sale in Lenox Library Block—Buying Tenements for Investment.

True to the predictions made some time ago, the completion of the Pennsylvania terminal, with the consequent improved transit facilities in the near future, Seventh Avenue property is beginning to assume decided activity. To the number of important sales lately recorded was added yesterday the five-story store and tenement at 281 Seventh Avenue, on the southwest corner of Twenty-sixth Street.

It was sold for Ida A. Gallatin by S. B. Goodale & Son, and completes the purchase by clients of the firm of the entire block front on the east side of Seventh Avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Streets. The plot just sold is 21 by 70 feet.

The same brokers on the previous day sold 267 Seventh Avenue, and on the same day the syndicate represented by the United States Realty and Improvement Company and the Alliance Realty Company enlarged its Seventh Avenue holdings in the vicinity of Thirty-seventh Street by purchasing 210 and 212 West Thirty-seventh Street.

Deals in the Loft Zone.

The Douglas Robinson-Charles S. Brown Company has sold for Eliza S. Newell 140 West Twenty-first Street, a three-story dwelling on lot 23 by 92 to Charles J. Wirth. This is the first transfer of the property in over thirty years.

M. & L. Hess have sold for Julia A. Birdseye and William G. Jones to the Realty Holding Company 214 West Thirty-seventh Street, on lot 20.10 by 60.

Edward A. Quinn has sold 227 West Thirty-eighth Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 20.7 by 98.9.

Sale in Library Block.

Henry D. Winans & May have sold the lot 22.6 by 100.5 on the south side of Seventy-first Street, 47.6 feet west of Madison Avenue, in the Lenox Library block. The buyer will break ground at once for a high-grade dwelling for his own occupancy.

This lot immediately adjoins to the east the 50 feet recently sold by the same firm to C. W. Luyster, Jr., who is erecting two modern residences for sale purposes. There only remains unsold of the entire Lenox Library block one lot—that directly adjoining the property above reported to the east, of equal size, 22.6 by 100.5.

Buying Tenements for Investment.

Manuel Simon has sold for Holdeman Brothers 246 and 248 East Fifty-third Street, a six-story tenement on plot 33 by 100 to an investor.

Miller, McMann & Donley have sold for Mrs. Carbrey 89 Second Avenue, a four-story tenement, on lot 24.3 by 100. The adjoining house at the northwest corner of Fifth Street, was recently sold by Wendolin J. Nauss.

Kurz & Uren have sold for the Johnston-Umstead Realty Company 172 East Ninety-sixth Street, a four-story flat, on plot 30 by 100.8.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Harry Parker has sold for Kate Schmitt 152 East Seventy-third Street, a three-story and basement stone front dwelling on lot 15 by 102.2, near Lexington Avenue. The buyer will occupy it.

Earle & Calhoun have sold for Charles A. Christman to a client the three-story and basement private house at 319 West 138th Street, on a lot 16.8 by 100. The buyer purchases this house for occupancy.

Synagogue Sells Dwelling.

Sheldon & Becker and Kempe & Cohen have sold for the Congregation Pincus Elijah 146 West Ninety-ninth Street, a three-story and basement private house, which they have been forced to sell in order to obtain larger quarters.

Loft For East 41st St.

Further details were announced yesterday concerning the deal for the Hamilton, Bell & Co. property, at 18 and 20 East Forty-first Street, sold last week. The site has been purchased by the Martin Construction Company, composed of C. Grayson Martin of this city and Frank Martin of Paris. The company contemplates erecting a store and loft building on the site, which measures 50 by 100.

Sisters Buy Grund Mansion.

The Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart are the buyers of the Marshall M. Grund property on Fort Washington Avenue, at 190th Street. The Sisters occupy the former Ridgewood house adjoining on the south, which they acquired about ten years ago.

With their latest purchase they now control a plot fronting 212 feet on Fort Washington and about the same on Northern Avenue, with an average depth of 275 feet, which lies to the south of the Billings place. The Grund house is a two-story brick and stone structure, erected by the late Ernest Grund about six years ago.

Bronx Sales.

The Gaines-Roberts Company has sold through H. L. Phelps the northeast corner of Hoe Avenue and Aldus Street, a plot 40 by 100, and 973 Aldus Street, adjoining, also 40 by 100.

Brooklyn Sales.

Noah Clark has sold in the Bedford section of Brooklyn 779 Nostrand Avenue, a four-story double apartment for the Herman J. Levy Construction Company to William E. Baker for $31,000; lots on northerly side of Union Street, 40 by 100, 100 feet west of Brooklyn Avenue, for William E. Baker, to Mary Clark, for $5,000, and the southeast corner of New York Avenue and Union Street, 100.7 by 115, for William E. Baker, to the Herman J. Levy Realty and Construction Company, for $20,000.

Francis E. J. Reid has sold for the Shlikerman Realty and Improvement Company a two-family brick dwelling on the south side of Seventy-fifth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues.

Suburban Sales.

Clement H. Smith has sold for John Drakard 26 and 28 Chestnut Street, Richmond Hill, Long Island, two one-family frame houses.

A. K. Shipman has sold for Charles B. Ash and F. C. Gertenbach the two double apartment houses on the northwest corner of Lake and Vineyard Avenues, Yonkers, to Theodore Heinrichs.

Second Mortgage on Warner Van Norden's Residence.

Warner Van Norden, the former President of the Van Norden Trust Company, has secured an additional mortgage of $100,000 on his residence, 8 East Sixty-second Street, from Hiram Barney. The mortgage, which was recorded yesterday, is for two years from Feb. 10 at 4 per cent. There is a prior mortgage on the house, plot 25 by 100.5, of $140,000.

$250,000 Loft for 32d Street.

Plans have been filed for a twelve-story fireproof mercantile building to be built at 14 to 18 East Thirty-second Street for the Geraty Construction Company. The building will have a frontage of 65.6 feet and a depth of 90 feet, with a façade of brick with trimmings of limestone and terra cotta. The cost is estimated at $250,000 by the architect, W. H. Birkmire.

Business in East 34th Street.

Plans for making extensive alterations to the four-story private dwelling on the south side of Thirty-fourth Street, 145 feet west of Park Avenue, near the new Vanderbilt Hotel, into a business and bachelor apartment building, was filed by R. H. Robertson & Son, architects. The plans embody taking out the front wall to the third floor and putting a store front and remodeling the third and fourth floors for bachelor apartments, at a cost of $10,000. Annie Flint is the owner of record.

Private Kindergarten in 71st Street.

George W. Wood, architect for Ethel S. Tefft, M. Louise Shieffelien, and Lida M. Feltman, filed plans for making over the four-story and basement apartment house on the south side of Seventy-first Street, 125 feet east of Park Avenue, into a private kindergarten with a roof playground. The cost is placed at $18,000.

New Apartment in Fort Washington Section.

Euell & Euell, architects, filed plans for a six-story apartment and store, with apartments for fifty-eight families, at the southwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 175th Street, fronting 90 feet on the avenue and 150 feet on the street. The T. J. McGuire Construction Company is the owner, and the cost is placed at $300,000.

New Real Estate Recording Law.

All deeds recorded after Sept. 30, under the provisions of the bill recently signed by Gov. Hughes, must contain the address of the purchaser. The act stipulates that:

After Sept. 30, 1910, a recording officer shall not record or accept for record any conveyance of real property executed subsequent to said Sept. 30, unless the residence of the purchaser and if in a city of over 500,000 inhabitants according to the last Federal census the street number of the residence of the purchaser shall be stated therein and such residence and street number shall be recorded with the conveyance.

Receivers Appointed.

Justice McCall of the Supreme Court has appointed Benjamin Kassewitz receiver of the rents of 291 West 142d Street, a five-story tenement, pending a suit brought by Jonas Weil and Bernhard Mayer to foreclose a second mortgage of $6,000. The prior mortgage is $21,000.

John F. Reilly has been appointed receiver of the rents of 67 West Ninetieth Street by Justice McCall of the Supreme Court, pending a suit brought by Abraham Sartorius to foreclose a second mortgage of $5,000.

$42,000 Bronx Mortgage.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company loaned yesterday to the Froma Realty Company on first mortgage $42,000 on the six-story and basement brick and stone store and basement building located on the east side of Robbins Avenue, 41.80 feet south of 152d Street, plot 50 by 104. The mortgage is for five years at 5 per cent.

Property Owners to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Property Owners' Association of the Vyse Estate and Vicinity will be held at Fauser's Hall, Home Street and the Southern Boulevard, in the Bronx, Saturday evening. The following speakers have been invited to address the members and their guests on interesting topics: Cyrus C. Miller, President of the Borough of the Bronx; Joseph A. Goulden, member of Congress; George M. S. Schulz, State Senator; Thomas W. Whittle, Commissioner of Public Improvements of the Borough of the Bronx; Douglas Mathewson, Deputy Controller; John E. Eustis, member Public Service Commission; Raphael Garfein, member of Assembly; Abraham W. Herbst, member Board of Aldermen; J. Harris Jones, President North Side Board of Trade.

Queens Realty Men's Dinner.

Former Lieut. Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff will preside at the annual dinner of the Queens Borough Real Estate Exchange, to be held Tuesday, June 7, at the Hotel Nassau, Long Beach. The Queens Borough Real Estate Exchange, of which Alfred J. Eno of Jamaica is President, held a very successful dinner at the same hotel last year, at which Vice President Sherman was a guest. It was determined yesterday afternoon to hold this year's dinner at the same place.

Notes.

McCarthy & Fellows have leased for a term of years to the Riverdale Sanitarium Company the old Griswold mansion, situated on the corner of Fieldstone Road and Griswold Place at Riverdale. This property was purchased from the Griswold estate by the lessor, Alexander Thern, at public auction May 7, 1910.

G. P. Butterly and Frank E. Murphey were the brokers in the sale of 163 West Forty-eighth Street to Henry R. Stern.

S. Ullman was the broker in the sale of the five-story tenement 96 East Seventh Street for S. Pollitz.

G. A. Derschuch was interested as broker in the recently reported sale of 137 Bleecker Street to the Brown Realty Company.

Milton J. Gordon has removed his office to 198 Broadway.

William L. Sutphin is the purchaser of 229 and 231 West Thirtieth Street, reported sold Tuesday.

Smith & Phelps have placed a permanent mortgage of $51,000 on the three four-story apartments, with stores, known as 1614-16-18 Washington Avenue. Also a permanent mortgage of $6,000 on the private dwelling known as 181 Alexander Avenue.

S. Osgood Pell & Co. were the brokers who negotiated the lease of the William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., place known as Deepdale at Great Neck, L. I., to Isaac Untermyer.

WESTCHESTER—SALE OR TO LET.

MR. HARLEM FLATT,
New York City.

Dear Sir:

Are you to be a rent payer all your life? Are your wife and children always to be bounded by the walls of a small flat?

If we could show you a way to own a home of your own in a place where every one else does, a place where all public improvements are made and all known conveniences exist, only half an hour from 42d St. and 20 minutes from Harlem, would you not be interested?

A small monthly payment would give you a start, and our assistance would help you very much in the future home idea.

Send us a postal card and we will put you in possession of all the facts.

Yours very truly,

THE OPENING OF A RESIDENCE PARK IN THE FINEST SECTION OF CRANFORD

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

Are you tired of the High Rent of Your New York Apartment, of the small rooms, the crowded subways, the lack of fresh air, with no room for the children to play in? Would you like, instead, to find the right kind of a suburban home, where you have no pioneering to do, in a beautiful section of Cranford, New Jersey? Boating in Summer and skating in Winter on the beautiful Rahway River, which winds through the town and along which New York's Riverside Drive is being reproduced in a suburban form. A mile stretch of river front there molds the natural beauty of the surrounding country to the purposes of high-class Home Building.

$100.000.00 is now being spent in fully improving and beautifying this section, and its rapid development is positively assured.

A Building Company has already begun operations, and a number of houses are in process of construction.

SEND YOUR NAME AND ADDRESS

Morgan, is held, will expire on June 15 next unless it is extended by the voting trustees—George Westinghouse and Morgan J. O'Brien. Ever since Mr. Morgan purchased the stock formerly held by Thomas F. Ryan it has been understood in the financial district that the voting trust would be terminated on June 15, the end of the five-year period for which it was established.

It was provided in the deed of trust that the voting trust should be extended for another five-year period if the trustees decided that an extension was desirable.

The trustees, it is known, are disposed to terminate the voting trust, but what plans Mr. Morgan may have formulated are not known. An associate of Mr. Morgan said yesterday that the matter had not yet been determined. It is possible that Mr. Morgan himself, who is now in Europe, may be here before June 15. It has been reported to be his purpose to effect a complete mutualization of the Equitable Life.

MINORITY IN RUBBER WON.

The Abbott Amendment, Restricting Directors, Passed Annual Meeting.

Contrary to the understanding of some stockholders and officials who attended the meeting of the United States Rubber Company at New Brunswick on Tuesday, the amendments to the proposed changes in the by-laws which were offered by E. V. Abbott of Keith & Abbott, representing minority interests, were adopted and not the original changes as reported.

The changes in the by-laws proposed by the company followed identically the provisions of the by-laws of the United States Steel Corporation in respect to the participation of Directors, having an interest in a contract of transaction under consideration in meetings at which such matters are to be voted on.

The amendments made by Mr. Abbott and approved before the meeting by Francis Lynde Stetson provide that interested Directors shall withdraw from meetings while transactions in which they are interested are under discussion. It is also provided that Directors shall go on record as to whether or not they have any such interest.

Telegraph Alignment Unchanged.

An advance in the London market in the price of the stock of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company was made the basis of a report circulated in Wall Street that control of this company, which is now affiliated with the Western Union Telegraph Company, was about to pass to the Mackay Companies. In refutation of the report it was pointed out that there exists between the Western Union Telegraph Company and the Anglo-American Company a contract which still has ten years to run.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—ELIZA WILDEY, Plaintiff, against JOHN F. BURT and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of an interlocutory judgment of partition and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 28th day of April, 1910, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 8th day of June, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of the Bronx of the City of New York, County and State of New York, (formerly in the Town of Morrisania, County of Westchester,) known and designated as part of lot number seventy-one (71) on the "Map of the Village of Morrisania," made by Andrew Findlay, Surveyor, dated West Farms, August 10th, 1848, and now on file in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester, and bounded and described from said map as follows:

Beginning at a point on the easterly side of Washington Avenue, distant one hundred (100) feet and seven-tenths (7-10) of a foot northeasterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the said easterly side of Washington Avenue with the northerly side of Eighth (now 170th) Street; running thence northeasterly along said avenue fifty (50) feet and seven-tenths (7-10) of a foot; running thence southeasterly through the centre of said lot, being the boundary line of subdivision number three (3) of said lot, one hundred and fifty (150) feet and two-tenths (2-10) of a foot; running thence southwesterly and parallel with Washington Avenue fifty-two (52) feet and three-tenths (3-10) of a foot, and running thence northwesterly and parallel with said Eighth Street one hundred and fifty (150) feet and one-tenth (1-10) of a foot to the place of beginning. Being part of subdivision number two (2) of said lot.

Excepting thereout and therefrom, however, all that part or portion of the above-described premises taken by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of New York in the opening and widening of Washington Avenue from Third Avenue at East 159th Street to Pelham Avenue in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards of the City of New York.

LONE CITIZEN FIGHTS LIGHTING MONOPOLY

Now the Board of Estimate Has Its Doubts About an Edison Company Franchise.

A SINGLE POLE STARTED IT

Interfered with John J. Gordon's Maple Tree in Bath Beach—He's Now Been Fighting a Whole Year.

The Board of Estimate, by unanimous resolution, has called on the Edison Electric Illuminating Company to furnish proof of its right to operate in the Thirtieth Ward of Brooklyn, "together with certified copies of all certificates of incorporation, resolutions, deeds, certificates of merger, leases, operating agreements, and other instruments by virtue of which it claims to have acquired the right to operate in the Borough of Brooklyn, on or before March 31, 1910."

This resolution is the climax of a fight against the erection of poles by the company in Seventeenth Avenue, Bath Beach, which was begun as long ago as March a year ago by John J. Gordon, a former railroad man, who lives at 8,615 Seventeenth Avenue.

Since that time Mr. Gordon has carried complaints of the action of the company in erecting poles to Mayor McClellan, to the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, to the Park Commissioner, to Mayor Gaynor, and finally to President Mitchel of the Aldermen.

At one time he instituted legal proceedings looking to the prevention of the erection of poles in his street. He withdrew these on learning from the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity that the permit to plant the poles had been revoked. Later another permit was granted, and the poles were erected. It was then that Mr. Gordon began the fight which reached the Estimate Board.

"The erection of poles in Seventeenth Avenue, one of the few streets with trees in all Brooklyn, is an outrage," said Mr. Gordon yesterday. "The stringing of heavily charged electric wires is a menace, not only to the lives of residents of the neighborhood, but to the growth of the maple trees, most of them more than thirty years old, through whose foliage the high-power wires run.

"As every one knows, a tree wet with rain makes a good conductor for electricity, and there is grave danger in every rainstorm that some passerby may receive a dangerous shock from touching one of the trees with which the wires come in contact. From the point of view of the property owner the damage wrought is considerable, as realty values are decreased considerably by the presence of telegraph, telephone, or electric light poles."

Mr. Gordon became interested in the effect of electricity on growing trees when the illuminating company's linemen began to erect a pole in front of his home. His interest took the form of a shotgun, which Mr. Gordon held in his hands as he sat on his front porch, and dared the laborers to go on with their work. The work stopped for that day, and Mr. Gordon communicated immediately with the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, from which he received the assurance two days later—March 17, 1909—that the permit for the erection of the poles had been revoked. Then the lone opponent of the illumanating company withdrew litigation which he had started.

For a month no attempt was made to plant the poles, but on April 17 the work was begun again under a new permit from the same department. On the following day, Mr. Gordon complained again, only to be told, he says, that the department was compelled to issue the permit.

From that time until the recent meeting of the Estimate Board Mr. Gordon appealed in turn to Mayor McClellan, the Park Commissioner, and to Mayor Gaynor, and finally to President Mitchel, to whom on Jan. 31 he wrote this letter:

New York, Jan. 31, 1910.

Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, President, the Board of Aldermen, New York:

Dear Sir: This letter is written as per your suggestion to me a few days ago, and treats of the matter of the outrageous and, I believe, illegal invasion of Seventeenth Avenue, Bath Beach, Brooklyn, by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company. That corporation has, under cover of permits from city officials gained, as I can show to any unprejudiced official, through collusion and deceit, erected a line of unsightly poles in that thoroughfare. These not only do serious damage to the residences there, but, carrying heavily charged wires through the dense branches of the fine old maple trees, are a constant menace not only to the life of the trees, but the people who have to pass under them.

At least one city official, hereinafter referred to, admits that a maple tree saturated with rain becomes a deadly conductor, and that a live wire resting on a branch may carry death to anybody coming into contact with the tree.

The present administration, as the Mayor's letter attached will show you, takes the attitude, through Commissioner Thompson of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, that if the wires endanger the life of these fine old trees it will cause them to be removed by the shifting of the poles.

We, as taxpayers and owners of modest equities in these Seventeenth Avenue properties, demand that not only shall these wires be taken down and put under ground where they belong in this thickly populated and growing section of the city, but that these hideous poles be taken down at once.

Seventeenth Avenue is one of the few tree-lined streets in Greater New York. Its real estate values are largely dependent on these fine old maples, most of them over thirty years old. The several city functionaries who have participated in this squabble admit that the trees are endangered. It requires no expert in realty to know that the erecting of a row of telegraph or electric light poles in front of your home is a damage to its value. If, through official neglect, we are deprived of the trees themselves, this damage becomes irreparable.

One city official curtly informs us that we have a remedy in a civil action. As taxpayers we wish to thank him for this rather insolent and certainly flippant treatment of a serious complaint of invasion of our property rights. We know we have such a remedy, but why are we to be compelled to wait through long years of litigation, the nuisance complained of continuing throughout, to be put to large expense of time and money in order that this bandit electrical company may profit and save the money that an underground system will cost?

We appeal to you as an official who has shown both the capacity and desire to protect the rights of the citizens of New York. We ask you to give a few minutes' study to the array of facts we here present. It has long been notorious that homes of the class that are in Seventeenth Avenue pay a far larger share of taxation than do these arrogant corporations like the one I complain of. Must we, in addition to this injustice, put up with such invasions of our properties as I have vainly until now tried to have remedied? Respectfully submitted,

JOHN J. GORDON,
8,615 Seventeenth Avenue, Brooklyn.

Mr. Mitchel forwarded Mr. Gordon's complaint to the Division of Franchises of the Estimate Board. He received back a report from John A. McCollum, Acting Engineer in Charge. In the report Mr. McCollum rehearsed the various complaints of Mr. Gordon, and went into the history of the incorporation and life of the Edison Company, arriving finally at the conclusion that any claim of the Edison Company to a right to erect poles or string wires in the Thirtieth Ward of Brooklyn, in which Seventeenth Avenue lies, came from the Amsterdam Electric Light, Heat and Power Company, controlled through stock ownership by the Edison Company.

This company, Mr. McCollum finds, was the successor of the State Electric Light and Power Company which received the right to operate in Brooklyn by resolution of the Board of Aldermen over the Mayor's veto on Dec. 30, 1895. As the town of New Utrecht, in which that part of Seventeenth Avenue lies from which complaint has been made, was annexed to Brooklyn in 1894, the right of the State Company extends to that locality.

But while the Edison Company controls the successor to the State Company Mr. McCollum finds that "there does not appear to be any relation existing between the two companies such as would authorize the Edison Company to operate under the franchise claimed by the Amsterdam Company, whether by virtue of a lease or operating agreement or otherwise."

Mr. McCollum concluded by suggesting the action taken subsequently by the Estimate Board. He asserts that if it be shown that the company has no franchise its poles and wires can be removed as incumbrances. Even if it proves to have a franchise the board still can bring about the placing of these wires underground.

WILLIAMS DENIES FRAUD.

Can't Explain How He Got 2,400 Votes When There Were Only 2,200 Enrolled.

The trial of Roswell D. Williams, Tammany leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District, and his six lieutenants, Thomas J. O'Rourke, Philip Donohue, Robert Quinn, John Bingham, John Dunn, and Peter J. Calligan, proceeded yesterday before Justice Wheeler and a jury in the Supreme Court. Williams and his associates were indicted for conspiracy to commit election frauds in the Tammany primaries of Sept. 29 last, when Williams's leadership was contested by Daniel A. Golden. Clark L. Jordan, attorney for the defense, opened his case at the morning session, and Williams and his fellow-defendants occupied the stand throughout the day.

Williams, the chief of the defendants, and the one who profited by the alleged irregularities through which 2,400 votes were recorded for 2,200 enrolled voters and not a single Golden ballot reported to the Board of Elections, was the first to take the stand. Williams said he had been a saloonkeeper up to two years ago, when he entered the real estate business. He said he made his usual round of the polling places in a proper and orderly manner and saw none of the disturbances to which policemen, chauffeurs, and watchers for his rival had testified.

Williams was puzzled when asked to explain how it was that so many ballots came to be cast, but he sought to explain why it was that Golden received no votes.

"Did you cause a canvass of the Democratic voters of your district to be made prior to the primary election?" asked Deputy Attorney General Ezra Prentice.

"Yes," replied Williams. "It was to ascertain the sentiments of the Democratic voters as to the leadership of the district. It was not a complete canvass, however."

"Why?" demanded Mr. Prentice.

"Because after it had been going on a day or two I found that there was absolutely no Golden sentiment in the district and called the canvass off."

Philip Donohue, one of the defendants, vehemently denied having stolen any Golden ballots or having stuffed ballot boxes, and said he had seen no one else do so.

Thomas J. O'Rourke, also a defendant, a liquor dealer and former Deputy Sheriff, said he cast only one ballot, his own, on primary day. He said he saw no ballot box stuffing, nor did he see Williams and Galligan pummel Ernest Schellenberger, a Golden watcher, as was told on Tuesday. He denied having seen any member of his party run off with the Golden ballots.

Robert Quinn, one of the indicted men, and who admitted that he had been convicted of robbery in his youth, denied that he was present at any of the polling places, or was one of the men who beat and kicked Schellenberger. He denied that his picture was in the Rogues' Gallery at the present time, or ever had been. John Bingham, an ex-barkeeper and one of the defendants, also denied having had any part in raiding the polling place.

Clark L. Jordan, in his address to the jury, said that he expected to show that the Golden ballots were destroyed by one of Golden's own supporters. He charged that the indictment of Williams and his associates was part of a plot to defeat Williams for the leadership at the election this Fall.

SHEFFIELD FARMS CO. HEARD.

After Court Proceedings Vice President Explains About Short Weights.

A preliminary hearing of the charges made against the Sheffield Farms Slawson-Decker Milk Company by Lee J. Mills, a sealer of the Bureau of Weights and Measures, who discovered that short-weight packages of butter were sold in Brooklyn, was held yesterday before Magistrate Tighe in the Adams Street Court. Loton Horton, President of the company, and E. B. Halsey, Vice President and General Manager, were witnesses.

Mr. Horton testified that his company never weighed the butter in its half-pound, two-pound, and five-pound packages; that for the half-pound packages an adjustable mold was used.

The hearing will be continued on May 24. Vice President Halsey made this explanation outside of court:

"Of course, in the present proceeding the law does not either require or permit us to tell our side of this affair. The complaint on which the District Attorney is examining our affairs relates to certain boxes in which we sell possibly 5 per cent. of the butter sold at our stores. It is not a special box made for us, but one in common use.

"These boxes cost us 2½ cents apiece, and are made of pulp board and paraffined, so as to make them absolutely sanitary. A two-pound box with butter in it weighs on the average two pounds and two ounces. The box itself weighs four ounces. We sell butter in these boxes 'by the box,' and put in them the same kind of butter as that which we sell by the half pound as 'sheaf' butter in our stores.

"There is nothing on the box which in any wise represents that it contains two pounds of butter.

"The customer who buys the two-pound box in these containers has to pay us for the container. The customer pays for the butter and the box together, the box being a part of the weight of the butter just as he would if he bought an ordinary pound of butter at a grocery store in one of the ordinary small wooden plates."

We Import Paper and Wood Pulp.

The first shipment of wood pulp and print paper ever exported to the United States from Newfoundland was received at this port yesterday. The consignment consisted of 940 bales of wood pulp and 1,607 rolls of paper, and it came on the Kiora. It is to be used by newspapers.

CANADIANS CALL FOR A TARIFF REDUCTION

Speaking at Economic Club Dinner, They Describe Mutual Benefits to be Gained.

DINERS AGREE WITH THEM

Charles S. Hamlin for This Country Says That Power of Extreme Protectionists Is on the Wane.

The commercial relations of the United States with Canada was the dinner topic of the Economic Club at the Hotel Astor last night. The speakers were Wallace Nesbitt, ex-Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada; D. Lorne McGebbon, President of the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Company; Henry M. Whitney of Boston, and ex-Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Hamlin. Francis Lynde Stetson, President of the Club, was toastmaster.

Five hundred club members and their guests attended the dinner, and the sentiments of the speakers, which were for a closer trade relation between the countries through tariff concessions, met with general approval.

All of the speakers referred to the death of King Edward, Judge Nesbitt declaring that the sight of so many flags at half-mast in New York had touched him deeply. He wished, he said, that all Canadians could see this tribute by Americans to the King of a kindred nation. Judge Nesbitt declared President Taft's message to Canadians saying it was his purpose to promote better trade relations between the two countries had done more to restore the ancient amity between the two countries than any utterance of the past five years.

"If the United States were immediately in its own interests to lower its tariff against goods coming from Canada, there would be a two-fold effect," said Judge Nesbitt. "First, if grain, flour, breadstuffs, animals of all kinds, fruits, fish, poultry, eggs, butter, cheese, hides, and timber were allowed to be sent in practically free, the result would be a very large decrease in the cost of living, with the further result of a very much improved ability to manufacture in competition with foreign countries having a lower cost of living than at present obtains in the United States. Is this something to be desired? While not lowering the standard of living, getting the same standard at a great deal less cost.

"On our side it would mean the opening of new country by leaps and bounds; fresh inhabitants pouring in with their purchasing power not less than at present and constantly increasing, does it not open out enormous possibilities in the way of trade for your manufactured goods?"

Mr. Whitney, who was the first of the speakers, declared that Canada at the present moment was entering upon a development closely resembling that upon which the United States entered a century ago.

"The free and unrestricted trade which has prevailed over the territory of the United States to the mutual advantage of everybody concerned," said Mr. Whitney, "would be equally beneficial to the Dominion and the United States if the tariff barrier between the two countries were absolutely removed. Manufacturing enterprises would gradually find their way to the western section of Canada, the same as they have in the United States. And it was scarcely necessary to say that this development would be more rapid if the capital, the energy, and the enterprise of the American people were joined with the Canadians in this development."

Mr. McGebbon said that the future relations as they affect trade between Canada and the United States rest with this country. The solution of the problem, he added, is in the hands of the United States, and he suggested that if the tariff was gradually reduced to a point where the protection afforded both countries would be actually—not theoretically—equalized, always giving the prime consideration to the fact that Canada has the younger and weaker industries, and that her trade preference within the British Empire must stand, he believed that the solution of the problem would be in sight.

Mr. Hamlin said that in his opinion the time was ripe for the negotiation of a mutually favorable commercial treaty between the two countries. The power of the unreasonably high protectionists in this country, he added, was on the wane.

Mr. Stetson declined to accept a renomination to the Presidency of the club last night, and John G. Milburn was elected in his stead. James Speyer and Edward B. Whitney were elected Vice Presidents, and the following are the members of the Executive Committee for the ensuing year: George B. Cortelyou, John Claflin, Edwin R. A. Seligman, Frank A. Vanderlip, Francis Lynde Stetson, William McCarroll, Paul M. Warburg, George Haven Putnam, Henry Clews, the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, Calvin Tomkins, Alexander D. Noyes, John Hays Hammond, and C. M. Bergstresser.

VAIN HUNT FOR HUSBAND

Though Their Paths Crossed Many Times—Wife and Son Deported.

When the White Star liner Oceanic sailed yesterday for England she carried in the steerage Mrs. Maude Bell and her three-year-old son Robert, who were deported by order of Immigration Commissioner Williams. Mrs. Bell is returning to the home of her mother at Southend-on-Sea, Essex, England, after searching vainly for her husband in this country for eighteen months, while he was searching for her.

Early in 1908, Bell, who is a civil engineer, came to America. In October of that year he sent money for his wife's passage, and said he would meet her in this city, but when the ship arrived she received a message saying that he had obtained a place in Pittsburg and would join her there.

To Pittsburg she went, but no husband met her. She traced him to Chicago, arriving there the day he departed, although she did not discover this until two weeks later.

From Chicago the trail led to Denver, Salt Lake City, New Orleans, then back to Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Boston, and then back to New York on May 9. Her money gone, Mrs. Bell walked the streets with her baby for two days, then she applied to the Bureau of Dependent Adults of the Department of Charities at the foot of East Twenty-sixth Street.

Supt. Meeks sent her to the Municipal Lodging House. The State Board of Charities took up her case and turned her over to the immigration authorities.

"I am sure that my husband has been searching for us while I have been searching for him," said Mrs. Bell yesterday. "I received information that leads me to believe he has gone back to England."

TO STANDARDIZE AUTOS.

H. L. Satterlee Suggests Means of Economy—A Merger Impossible.

The need of standardizing automobiles to cut down the cost of manufacture was pointed out yesterday by Herbert L. Satterlee, son-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan, as the explanation of the recent merger of a number of automobile companies. Mr. Satterlee's remarks derive special interest from the fact that J. P. Morgan & Co. has been mentioned frequently in connection with a rumored gigantic merger of automobile interests, but Mr. Satterlee reiterated yesterday his denial that any effort would be made to control the industry.

"The year of 1910," Mr. Satterlee said, "will see the manufacture and sale in the United States of 200,000 automobiles, which will mean an investment of $250,000,000. As there will be a great waste of money in marketing this supply, economy demands a curtailment of all unnecessary expense.

"This curtailment undoubtedly will result in a combination by the manufacturers, but only to lessen the cost by standardization and by creating a clearing house through which to put the cars on the market. No basis could be reached upon which to capitalize the principal concerns in the trade, an insurmountable difficulty being that too many firms would have to be admitted."

CITY BREVITIES.

Corporation Counsel Watson will deliver an address before the Louisiana State Bar Association at Baton Rouge on Saturday on "The Duties and Responsibilities of Municipal Government."

The Aldermen's Finance Committee will hold a public hearing at City Hall at 1 P. M. on Monday on the establishment of a municipal bathing pavilion at Coney Island. The plan has already been approved by the Board of Estimate.

Nedgib Houri and Gemil Houri, the Syrians arrested in Brooklyn, charged with smuggling, were held yesterday in $2,500 bail each. Shaffik Antounji, an interpreter, was held in $1,500 bail as a witness.

LURE PRIEST TO DARK HALL TO MURDER HIM

Pastor Who Fought the Dive Keepers Is Stabbed Twice in the Neck.

WAS SEIZED FROM BEHIND

Father Bellezza Was Asked Over the Telephone to Give the Last Rites of the Church to a Parishioner.

Ever since he became assistant pastor of the Italian parish of Our Lady of Mount Carmel in Williamsburg, two years ago, Father Angelo Bellezza has carried on a vigorous crusade against the many dance halls in the rear of saloons, where young immigrant girls have been lured and drugged.

This course of action did not tend to make him popular with the dance hall keepers, but the young priest, who is well built and muscular, never had any trouble until yesterday, when an attack was made on him which the police believe was inspired by the dive keepers. The attack was made in a dark tenement hall to which he was lured in broad daylight, and it nearly cost him his life.

Father Angelo had just finished celebrating the 9 o'clock mass yesterday when he received a telephone message to go to 73 Skillman Avenue, where, a voice said, "One of your parishioners who is dying wishes you to give the last rites of the Church."

The priest, unsuspecting, started immediately. The Skillman Street house, to which he had been called, was five blocks from the church, which is at Union Avenue and North Eighth Street. The Skillman Avenue house he found to be a brick tenement of the type in which most of his parishioners live. Many people were passing in the street and the doorway of the tenement was open. Apparently there was no one in the dark hall or on the stairs.

As the priest set his foot on the first step of the staircase to ascend an arm was thrown around his chest, pinioning his own arms from behind. Simultaneously an elbow drew his head back and a sharp knife was plunged twice into his neck on the left side, making a deep wound reaching to the shoulder. As the priest sank to the ground his assailants dashed from the hallway.

Father Angelo after a moment got to his feet and staggered out to the street. He could see no one running. But half a dozen passers, seeing his plight, hastened to his aid. A St. Catharine's Hospital ambulance was sent for and Dr. Connolly used twenty stitches to close the priest's two wounds. While the wounds were being dressed Father Angelo's aged mother was brought from the rectory. She refused to allow her son to go to the hospital and he was taken to the parish house.

GEORGE FOR CONGRESS.

Democrats of the Seventeenth District Want to Nominate Him.

There is a movement on foot among the independent Democratic voters of the upper west side to run Henry George, Jr., for Congress this Fall in the Seventeenth District. The present representative of the district is William S. Bennet, who is expected to be a candidate for re-election. A petition has been addressed to Mr. George urging him to enter the field, which reads in part as follows:

The petition is headed by Franklin Pierce and is signed by some 200 voters of the district.

Democratic Clubs for Upper West Side

The West Side Democratic Club of Manhattan has been incorporated. The organizers hope to bring together Tammanyites and Democrats outside the regular organization. Samuel P. Goldman, who ran for the Assembly in the Seventeenth District, in which the new club will be located, and his fellow-incorporators expect to house a thousand members after the club premises are complete.

"Miller" goods are made from heavy brass, and beautifully finished, and in up-to-date designs. It pays to put good fixtures in a house because you enjoy looking at them, and if you want to sell your house, buyers first take notice of the fixtures.

Established 1844. We make reliable goods.

The Clothing Firm of MOE LEVY & CO. DISSOLVE

The firm of Moe Levy & Company beg to announce that through the retiring of one of the members of their firm, and since no satisfactory adjustment could be arrived at, they have been forced to dissolve partnership, selling out all stocks in their three well-known stores.

We take this means of thanking the thousands of patrons who during the past thirty-one years have been responsible for our flattering success.

We trust that every one of them will have the opportunity of sharing in the great clothes values that must necessarily be given in order to immediately sell out all stocks.

Our Stores Will Be Closed To-day to prepare and arrange the stock for quick selling.

This paper to-morrow will contain the announcement of the sale of our entire stock of men's and boys' clothing and furnishings. We have no desire to reserve one dollar's worth of stock. It is our endeavor to sell out as clean as possible. Prices are being marked with that end in view.

Sale Starts Friday, 9 A. M., at All Stores.
